

FATHER KILLS SON IN DRUNKEN FIGHT

Family Drinking Bout at Phoenicia Ends in Fatal Shooting—Son Sought to Force Food in Father's Mouth, is Shot at Twice, Goes "To Have It Out" and is Killed.

James McGrath, 67 years old, shot and instantly killed his son, Thomas McGrath, at the father's home at Phoenicia, about 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, following an afternoon's quarrel which assumed serious proportions when the son attempted to stuff food down his father's throat and the father had fired two shots from a revolver at the son in order to frighten him.

The McGraths have lived at Phoenicia all their lives. James, the father, is a brother of John L. McGrath, of Phoenicia, who has been prominent in local Democratic politics for many years and has been constantly an expert in the Ashokan proceedings since their commencement.

For a number of years James has lived alone part of the time. He and his wife separated when their children were young and since that time McGrath has lived part of the time alone, part of the time with his son whom he killed, and part of the time with his brother, Thomas McGrath, until the latter's death several years ago.

Father and son have been hard workers all their lives, but both had a liking for liquor and both have shown a somewhat ugly disposition when under its influence. Tom, the son who was killed, began work a number of years ago as a bartender at the Globe Hotel, but later gave up that work and engaged in various kinds of labor. At the time of his death he had been employed for some time as a lineman by the Western Union Telegraph Company.

For a number of years it has been the custom of the father and son to get together occasionally and drink somewhat heavily. At such times their meeting usually ended in a quarrel and sometimes a fist fight, and on two occasions the father had the son arrested for assault. On one occasion, the son was brought to jail on a peace warrant and on another he was committed to the Albany penitentiary, the latter occasion being about five years ago.

Both Heavy Drinkers.

Older residents of Phoenicia disagree as to characteristics of both the father and son. Some people say that the hardest work Tom McGrath ever performed was when he was confined in the penitentiary while others say he was always "hard" at work except when he had been drinking heavily. The father is sometimes described as a hardworking man who had been unfortunate—more sinned against than sinning—while at other times he is described as a man with whom it was most difficult to get along, to support which statements his early disagreement with his wife is pointed out as proof.

On the question of heavy drinking, it is agreed that at certain seasons both the father and son indulged heavily. On Saturday, Tom McGrath, who lived with his father and two children some distance from the house occupied by his father, and on the outskirts of Phoenicia, told his wife that he was going to his father's house in the afternoon. She says she knew her father-in-law had been drinking for several days, and asked Tom not to go there, but he insisted; whereupon she dressed the children and decided to accompany him.

Tom and his wife and two children reached his father's house about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The father was drinking a bottle of beer at the time and the son asked him if he had any more in the house. It appeared there was no more beer, and after some discussion the father produced a dollar and the son went across the street to the Globe Hotel. After awhile the father followed him, and on their return awhile later they carried six bottles of beer between them.

When the six bottles of beer had been consumed, there was more discussion about having some more beer and angry words were exchanged, which were heard by neighbors. Mrs. McGrath began getting the children ready to go home, as it was nearing their usual supper time, and while she was doing this there was some discussion between her husband and father-in-law as to what the latter would have to eat for his supper. The son finally suggested to his wife that she get some meat and other things and they should all have supper there. The result of the discussion was that Mr. McGrath began to prepare supper.

Forceful Feeding of Father.

When the entire family was seated at the table, the father said he did not care to eat as he was not hungry, and that he was going to bed. The son remonstrated with him, and finally taking a piece of meat on a fork, walked around the table and seized his father with one hand, forcing the meat into his mouth. To this his father objected, and the son forced more food into his father's mouth. The quarrel between the two men became more violent, and Mrs. McGrath interceded with her husband to let his father alone and not force him to eat. The son said he would desert and everything would be all right if his father would say "please" and would get on his knees.

MEXICO PREPARES FOR WAR ON U. S.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., June 19.—General Francisco Serrano, chief of staff to General Alvaro Obregon, the minister of war in the de facto government of Mexico, has arrived in Juarez.

This is considered one of the most significant of the recent developments in the tense Mexican situation.

Next to Obregon, Serrano is considered one of the ablest generals at the head of the Carranza army.

Military men on the American side of the border believe that General Serrano has been designated to take supreme command of the Mexican forces in the north and to lead the active operations against the United States troops of Brigadier General John J. Pershing, if hostilities break out.

News that President Wilson is putting the military forces of the United States on a war footing has caused intense excitement in towns in northern Mexico.

It is reported that Carranzista generals are at work stirring up to a still higher pitch the anti-American feeling.

Coincident with this report came news that General Venustiano Carranza, the first chief of the Constitutional party, and his minister of war, are trying to equip 500,000 Mexicans for military service.

They already have heavy forces at strategic points in Chihuahua, Sonora and Coahuila. The Mexicans further have the advantage of knowing the mountainous country better than the Americans. Serrano has the reputation of knowing every inch of soil in northern Mexico like a book.

Citizens living in United States border towns believe that hostilities are imminent. Private stores of arms, ammunition and supplies are being placed at the disposal of Major General Funston. Mexicans are being watched closely to prevent them from smuggling supplies over the border.

Reports were current during the day that fresh reinforcements of Mexican troops had arrived in Juarez last night but the Mexicans are finding themselves greatly embarrassed through lack of railway facilities for the shipment of men and supplies. They lack locomotives, cars and coal. The railroads are also in wretched condition from having been torn up and hastily replaced during the revolutions of the last five years.

Villa Ahumada, south of Juarez, has become a great military camp. It is estimated that there are about 5,000 de facto troops there and 20,000 more in the intervening territory between Casas Grandes and Villa Ahumada.

These troops are well supplied with arms and ammunition and should hostilities begin they would be able to seriously menace General Pershing's lines of communications. Although unconfirmed it is generally believed that General Carranza has sent an ultimatum announcing that, unless the United States soldiers are withdrawn from Mexico he will announce a state of war exists between Mexico and the United States. One report is that the time limit is seven days; another that it is ten days.

It is feared, however, that the American leading generals in Carranza's army will not have the patience to wait to see if the difficulties can be adjusted but will set out "to start something" forthwith.

General Pershing has sufficient stores to last his troops for several weeks and there is a feeling of supreme confidence that he can take care of himself and his men.

There are now 3,500 troops in the Fort Bliss garrison, but reinforcements are expected which will bring the complement up to 5,000 or more.

There is plenty of ammunition on hand for both small arms and artillery. Agitation has been started in favor of a food blockade against Mexico. Purchases of corn, rice, sugar, flour and meat which were bought ostensibly to relieve famine conditions, are known to have found their way into the commissariat of Carranza's army.

Louis Correon, an officer in the Carranza army, who was caught while trying to smuggle 600 rounds of ammunition across the Rio Grande, as well as several guns, is being detained at Fort Bliss.

Mexican consuls, evidently believing that war will come, are leaving for Mexico.

General Bell, commanding the United States forces in El Paso, is determined not to be caught napping. The patrol at the international bridge and at other points on the line has been strengthened and warned to exercise war time vigilance.

All night long the clatter of cavalry horses could be heard in the streets of El Paso, varied at times by the swift steps of infantrymen marching at the double quick. These sounds were broken at times by the heavier rumble of guns or the rattle of ammunition caissons as they passed toward the river.

General Bell has issued a statement to the Mexican population of El Paso saying that in the event of hostilities, proper protection will be given to all responsible citizens who behave themselves and do not attempt to aid the enemy. Mayor Tom Lee has issued a warning that Mexicans who do not deserve protection must expect stern treatment.

WHITMAN TO TAKE STUMP FOR HUGHES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 19.—People of the state who have not seen Governor Charles S. Whitman at close range will have an opportunity to do so this fall, for the chief executive is planning to make a state-wide campaign in connection with his candidacy for re-election.

Governor Whitman is a convincing and forcible speaker and the oratorical ammunition which he will draw upon will be a combination of Republican principles and ideals, preparedness, the illustrious history of his party and Americans. There will be other matters which the governor will discuss in his inimitable way from Erie to Nassau county.

It is expected that Governor Whitman will be called upon to stump for the Hon. Charles E. Hughes, the presidential candidate of the Republican party, although the executive is not discussing the probability of his being drafted to go beyond the borders of his own state.

Since Governor Whitman has been in office he has demonstrated more than once that he is a spellbinder of a very high type. His diction is not flamboyant, but emphatically simple and straightforward. The governor gives facts in the manner of an attorney presenting his case and points out what should be done—in the case of a betterment of conditions is being discussed—or lucidly outlines what has been done if he is drawing a comparison.

While there have been rumors to the effect that Governor Whitman might have to look to his laurels at the forthcoming primaries, the most astute political prophets predict that he will have the field to himself and that his advocacy of the nomination of Mr. Hughes has raised him to a very high place in the estimation of those who apparently were of the opinion that a single term would be all that he would draw.

No matter what any one else may think, it is certain that Governor Whitman believes himself entitled to another term as the chief executive of New York state and is going to present his claims to the voting populace. In his belief he has many backers to offset those who have been forecasting that he would not run again.

The intricacies of political life are of such character that the popularity or unpopularity of an elective officer may hang upon a single act; the stand that Governor Whitman took for Mr. Hughes at a time when his own name had been prominently mentioned as a candidate for the presidency, is looked upon in many communities as a service of a high character not only to the nation but to the state as well.

It is said that Governor Whitman enjoys the confidence of the Republican presidential candidate. If this be true, and there does not appear to be any reason to doubt it, the executive will no doubt be requested to join the oratorical force which will be sent broadcast throughout the country to win votes for Mr. Hughes.

Mr. Hughes was largely instrumental in the political advancement of Governor Whitman; he appointed him to several positions when governor, the most important of which was to the bench of the Court of General Sessions in New York city. As assistant corporation counsel of the metropolis, Governor Whitman and Governor Hughes became intimately acquainted.

U. S. CONSULS LEAVING MEXICO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 19.—That the exodus of American consular representatives from Mexico soon will be complete was indicated by messages reaching the state department today. Consul Hanna, formerly at Monterey, notified the department that Consul John R. Silliman, formerly personal representative of President Wilson with Carranza has left Saltillo for the United States.

The state department said that it had no new information regarding the general situation in Mexico. The situation continued grave, the department said. Secretary of State Lansing refused to make any statement regarding the note received from Ambassador Designate Arredondo at 9 o'clock this morning.

SUBMARINES MAY RESUME ACTIVITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 19.—That Germany contemplates a renewal of her ruthless submarine warfare against merchant shipping is indicated by the following Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Berlin today:

"Admiral von Koester, of the German navy, in a speech held that when President Wilson allowed Germany's enemies to be provided with munitions Germany was entitled to carry on submarine activities in the most daring way. However, political and commercial circumstances have forced Germany to abandon reckless submarining for the present."

WAR PREPARATIONS ALONG THE BORDER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Tex., June 19.—War preparations on a big scale are in progress all along the border. The belief exists that the crisis has been precipitated by the defiance of Brigadier General John J. Pershing, who curtly informed General Trevino that he would move his troops in any direction that might be deemed expedient to obtain the object of the punitive expedition in Mexico.

Special precautions are being taken to guard Brigadier General Pershing's lines of communication for fear of a sudden Mexican attack. The United States cavalry at Brownsville, Tex., is being held in readiness to cross the Rio Grande in the event of further trouble in Matamoros.

Between 80,000 and 85,000 National Guardsmen are expected at the border as a result of President Wilson's call, and already General Funston is making plans for their distribution. There were already upwards of 50,000 regulars on the border and in Mexico so that, when the militiamen arrive, there will be a force of more than 135,000 men ready for action in Mexico.

MARITAL TROUBLES IN SUPREME COURT

A suit for divorce brought by Jennie Vogt against Frederick L. Vogt was tried before Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court. The parties were married at Port Ewen on November 12, 1891, and have two children. Vogt was formerly an insurance agent, working on a salary of $22 a week and receiving commissions which his wife says brought up his total earnings to $30 or $35 a week. Since January, 1915, he has been living at Binghamton, and it is claimed he is living with a Mrs. Bradford, whom he had known here. Mrs. May, with whom Mrs. Bradford boarded while in Kingston, denied that anything out of the way ever occurred at her house. Decision was reserved.

Mayor Canfield appeared for the plaintiff; Surrogate Gill appeared for Vogt but interposed no defense. Another hearing was had in the action for divorce brought by Maude Buso against Francis Buso. The wife has testified heretofore. The husband while in Kingston claimed to be the son of a wealthy plantation owner in Porto Rico and his whereabouts are unknown although it is supposed he is now in Porto Rico. Testimony was given concerning admissions which he had made and the matter was held open for further testimony. Mayor Canfield appeared for the plaintiff.

Testimony was taken in a suit for divorce brought by Charles L. Santer against Ida M. Santer. The parties formerly resided in Peekskill, where the plaintiff was employed in the oilcloth factory. A Peekskill horse doctor was named as co-respondent and an employee of a hotel told of Santer breaking down a door of a guest room occupied by Mrs. Santer. Decision was reserved. J. L. Patrie of Catskill appeared for the plaintiff.

A hearing was also had in the action for divorce brought by Louisa T. Grehan against Edward Grehan, a Rensselaer county case. Testimony was furnished by a private detective from Albany and a friend, the latter giving testimony which caused Judge Hasbrouck to ask whether some of the statements he had made seemed credible. Decision was reserved. Joseph J. Wallace of Albany appeared for the plaintiff.

In the action for divorce brought by Thomas Horton against Violet T. Horton, in which a decree of divorce was granted to the plaintiff some time ago, a motion was made to relieve him from paying further alimony. He paid $6 a week during the pendency of the action and afterward until June 9. The motion was granted. Hon. Frank H. Osborn appeared for Mr. Horton.

In the action for separation brought by Sarah Booth against Henry Booth, both of whom live in Sullivan county, a motion was made on behalf of the plaintiff for alimony and counsel fee. The separation is asked on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment, consisting of driving the plaintiff from the house and striking her. The defendant is a cobbler at Monticello and in the summer season is claimed to earn $30 a week and $20 a week during the rest of the year. Judge Hasbrouck allowed $40 counsel fee and $6 expenses, and alimony at the rate of $4 a week. Myer A. Novick of Monticello appeared for the plaintiff.

Newburgh to Issue Bonds.

By a vote of 175 to 136 Newburgh taxpayers on Friday authorized the common council to borrow $70,000 to pay running expenses for which an error in the charter amendments failed to provide.

NATIONAL GUARD ORDERED TO MOBILIZE

TODAY'S MEXICAN DEVELOPMENTS.

Congress asked to make all provisions of the Hay-Chamberlain bill immediately effective so that National Guard now being mobilized specifically can be used for service in Mexico.

Carranza, through Ambassador Designate Arredondo demands that no American bluejackets or marines be permitted to land on Mexican soil.

Mobilization of National Guard in pursuance to president's call going on with record breaking rapidity. Response to call very pleasing to war department.

Secretary Lansing admits that few remaining American consuls again have warned Americans to leave at once.

State department denies any change in Mexican policy, and is prepared to place responsibility for any break directly at Carranza's door.

Mexican embassy says drunken Japanese fired on American naval launch at Mazatlan; that Americans, thinking Mexicans to blame, fired, wounding two Mexicans; two American officers arrested later released.

War department officials declare General Pershing can take care of himself in event of hostilities.

United States reply to Carranza note of May 22 demanding withdrawal of troops will go forward late today or tonight. It refuses to withdraw troops until de facto government conclusively proves it can handle situation and warns Carranza against overt acts which may precipitate trouble.

Washington, June 19.—The United States today was preparing for any eventuality in Mexico. Light draft warships were being assembled along the east and west coasts of the revolution-torn republic. The entire strength of the mobile National Guard of the nation was being assembled in mobilization camps ready for active duty along the border. No precaution was being overlooked that would place the country in readiness for a state of war with the de facto government of Mexico or to protect at any cost the southern boundary line.

Yet, while every open movement spelled war, the administration officials insisted that their actions were entirely precautionary. If war must come—and there are few here who believe that it can be averted—then the administration intends placing the responsibility upon General Carranza and his advisers. The administration's reply to the Carranza ultimatum of three weeks ago demanding that the United States withdraw its punitive expedition from Mexico and allow the Carranza forces to continue the pursuit of Villa, was sent to the state department this morning from the White House. It will be sent to Carranza some time today or tonight.

While the text of this reply is withheld for the present, it is understood that it refuses point blank to consider any withdrawal of the American expedition. It is emphatically stated that the American forces are on Mexican soil in pursuance of orders to exterminate bandits; that by no method of reasoning can their presence there be construed as a violation of Mexican sovereignty in view of the public position taken by the president on ordering the expedition to proceed, and that they will remain there until the United States is completely convinced that the forces of the de facto government are in a position to deal with the situation.

General Carranza is understood to have given a frank warning that his forces must commit no overt act. It is understood that responsibility for any break that may occur is placed directly on the de facto government and that it is pointed out that if the Carranzista forces in northern Mexico co-operated with the American bandit forces all along the international boundary line would now have been stamped out. Instead attention is called to the fact that since the Columbus, N. M., raid there have been other outrages that have shown the promises of the Carranza government not to have been kept.

Mystery surrounded a visit paid to the state department early today by Louis Dantine, an attaché of the Mexican embassy. Dantine said that he called there to leave for Secretary Lansing a message from General Carranza sent by telegraph to Ambassador Designate Arredondo. It was reported that this message was an ultimatum from Carranza, in which he demanded that the American forces withdraw from Mexico within ten days and if they failed to do so, their continued presence would be considered as a hostile act and they would be expelled by force. On this point Dantine was dumb.

Secretary of State Lansing denied that he had received any official communication from Dantine. It was intimated by state department officials that Dantine was given a copy of the latest administration reply to Carranza in order that it should prove impossible for the state department to transmit it to Mexico City Arredondo himself can send it along.

Reports that President Wilson was planning asking for a joint session of congress before which he could lay all of the facts in the Mexican situation and ask for advice were denied at the White House. It was stated that this question had not yet been considered. The president, it was said, has no desire to inject politics into the situation if it can be avoided, and will go before congress only when all other means of relief have been exhausted.

The president and many of his advisers were hopeful that the calling out of the National Guard would impress the Mexican officials with the fact that the administration means business and would check the hot heads in the Carranza service who have been advocating attacking the Americans.

But the chiefs of the army and navy do not expect this. They declare that the tottering Carranza government wants war with the United States in the hope that, through such action, he (Carranza) can solidify all Mexicans in his behalf. And the war college is going ahead with its plans for a real campaign in Mexico on this basis.

Although reports continue to reach Washington the painting the Pershing punitive expedition as in danger and surrounded on all sides by a mighty force of armed Mexicans waiting the signal to perpetrate "another Custer massacre," the officials at the war department say that Pershing can take care of himself. His troops are in strong positions. They have plenty of arms and munitions as well as other supplies. And they are just spilling for a fight with the Mexican troops who are vastly inferior to them in equipment no matter how superior in point of numbers.

The quick response of the National Guard to the orders to mobilize has gratified all officials here. From the various states comes the word that the men are turning up at the armories ready to be mustered into the service of the United States. And although the provisions of the Hay-Chamberlain bill do not go into effect until the first of next month, many organizations have expressed a desire to be mustered in under its provisions rather than under the present Dick Law.

It is understood that the first units to be ordered south will be the crack regiments from the northern states, all of which are ready for active service right now. Under orders from the war department, however, details regarding troop movements will be withheld.

War department officials say that the general equipment of the entire Guard today is excellent. During the last couple of months all units have had their equipment brought up to date with everything that would be required for field service. The grave need—in fact the only serious need—is in transport equipment such as auto trucks and the like. The quartermaster's department will do everything possible to remedy this and auto trucks will be procured at every possible point out delay.

When Secretary Lansing was asked today regarding the outlook, he said:

"There has been no change in our policy toward Mexico."

Under questioning the secretary admitted that there is much more excitement and irritation in Mexico today than at any time since the Villa raid on Columbus, N. M., and that there are many evidences of anti-American feeling at numerous points.

Secretary Lansing admitted that the few remaining American consuls still in Mexico have been ordered again to warn Americans to leave for without delay.

Neither the state nor the navy department today had any confirmation of a fight between Americans and Mexicans at Mazatlan.

Baltimore, June 19.—The Maryland militia has been ordered out for active service. Orders were issued today that the state troops be mobilized and held in instant readiness for a summons to the Mexican border.

This means that First, Fourth and Fifth regiments, forming a brigade; Battery A, field artillery; troop A, cavalry; a field hospital, and an ambulance company, about 2,500 men in all, will mobilize. They will concentrate at Laurel.

Burlington, Vt., June 19.—Orders for mobilization of the Vermont troops were issued this morning. Companies throughout the state have answered the call and are moving to Colchester, the point of mobilization. Vermont's quota is 837 officers and men.

Washington, June 19.—The 2,300 officers and men of the District of Columbia National Guard, comprising the national capital's contribution for Mexican service today are mobilizing at Fort Myer, Va. They will be

FATHER KILLS SON IN DRUNKEN FIGHT

Family Drinking Bout at Phoenicia Ends in Fatal Shooting—Son Sought to Force Food in Father's Mouth, is Shot at Twice, Goes "To Have It Out" and is Killed.

James McGrath, 67 years old, shot and instantly killed his son, Thomas McGrath, at the father's home at Phoenicia, about 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, following an afternoon's quarrel which assumed serious proportions when the son attempted to stuff food down his father's throat and the father had fired two shots from a revolver at the son in order to frighten him.

At such times their meetings usually ended in a quarrel and sometimes a fist fight, and on two occasions the father had the son arrested for assault. On one occasion he was brought to court on a peace warrant and on another he was committed to the Albany penitentiary, the latter occasion being about five years ago.

Both Heavy Drinkers.

Older residents of Phoenicia disagree as to characteristics of both the father and son. Some people say that the hardest work Tom McGrath ever performed was when he was confined in the penitentiary while others say he was always hard at work except when he had been drinking heavily. The father is sometimes described as a hardworking man who had been unfortunate—sinned against then sinning—when at other times he is described as a man with whom it was difficult to get along, to support which statements his early disagreement with his wife is pointed out as proof. On the question of heavy drinking, it is agreed that at certain seasons both the father and son indulged heavily.

On Saturday, Tom McGrath, who lived with his wife and two children some distance from the house occupied by his father, and on the outskirts of Phoenicia, told his wife that he was going to his father's house in the afternoon. She says she knew her father-in-law had been drinking for several days, and asked Tom not to go there, but he insisted; whereupon she dressed the children and decided to accompany him.

Tom and his wife and two children reached his father's house about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The father was drinking a bottle of beer at the time and the son asked him if he had any more in the house. It appeared there was no more beer, and after some discussion the father produced a dollar and the son went across the street to the Globe Hotel. After while the father followed him, and on their return a while later they carried six bottles of beer between them.

The son finally suggested to his wife that she get some meat and other things and they should all have supper there. The result of the discussion was that Mrs. McGrath began to prepare supper.

Forcible Feeding of Father.
When the entire family was seated at the table, the father said he did not care to eat as he was not hungry, and that he was going to bed. The son remonstrated with him, and finally taking a piece of meat on a fork, walked around the table and seized his father with one hand, forced the meat into his mouth. To this his father objected, and the son forced more food into his father's mouth. The quarrel between the two men became more violent, and Mrs. McGrath intervened with her husband to let his father alone and not force him to eat. The son said he would desert and everything would be all right if his father would say "please" and would get on his knees.

After some delay the father complied, and then left the table, going immediately upstairs to his bedroom and returning a few minutes later carrying in his hand a .32 calibre revolver.

Fired Two Shots.

Tom McGrath asked his father what he expected to do with that old gun, and by way of reply the father fired two shots in the direction of his son. The latter was standing at the sink, which was in one corner of the room, and the bullets struck the woodwork on either side of him, about five feet apart. Whether James McGrath intended only to frighten the son or whether he aimed for him and missed by reason of an unsteady hand are facts which cannot be proved by anyone.

After firing the two shots, the father announced that he was going to his room and was going to bed. He went upstairs. As soon as he had left the room, the son ran downstairs to the cellar, where Mrs. McGrath followed. They emerged from the cellar through a side door, and went around to the front of the house.

To "Have It Out."

Claude Lefever, formerly of Kingston, a district manager of the Prudential Insurance Co., resides in half of the house which James McGrath occupied, and he was at the front of the house when Tom McGrath and his wife came around the corner of the house. Tom McGrath announced that no man could point a gun at him and shoot at him and expect to get away with it, and he was going upstairs to have it out with the old man. Mrs. McGrath endeavored to dissuade him from the idea of going back, but he took off his coat, which he threw on a chair, and started upstairs. Mrs. McGrath ran down the street to summon Joseph J. McGrath, but she had not gone more than 75 or 100 feet before neighbors heard a third shot in the house. Either through excitement or because the children, who were running after her, were crying, she did not hear the third shot.

Body Found in Hall.

A few minutes later Mrs. McGrath returned to the house with Joseph J. McGrath, Benjamin Weiss and Benjamin Baumann. They went upstairs, and in the hallway found Tom McGrath lying in front of the door of his father's room. He was breathing hard, but within a minute his breathing stopped.

Door Forced In.

The right panel of the door leading to the father's room had been forced inward and part of it clung to the moulding, which had held it in place and part of it lay on the floor inside the room. The panel was three-inch board, very dry and somewhat brittle, as "pumpkin pine," as the wood of which the door was constructed is known, becomes with age.

Inside the room James McGrath lay on his back on the bed, which was about three feet from the door. His feet hung over the side of the bed and rested on the floor, as though he had shot while sitting on the edge of the bed and then had thrown himself backward. The revolver was beside him.

Dr. John C. Cross, who was summoned, found on his arrival that the son was dead. The body was taken in charge by Coroner H. Lee Breithaupt and removed to his undertaking rooms, where an autopsy was performed on Sunday by Drs. A. A. Stern and Henry Van Hovenberg of this city.

Self Defense His Plea.

James McGrath was placed under arrest shortly afterwards by Constable Ryan and was brought to jail at nine o'clock in the evening by the constable and Joseph J. McGrath. They were met at the court house by Former Mayor Roscoe Irwin and William H. Grogan, with whom McGrath had a consultation. All that McGrath would say to others was that he shot in self defense.

In Good Spirits.

This morning McGrath was in fairly good spirits and asked how long it would be before he would be released.

District Attorney Frederick G. Traver and Assistant District Attorney J. DePuy Hasbrouck were notified Saturday night of the tragedy and early Sunday morning went to Phoenicia, where they spent most of the day making a thorough investigation.

Thomas McGrath was 32 years old. He is survived by his wife and two children and by two sisters, both of whom are married. Funeral arrangements will be made when his sisters reach Phoenicia.

An Orange county jury stood six and six in the case of Antonio Canio, charged with conducting a gambling house in the Arlington Hotel, Middletown.

MEXICO PREPARES FOR WAR ON U. S.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., June 19.—General Francisco Serrano, chief of staff to General Alvaro Obregon, the minister of war in the de facto government of Mexico, has arrived in Juarez.

Next to Obregon, Serrano is considered one of the ablest generals at the head of the Carranza army.

Military men on the American side of the border believe that General Serrano has been designated to take supreme command of the Mexican forces in the north and to lead the active operations against the United States troops of Brigadier General John J. Pershing, if hostilities break out.

News that President Wilson is putting the military forces of the United States on a war footing has caused intense excitement in towns in northern Mexico.

It is reported that Carranzista generals are at work stirring up to a still higher pitch the anti-American feeling.

Coincident with this report came news that General Venustiano Carranza, the first chief of the Constitutional party, and his minister of war, are trying to equip 500,000 Mexicans for military service.

They already have heavy forces at strategic points in Chihuahua, Sonora and Coahuila. The Mexicans further have the advantage of knowing the mountainous country better than the Americans. Serrano has the reputation of knowing every inch of soil in northern Mexico like a book.

Citizens living in United States border towns believe that hostilities are imminent. Private stores of arms, ammunition and supplies are being placed at the disposal of Major General Funston. Mexicans are being watched closely to prevent them from smuggling supplies over the border.

Reports were current during the day that fresh reinforcements of Mexican troops had arrived in Juarez last night but the Mexicans are finding themselves greatly embarrassed through lack of railway facilities for the shipment of men and supplies. They lack locomotives, cars and coal. The railroads are at so in wretched condition from having been run up and heavily repaired during the revolutions of the last five years.

Villa Ahumada, south of Juarez, has become a great military camp. It is estimated that there are about 5,000 de facto troops there and 20,000 more in the intervening territory between Casas Grandes and Villa Ahumada.

These troops are well supplied with arms and ammunition and should hostilities begin they would be able to seriously menace General Pershing's lines of communications.

Although unconfirmed it is generally believed that General Carranza has sent an ultimatum announcing that, unless the United States soldiers are withdrawn from Mexico he will announce a state of war exists between Mexico and the United States. One report is that the time limit is seven days; another that it is ten days.

It is feared, however, that the American hating generals in Carranza's army will not have the patience to wait to see if the difficulties can be adjusted but will set out "to start something" forthwith.

General Pershing has sufficient stores to last his troops for several weeks and there is a feeling of supreme confidence that he can take care of himself and his men.

There are now 3,500 troops in the Fort Bliss garrison, but reinforcements are expected which will bring the complement up to 5,000 or more.

There is plenty of ammunition on hand for both small arms and artillery. Agitation has been started in favor of a food blockade against Mexico. Purchases of corn, rice, sugar, flour and meat which were bought ostensibly to relieve famine conditions, are known to have found their way into the commissariat of Carranza's army.

Louis Correon, an officer in the Carranza army, who was caught while trying to smuggle 600 rounds of ammunition across the Rio Grande, as well as several guns, is being detained at Fort Bliss.

Mexican consuls, evidently believing that war will come, are leaving for Mexico. General Bell, commanding the United States forces in El Paso, is determined not to be caught napping. The patrol at the international bridge and at other points on the line has been strengthened and warned to exercise war time vigilance.

All night long the clatter of cavalry horses could be heard in the streets of El Paso, varied at times by the swift steps of infantrymen marching at the double quick. These sounds were broken at times by the heavier rumble of guns or the rattle of ammunition caissons as they passed toward the river.

General Bell has issued a statement to the Mexican population of El Paso saying that in the event of hostilities, proper protection will be given to all responsible citizens who behave themselves and do not attempt to aid the enemy. Mayor Tom Hughes has issued a warning that Mexicans who do not deserve protection must expect stern treatment.

WHITMAN TO TAKE STUMP FOR HUGHES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 19.—People of the state who have not seen Governor Charles S. Whitman at close range will have an opportunity to do so this fall, for the chief executive is planning to make a state-wide campaign in connection with his candidacy for re-election.

Governor Whitman is a convincing and forcible speaker and the oratorical ammunition which he will draw upon will be a combination of Republican principles and ideals, preparedness, the illustrious history of his party and Americanism. There will be other matters which the governor will discuss in his inimitable way from Erie to Nassau county.

It is expected that Governor Whitman will be called upon to stump for the Hon. Charles E. Hughes, the presidential candidate of the Republican party, although the executive is not discussing the probability of his being drafted to go beyond the borders of his own state.

Since Governor Whitman has been in office he has demonstrated more than once that he is a splitbinder of a very high type. His dictation is not flamboyant, but emphatically simple and straightforward. The governor gives facts in the manner of an attorney presenting his case and points out what should be done—in the case that a betterment of conditions is being discussed—or lucidly outlines what has been done if he is drawing a comparison.

While there have been rumors to the effect that Governor Whitman might have to look to his laurels at the forthcoming primaries, the most astute political prophets predict that he will have the field to himself and that his advocacy of the nomination of Mr. Hughes has raised him to a very high place in the estimation of those who apparently were of the opinion that a single term would be all that he would draw.

No matter what any one else may think, it is certain that Governor Whitman believes himself entitled to another term as the chief executive of New York state and is going to present his claims to the voting populace. In his belief he has many backers to offset those who have been forecasting that he would not run again.

The intricacies of political life are of such character that the popularity or unpopularity of an elective officer may hang upon a single act; the stand that Governor Whitman took for Mr. Hughes at a time when his own name had been prominently mentioned as a candidate for the presidency, is looked upon in many communities as a service of a high character not only to the nation but to the state as well.

It is said that Governor Whitman enjoys the confidence of the Republican presidential candidate. If this be true, and there does not appear to be any reason to doubt it, the executive will no doubt be requested to join the oratorical force which will be sent broadcast throughout the country to win votes for Mr. Hughes.

Mr. Hughes was largely instrumental in the political advancement of Governor Whitman; he appointed him to several positions when governor, the most important of which was to the bench of the Court of Sessions in New York city. As assistant corporation counsel of the metropolis, Governor Whitman and Governor Hughes became intimately acquainted.

U. S. CONSULS LEAVING MEXICO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 19.—That the exodus of American consular representatives from Mexico soon will be complete was indicated by messages reaching the state department today. Consul Hanna, formerly at Monterey, notified the department that Consul John R. Silliman, formerly personal representative of President Wilson with Carranza, has left Saltillo for the United States.

The state department said that it had no new information regarding the general situation in Mexico. The situation continued grave, the department said. Secretary of State Lansing refused to make any statement regarding the note received from Ambassador Designate Arredondo at 9 o'clock this morning.

SUBMARINES MAY RESUME ACTIVITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 19.—That Germany contemplates a renewal of her ruthless submarine warfare against merchant shipping is indicated by the following Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Berlin today:

"Admiral von Koester, of the German navy, in a speech held that when President Wilson allowed Germany's enemies to be provided with munitions Germany was entitled to carry on submarine activities in the most daring way. However, political and commercial circumstances have forced Germany to abandon reckless submarine warfare for the present."

WAR PREPARATIONS ALONG THE BORDER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Tex., June 19.—War preparations on a big scale are in progress all along the border. The belief exists that the crisis has been precipitated by the defiance of Brigadier General John J. Pershing, who curtly informed General Trevino that he would move his troops in any direction that might be deemed expedient to obtain the object of the punitive expedition in Mexico.

Special precautions are being taken to guard Brigadier General Pershing's lines of communication for fear of a sudden Mexican attack. The United States cavalry at Brownsville, Tex., is being held in readiness to cross the Rio Grande in the event of further trouble in Matamoros.

Between 80,000 and 85,000 National Guardsmen are expected at the border as a result of President Wilson's call, and already General Funston is making plans for their distribution. There were already upwards of 50,000 regulars on the border and in Mexico so that, when the militiamen arrive, there will be a force of more than 135,000 men ready for action in Mexico.

MARITAL TROUBLES IN SUPREME COURT

A suit for divorce brought by Jennie Vogt against Frederick L. Vogt was tried before Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court. The parties were married at Port Ewen on November 12, 1891, and have two children. Vogt was formerly an insurance agent, working on a salary of $22 a week and receiving commissions which his wife says brought up his total earnings to $30 or $35 a week. Since January, 1915, he has been living at Binghamton, and it is claimed he is living with a Mrs. Bradford, whom he had known here. Mrs. May, with whom Mrs. Bradford boarded while in Kingston, denied that anything out of the way ever occurred at her house. Decision was reserved.

Mayor Canfield appeared for the plaintiff; Surrogate Gill appeared for Vogt but interposed no defense. Another hearing was had in the action for divorce brought by Maude Buso against Francis Buso. The wife has testified heretofore. The husband while in Kingston claimed to be the son of a wealthy plantation owner in Porto Rico and his whereabouts are unknown although it is supposed he is now in Porto Rico. Testimony was given concerning admissions which he had made and the matter was held open for further testimony. Mayor Canfield appeared for the plaintiff.

Testimony was taken in a suit for divorce brought by Charles L. Santer against Ida M. Santer. The parties formerly resided in Peekskill, where the plaintiff was employed in the oilcloth factory. A Peekskill horse doctor was named as co-respondent and an employee of a hotel told of Santer breaking down a door of a guest room occupied by Mrs. Santer. Decision was reserved. J. L. Patrie of Catskill appeared for the plaintiff.

A hearing was also had in the action for divorce brought by Louisa T. Grehan against Edward Grehan, a Rensselaer county case. Testimony was furnished by a private detective from Albany and a friend, the latter giving testimony which caused Judge Hasbrouck to ask whether some of the statements he had made seemed credible. Decision was reserved. Joseph J. Wallace of Albany appeared for the plaintiff.

In the action for divorce brought by Thomas Horton against Violet T. Horton, in which a decree of divorce was granted to the plaintiff some time ago, a motion was made to relieve him from paying further alimony. He paid $6 a week during the pendency of the action and afterward until June 9. The motion was granted. Hon. Frank H. Osborn appeared for Mr. Horton.

In the action for separation brought by Sarah Booth against Henry Booth, both of whom live in Sullivan county, a motion was made on behalf of the plaintiff for alimony and counsel fee. The separation is asked on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment, consisting of driving the plaintiff from the house and striking her. The defendant is a cobbler at Monticello and in the summer season is claimed to earn $30 a week and $20 a week during the rest of the year. Judge Hasbrouck allowed $40 counsel fee and $6 expenses, and alimony at the rate of $4 a week. Myer A. Novick of Monticello appeared for the plaintiff.

Newburgh to Issue Bonds.
By a vote of 175 to 136 Newburgh taxpayers on Friday authorized the common council to borrow $70,000 to pay running expenses for which an error in the charter amendments failed to provide.

NATIONAL GUARD ORDERED TO MOBILIZE

TODAY'S MEXICAN DEVELOPMENTS.

Congress asked to make all provisions of the Hay-Chamberlain bill immediately effective so that National Guard now being mobilized specifically can be used for service in Mexico.

Carranza, through Ambassador Designate Arredondo demands that no American bluejackets or marines be permitted to land on Mexican soil.

Mobilization of National Guard in pursuance to president's call going on with record breaking rapidity. Response to call very pleasing to war department.

Secretary Lansing admits that few remaining American consuls again have warned Americans to leave at once.

State department denies any change in Mexican policy, and is prepared to place responsibility for any break directly at Carranza's door.

Mexican embassy says drunken Japanese fired on American naval launch at Mazatlan; that Americans, thinking Mexicans to blame, fired, wounding two Mexicans; two American officers arrested later released.

War department officials declare General Pershing can take care of himself in event of hostilities.

United States reply to Carranza note of May 22 demanding withdrawal of troops will go forward late today or tonight. It refuses to withdraw troops until de facto government conclusively proves it can handle situation and warns Carranza against overt acts which may precipitate trouble.

Washington, June 19.—The United States today was preparing for any eventuality in Mexico. Light draft warships were being assembled along the east and west coasts of the revolution-torn republic. The entire strength of the mobile National Guard of the nation was being assembled in mobilization camps ready for active duty along the border. No precaution was being overlooked that would place the country in readiness for a state of war with the de facto government of Mexico or to protect at any cost the southern boundary line.

Yet, while every open movement spelled war, the administration officials insisted that their actions were entirely precautionary. If war must come—and there are few here who believe that it can be averted—then the administration intends placing the responsibility upon General Carranza and his advisers. The administration's reply to the Carranza ultimatum of three weeks ago demanding that the United States withdraw its punitive expedition from Mexico and allow the Carranza forces to continue the pursuit of Villa, was sent to the state department this morning from the White House. It will be sent to Carranza some time today or tonight.

While the text of this reply is withheld for the present, it is understood that it refuses point blank to consider any withdrawal of the American expedition. It is emphatically stated that the American forces are on Mexican soil in pursuance of orders to exterminate bandits; that by no method of reasoning can their presence there be construed as a violation of Mexican sovereignty in view of the public position taken by the president on ordering the expedition to proceed, and that they will remain there until the United States is completely convinced that the forces of the de facto government are in a position to deal with the situation.

General Carranza is understood to be given frank warning that his forces must commit no overt act. It is understood that responsibility for any break that may occur is placed directly on the de facto government and that it is pointed out that if the Carranzista forces in northern Mexico had co-operated with the Americans the bandit forces all along the international boundary line would now have been stamped out. Instead attention is called to the fact that since the Columbus, N.M., raid there have been other outrages that have shown the promises of the Carranza government not to have been kept.

Mystery surrounded a visit paid to the state department early today by Louis Dantine, an attaché of the Mexican embassy. Dantine said that he called there to leave for Secretary Lansing a message from General Carranza sent by telegram to Ambassador Designate Arredondo. It was reported that this message was an ultimatum from Carranza in which he demanded that the American forces withdraw from Mexico within ten days and if they failed to do so, their continued presence would be considered as a hostile act and they would be expelled by force. On this point Dantine was dumb.

Secretary of State Lansing denied that he had received any official communication from Dantine. It was intimated by state department officials that Dantine was given a copy of the latest administration reply to Carranza in order that if it shall prove impossible for the state department to transmit it to Mexico City Arredondo himself can send it along.

Reports that President Wilson was planning asking for a joint session of congress before which he could lay all of the facts in the Mexican situation and ask for advice were denied at the White House. It was stated that this question had not yet been considered. The president, it was said, has no desire to inject politics into the situation if it can be avoided, and will go before congress only when all other means of relief have been exhausted.

The president and many of his advisers were hopeful that the calling out of the National Guard would impress the Mexican officials with the fact that the administration means business and would check the hot heads in the Carranza service who have been advocating attacking the Americans.

But the chiefs of the army and navy do not expect this. They declare that the tottering Carranza government wants war with the United States in the hope that, through such action, he (Carranza) can solidify all Mexicans in his behalf. And the war college is going ahead with its plans for a real campaign in Mexico on this basis.

Although reports continue to reach Washington the painting the Pershing punitive expedition as in danger and surrounded on all sides by a mighty force of armed Mexicans waiting the signal to perpetrate "another Custer massacre," the officials at the war department say that Pershing can take care of himself. His troops are in strong positions. They have plenty of arms and munitions as well as other supplies. And they are just spilling for a fight with the Mexican troops who are vastly inferior to them in equipment no matter how superior in point of numbers.

The quick response of the National Guard to the orders to mobilize has gratified all officials here. From the various states comes the word that the men are turning up at the armories ready to be mustered into the service of the United States. And although the provisions of the Hay-Chamberlain bill do not go into effect until the first of next month, many organizations have expressed a desire to be mustered in under its provisions rather than under the present Dick Law.

It is understood that the first units to be ordered south will be the crack regiments from the northern states, all of which are ready for active service right now. Under orders from the war department, however, details regarding troop movements will be withheld.

War department officials say that the general equipment of the entire Guard today is excellent. During the last couple of months all units have had their equipment brought up to date with everything that would be required for field service. The grave need—in fact the only serious need—is transport equipment such as auto trucks and the like. The quartermaster's department will do everything possible to remedy this and auto trucks will be procured at every possible point out delay.

When Secretary Lansing was asked today regarding the outlook, he said:

"There has been no change in our policy toward Mexico." Under questioning the secretary admitted that there is much more excitement and irritation in Mexico today than at any time since the Villa raid on Columbus, N.M., and that there are many evidences of anti-American feeling at numerous points.

Secretary Lansing admitted that the few remaining American consuls still in Mexico have been ordered again to warn Americans to leave for without delay.

Neither the state nor the navy department today had any confirmation of a fight between Americans and Mexicans at Mazatlan.

Baltimore, June 19.—The Maryland militia has been ordered out for active service. Orders were issued today that the state troops be mobilized and held in instant readiness for a summons to the Mexican border.

This means that First, Fourth and Fifth regiments, forming a brigade; Battery A, field artillery; troop A, cavalry; a field hospital, and an ambulance company, about 2,500 men in all, will mobilize. They will concentrate at Laurel.

Burlington, Vt., June 19.—Orders for mobilization of the Vermont troops were issued this morning. Companies throughout the state have answered the call and are moving to Colchester, the point of mobilization. Vermont's quota is 527 officers and men.

Washington, June 19.—The 2,800 troops and men of the District of Columbia National Guard, comprising the national capital's contribution for Mexican service today are mobilizing at Fort Myer, Va. They will be

SHEDS NEW LIGHT ON TOMMY ATKINS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, June 19.—A German army surgeon who has been at the front since the beginning of the war writes:

"The English Tommy Atkins, who coolly smoked a cigarette on the operating table when his shattered limbs were patched up or amputated and never answered questions is a thing of the past. The new Tommy is only a substitute, but this characterization of the present British soldiers is not meant as a reflection upon him. It is impossible to transform men who do not possess military qualities from a long line of heritage into brilliant fighters by a simple command and a few weeks of training.

"The new Tommy Atkins is as much different from the old one. He lacks dash and chivalry. The fighting value of these poorly trained working men, clerks and farmers, who have no military experience cannot be compared with that of the brilliant English soldiers who fought in Belgium at the beginning of the war.

"I always admired the old Tommies because they had the qualities which made the real soldiers: dash, bravery, endurance and a highly developed sense of duty. When they were brought to our hospitals they never complained, no matter how badly they were hurt. They seemed to be insensible to pain and stubbornly refused to give any information if they were questioned. Every one of them seemed to be made of hickory.

"The new Tommies although brave, are very much softer. They often cry when we bandage their wounds, and talk freely. Confidence in an absolute victory of England does not inspire them, as it inspired the old professional British soldiers. Most of them only expect that the war will end in a draw and they hope that peace will come soon, because they want to return to their families and the peaceful life from which they have been dragged to fight for their country.

"Many of them are really only overgrown boys. The old Tommy knew no family and home. Fighting was his profession and there was not even a trace of sentimentality in his make-up.

"Everything has changed in the British army. The officers are no longer the dashing young aristocrats and gray headed warriors from the best families for whom their men would have fought their way through hell. These brilliant commanders have all been killed or disabled.

"The new officers, men from all walks of life, are as a rule patriotic and brave fellows, but they have no military knowledge and experience. Generally they do not know much more than the soldiers commanded by them and for this reason their men have little confidence in them and they do not possess the respect of the rank and file."

The KITCHEN CABINET

CONDIMENTS IN FOOD.

Never go to meet a sorrow That will wait until tomorrow; Never worry over troubles that are past; When you fill your mouth with mustard Having thought that it was custard. Do not let yourself be flustered But be happy in the knowledge That the smartest cannot last. —S. E. Kizer.

In spite of Plutarch's aphorism that "hunger and salt should be man's only sauce," we are so accustomed to condiments of various kinds that the appetite fails if denied them.

Condiments and spices are used as adjuncts to foods, and in themselves supply little nourishment, their effect being mainly a stimulating character to the nerves of taste or secretion. They serve a purpose in adding flavor to insipid food and relieve monotony in diet.

In some dyspeptic conditions of the stomach the use of strong condiments like red pepper or tabasco sauce affords relief by exciting the activity of the stomach, but as to their value in prolonging health they are much overestimated.

The use of some condiments is likely to be abused, such as pepper, curry and vinegar. When used in excess, they seriously disorder the digestion. Curry powders of various sorts are prepared by mixing strong condiments, such as red pepper, ginger and turmeric and starch. People leading indolent lives and indulging too freely in the good things of the table, are tempted to aid the stomach by the use of exciting stimulants. In warm climates this is especially noted. The advice given to those not used to hot climates is to confine the food to fruit and vegetables largely, shunning nitrogenous food and condiments and alcoholic beverages.

Next to salt, which is the symbol of hospitality in the Orient and is a necessity in nearly all our foods, comes pepper, mustard, ginger and vinegar. Much difference of taste as to the use of condiments exists. The Persians like anafetida, which most of us remember with not a little unpleasantness as a disinfectant.

Certain condiments are best served with certain foods; thus mustard and ham, pepper with eggs, red pepper with raw oysters, vinegar with spinach.

OFFICIALS CONSIDER WAR IS INEVITABLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 19.—Official circles—with the possible exception of President Wilson and Secretaries Lansing and Baker—this afternoon consider war with Mexico inevitable. General Carranza is expected to force the issue within the next few days, possibly within the next few hours. This government has sent its reply to the Carranza note of May 22 in which he insolently demanded the withdrawal of the American punitive expedition to Mexico City. It is a flat refusal to comply, and in addition warns the de facto government against any overt acts.

The administration has asked congress specifically to authorize the use of the organized militia in Mexico. This action, congressional leaders declare, will be construed in Mexico as tantamount to a declaration of war. They declare that it simply emphasizes the extreme seriousness of the situation.

President Wilson and the men closest to him deny any change in their plans. They insist that they are as much opposed to complete intervention today as ever. But they also admit that every preparation is being made for any contingency no matter how serious.

All advice from the border tell of constantly increasing bitterness between the Americans and Mexicans. So far there has been no open outbreak but officials will not be surprised if it occurs at any time.

The mobilization of the National Guard is being rushed at all points. In an emergency certain units could be started for the front by tomorrow night. By next Sunday officials say, practically all of the force will be ready for duty.

SOCIETY NOTES.

There will be a dance at the Kingston Point Casino Tuesday evening, June 20, given by the Loyal Friends' Aid Society. Steve Miller's orchestra will furnish music. A small admission will be charged. All are cordially invited to attend.

C., the happy couple will make their home in Poughkeepsie, where a newly furnished home awaits them at No. 174 Church street.

On Thursday evening past Miss Grace Kampf was tendered a pleasant surprise by a number of her friends. An enjoyable time was had by all, during the evening Miss Ethel Stalter rendered several vocal selections. The presence of Leo Daun was greatly missed as he is an exceptionally fine soloist. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses. Among those present were the Misses Grace Kampf, Ethel Stalter, Anna Cohen, Susie Geisler. All declared Miss Kampf a royal entertainer.

Mrs. Clarence Brigham celebrated her wedding anniversary at her home on Wall street, on Friday afternoon, by giving an auction party. Seven tables were in play. servatory of Music, she, together with a class mate from the conservatory, Miss Glenn, will give a concert at the chapel of the Roundout Presbyterian Church on the evening of Friday of this week. They will be assisted by Miss Virginia Los Kamp, the contralto soloist of the church. Several two piano-forte numbers will make the program of unusual interest.

Ter Bush-Fredd.

St. John's Episcopal Church, Ellenville, was the scene of a very beautiful wedding Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock when the marriage of Vivian J. Fredd, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fredd, of Ellenville, and Frank A. Ter Bush of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ter Bush, of Greenfield, took place. The church was elaborately decorated with the mountain laurel in pink, white and green, a fitting setting for the rainbow wedding which was carried out to perfection. One hundred guests were in attendance and for these seats had been reserved and then the church was opened to all village friends, of which there was a large attendance. At 7 o'clock, Miss Nellie Hobson in cap and gown, organist, took her place at the organ and rendered music until the approach of the wedding party, when a hush fell upon the waiting assemblage and the first strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March was heard, the ushers, Wendell DeWitt, Floyd Wright, Paul Misner and Ward Wilkoff, were in the lead, followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Mary Hartwig and Miss Ethel Ter Bush, sister of the groom. Miss Hartwig was lovely in a gown of green taffeta silk with net and lace trimming, while Miss Ter Bush wore a gown of yellow taffeta silk, with net and lace, each wore a large white picture hat of georgette crepe and lace straw, and carried baskets of pink laurel tied with meline streamers to match gowns. Then came the maids of honor, the two sisters of the bride, dainty and sweet, the Misses Mabel and Addie Fredd, lovely in their quaint gowns of white net, the skirts ruffled with hemstitched net and elaborately trimmed with blue and pink ribbons and forget-me-not flowers in pink and blue, wearing quaint poke bonnets, small of lace straw with flowers of pink and blue forget-me-nots and carried baskets of pink laurel. Following came the bride, very beautiful in a real lace point de alencon, with real lace point de al encon, with brocade satin court train, wearing a tulle veil, which formed the cap effect, with a wreath of orange blossoms, while orange blossoms caught up the shoulders of the gown, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. She wore a handsome lavalliere with turquoise setting, the gift of the groom. She was accompanied by her father, who like the ushers, was in full evening dress. The wedding party was met at the church hall by the Rev. H. P. Hobson, D. D., rector of the church, the groom and his brother Boyce Ter Bush, as groomsmen, who were in full evening dress. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and Dr. Hobson performed the double ring marriage service of the Episcopal Church, and they proceeded to the altar above the chancel where they were pronounced man and wife with the ceremony blessing. Following the church service, a reception was held at the bride's home, on Hickory street, which was beautiful in its decorations of the mountain laurel. After receiving congratulations the bride groom with their attendants occupied seats at the bride's table in the dining room, at which were seated twelve. The table was in pink and white. A large basket of pink roses was the centerpiece. The guests occupied smaller tables throughout the home. Caterer Brown and assistants served a very elaborate wedding dinner. Music was furnished during the evening by Gray's orchestra. The drum corps, of which the groom was at one time a member, serenaded the happy couple just before they left by auto for Kingston, going from there on a wedding trip known only to the young people, and later they go to their newly furnished home in New York, where the groom is engaged in business. The bride's going away gown was soft blue taffeta silk with hat to match, trimmed with pink roses. She wore a white chinchilla coat. Among the out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Merritt and daughter of Kingston; Mrs. Merritt, an aunt of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Catherwood and daughter of Middletown. The groom's father and mother and sister, also his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Ter Bush, of Greenfield, who was very lovely in a gown of lavender silk with hat to match. Many beautiful gowns were worn by the guests. The mother of the bride wore a handsome gown of white crepe de chine with silk lace trimmings, wore lavender sweet peas as her corsage bouquet, white hat with lilac flowers. Among the village guests were the School Superintendent W. F. Harris, Mrs. Harris and the teachers of the Ellenville schools, as the bride for several years has been one of Ellenville's most valued school teachers. Both bride and groom are graduates of the Ellenville High School and have a host of friends who extend to the young people very hearty congratulations with best wishes for a long, happy, prosperous life, together crowned with health. The gifts to the young people were many and beautiful, attesting true friendship of relatives and friends. The bride's gift to her attendants were gold brooches set with a stone color of the gown worn. The groom's gift to the groomsmen was gold cuff links and to the ushers gold stick pins.

Trouble in Italian Church.

Members of the congregation of the Italian Reformed Church in Newburgh have petitioned the executive board of that denomination for the dismissal of their pastor, the Rev. Pietro S. Moncada. Differences between the pastor and a missionary, Miss Argento of Rochester, were reflected in the church and the dismissal of the latter followed.

SHEDS NEW LIGHT ON TOMMY ATKINS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, June 19.—A German army surgeon who has been at the front since the beginning of the war writes:

"The English Tommy Atkins, who coolly smoked a cigarette on the operating table when his shattered limbs were patched up or amputated, and never answered questions is a thing of the past. The new Tommy is only a substitute, but this characterization of the present British soldier is not meant as a reflection upon him. It is impossible to transform men who do not possess military qualities from a long line of heritage into brilliant fighters by a simple command and a few weeks of training."

"The new Tommy Atkins is as much different from the old one. He lacks dash and chieftain. The fighting value of these poorly trained working men, clerks and farmers, who have no military experience cannot be compared with that of the brilliant English soldiers who fought in Belgium at the beginning of the war."

"I always admired the old Tommies because they had the qualities which made the real soldiers: dash, bravery, endurance and a highly developed sense of duty. When they were brought to our hospitals they never complained, no matter how badly they were hurt. They seemed to be insensible to pain and stubbornly refused to give any information if they were questioned. Every one of them seemed to be made of hickory."

"The new Tommies although brave, are very much softer. They often cry when we bandage their wounds, and talk freely. Confidence in an absolute victory of England does not inspire them, as it inspired the old professional British soldiers. Most of them only expect that the war will end in a draw and they hope that peace will come soon, because they want to return to their families and the peaceful life from which they have been dragged to fight for their country."

"Many of them are really only overgrown boys. The old Tommy knew no family and home. Fighting was his profession and there was not even a trace of sentimentality in his make-up."

"Everything has changed in the British army. The officers are no longer the dashing young aristocrats and gray headed warriors from the best families for whom their men would have fought their way through hell. These brilliant commanders have all been killed or disabled."

"The new officers, men from all walks of life, are as a rule patriotic and brave fellows, but they have no military knowledge and experience. Generally they do not know much more than the soldiers commanded by them and for this reason their men have little confidence in them and they do not possess the respect of the rank and file."

The KITCHEN CABINET

CONDIMENTS IN FOOD.

Never go to meet a sorrow
That will wait until tomorrow; Never worry over troubles that are past:
When you fill your mouth with mustard
Having thought that it was mustard,
Do not let yourself be flustered.
But be happy in the knowledge
That the smarting cannot last.
—S. E. Kizer.

In spite of Plutarch's aphorism that "hunger and salt should be man's only sauce," we are so accustomed to condiments of various kinds that the appetite fails if denied them.

Condiments and spices are used as adjuncts to foods, and in themselves supply little nourishment, their effect being mainly a stimulating character to the nerves of taste or secretion. They serve a purpose in adding flavor to insipid food and relieve monotony in diet.

In some dyspeptic conditions of the stomach the use of strong condiments like red pepper or tabasco sauce affords relief by exciting the activity of the stomach, but as to their value in prolonging health they are much overestimated.

The use of some condiments is likely to be abused, such as pepper, curry and vinegar. When used in excess, they seriously disorder the digestion. Curry powders of various sorts are prepared by mixing strong condiments, such as red pepper, ginger and turmeric and starch. People leading indolent lives and indulging too freely in the good things of the table, are tempted to aid the stomach by the use of exciting stimulants. In warm climates this is especially noted. The advice given to those not used to hot climates is to confine the food to fruit and vegetables largely, shunning nitrogenous food and condiments and alcoholic beverages.

Next to salt, which is the symbol of hospitality in the Orient and is a necessity in nearly all our foods, comes pepper, mustard, ginger and vinegar. Much difference of taste as to the use of condiments exists. The Persians like assafetida, which most of us remember with not a little unpleasantness as a disinfectant.

MATTERS HEARD IN SPECIAL TERM

A motion was argued before Judge Hasbrouck at the regular special term of the supreme court at the court house on Saturday to punish Yetta Goldberg and others for contempt of court in an action brought against them in Sullivan county by the Tirrill Gas Machine Lighting Company. The action was brought to set aside a mortgage and during the pendency of the action one of the defendants assigned it. Later the action was determined in favor of the plaintiff and the defendants were directed to assign the mortgage to the receiver who was appointed in the action, or to pay over the proceeds to him. Their failure to comply with this direction led to the motion to punish for contempt. A preliminary objection was made by John T. Cahill, who appeared specially on behalf of Solomon S. Leff of New York city, attorney for the defendants, and a motion made by Mr. Cahill to dismiss the present proceedings on the ground that the motion papers had been made returnable before Judge Hasbrouck at chambers instead of being returnable at a regular special term of the supreme court. After hearing arguments on Mr. Cahill's motion and on behalf of the machinery company on the original motion, Judge Hasbrouck directed that the defendants' attorney be allowed until Wednesday of this week to file answering affidavits and reserved decision. Joseph Myer of New York city appeared for the plaintiff and the motion.

Universal Road Machinery Co. Sues.

A hearing was had in the suit brought by the Universal Road Machinery Company of this city against the Brady Oltarsch Construction Company, on a motion on behalf of the machinery company directing the construction company to show cause why sureties on the latter company's bond in a replevin action should not be prevented from justifying. In August, 1915, the Universal Company sold a crusher plant to the construction company, which erected it on the top of Hook Mountain, where it has been engaged in crushing stone. A series of promissory notes was given in payment of the crusher but the notes have not been paid and some have been allowed to go to protest. The Universal Company therefore brought an action to recover on the notes, and that action is now pending in the supreme court in Ulster county. The defense to that action, the construction company claims that the machinery does not come up to the guarantee of the Universal Company, that it is unsatisfactory and that by reason of the operations conducted with the crusher the construction company has been damaged $5,000. After learning that their crusher had been so unsatisfactory, the Universal Company began replevin proceedings in Rockland county and the crusher was seized by the sheriff, but the construction company claims the sheriff has no right to seize it and is prepared to furnish a bond in order to recover and retain possession. Decision was reserved by Judge Hasbrouck. Alfred D. Van Buren appeared for the Universal Road Machinery Company and the motion; Joseph & Alvin T. Sapruski of New York city appeared for the construction company and opposed.

Inventor Received No Cash.

A hearing was had in the case of Henry F. Granger against the Indian Splint, Inc., the Traders' National Bank of Rochester and others, on a motion to change the place of trial of the action from Orange to Monroe county. There are six defendants, three of whom are individuals, the remaining defendants being corporations. The action is brought for the appointment of a receiver of one corporation and an accounting by the three individual defendants as officers of the three defendant corporations. The plaintiff at one time owned the Indian Splint, Inc., but it was reorganized some time ago. On the reorganization he received a minority of the stock of the new corporation but no cash. He is not in control now. The amount involved in the suit is $150,000. The defendants claim that all the transactions occurred in Monroe county and they have 25 witnesses, all residents of that county. Mr. Granger, who has resided in Orange county for the past year and a half, claims the transactions occurred in New York county and he is unable to pay the expenses of his witnesses, all of whom will come willingly to Orange county but will not go willingly to Monroe county. He has 17 witnesses, including one resident of Shandaken. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision. Lewis, McKay, McMillan & Bown of Rochester appeared for the defendants and the motion; Mark H. Ellison of New York city appeared for the plaintiff and opposed.

Suit For Damage to Furniture.

A motion also was made to change the place of trial of the action brought by Nic H. DeGraff against Louis R. Hunter and others from Orange county to Oswego county. The plaintiff is superintendent of the Borden milk plant at Middletown and formerly occupied a similar position at Oswego. When he moved to Middletown he entrusted his furniture to the defendants to remove it, and he claims they damaged it to the extent of $275. The defendants, on whose behalf the motion was made, claim all the witnesses reside at Oswego, but DeGraff claims he has fourteen witnesses who reside in Middletown, including himself and the night foreman, and if both are required to travel to Oswego to attend the trial the Middletown plant will be without any superintendent during their absence. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision. Torrey A. Ball of Oswego appeared for the defendants and the motion; A. C. N. Thompson of Middletown appeared for the plaintiff and opposed.

Orders Granted.

Orders were granted in the following matters: Marietta B. Taber against Caroline Brewster and others. Order directing distribution of funds arising from sale in partition action granted. Hon. C. Meach Woolsey for the plaintiff. Leo Clinton against Melba Clinton and others. Order directing payment of moneys by the county treasurer granted. Hector Sears for the petitioner.

Benjamin Antonowaky against Chevrolet Motor Company. Motion for a bill of particulars granted. William R. Hill of New York city for the defendant.

James D. Wright against Myra Winston and others. Action in mortgage foreclosure. Offer appointing John T. Cahill guardian ad litem of infant defendants granted. Virgil B. Van Wagoner for the plaintiff.

Mildred E. Todd against James C. Todd. Order for service of summons by publication granted. Milton O. Auchmoody for the plaintiff.

Albert Baxter against Woolsey W. Baxter and others. Action in mortgage foreclosure. Order appointing A. D. Lent referee to compute the amount due granted. DeWitt W. Osterlander for the plaintiff.

NATIONAL SAFETY IS NEED OF HOUR

The Rev. F. W. Moot Preached to Large Gathering at Ponckhockie Union Church Sunday Night—Sensible Preparedness Not an Acceptance of Militarism.

The Junior Order of United American Mechanics and the Daughters of America attended in a body the services of Ponckhockie Union Church Sunday evening. The church was decorated with American flags and flowers and the large audience taxed its seating capacity. The pastor, Rev. F. W. Moot, delivered a patriotic sermon on "America's Perils," and said in part:

"America is the greatest nation on the face of the earth. We sometimes boast that it shall live forever, but it would be well for us to note the perils of other nations and avoid if possible their destiny. America with all her wealth and resources has her perils."

"We are inclined to an excessive self-confidence. Other nations have been many centuries reaching their present power, but we have advanced to first rank in a hundred years. We point to our victories and accessions. Many in recent years have boasted, 'We can defeat any nation on the earth.'"

"But the war in Europe has brought a new vision to many thoughtful Americans. War is not as it was in 1776 or in 1848 or 1864. Then it was simply guns and men. Today it is one of the most intricate, scientific arts of the age—an art of which we Americans know little. We do not want war, but we should know more of the science of self-defense, and should not be over-confident of our superiority or our national perpetuity."

"Moderate, sensible preparedness does not mean a waste of money or an acceptance of militarism. It is only meeting one of America's perils."

"This country is in danger of a deficient Americanism. People from all nations have come to us and we have become the melting pot of the world. These have come faster than we could truly Americanize them and, therefore, in our large cities we have our little 'Italy,' or 'Russia.' Scattered throughout the country are many with a revolutionary spirit. The burning of the American flag in New York city was a demonstration of the non-American spirit in our midst. Our puritan stock is becoming exhausted because native Americans will not rear children, while the foreign born have large families. If we die childless we hand the country to their children."

"America is in peril of losing the lofty ideals of her founders who placed the country and the flag before their personal feelings or success. Many today love ease or pleasure or getting rich more than the flag. While we are eating, drinking and enjoying ourselves the hand may write upon the wall, 'Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting.' Our national safety calls for our most consecrated patriotism. Love, cherish and follow the flag."

Patriotic hymns were sung and solos rendered by Mrs. J. B. Osterhout and Mr. Dawe.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Do you believe in signs?" asked the street corner politician.

"Why?" asked his friend.

"Nothing, only there was a magnificent rainbow in the sky following the second rain storm on Sunday."

"Speaking of the shower on Sunday?" replied his friend "I see that you believe in preparedness."

"How is that?" queried the politician.

"Why in spite of the fact that Sunday morning was a beautiful sunny day I saw you going to church lugging a rain coat and an umbrella."

"Well to be honest" confessed the politician "I did not expect that heavy shower to spring up. The truth is I had borrowed the rain coat and umbrella while visiting a friend who lived near the church, and was on my way to his house with them before going to church."

He continued "The shower, however, proved a good thing for the city just as services were concluded in the churches, and as a result it caught practically every member of the congregation unprepared as it was such a bright cheerful morning said he and he started back downtown with instructions to also bring armed with the customary umbrella a box of matches while he was out. They had carried the past week, and he returned with the box of so a large number of the church members remained in the shelter of the church while friends nearby who had telephones in their houses telephoned for them to the various taxicab companies to send taxicabs.

Well cheer up the weather bureau has promised clear weather for this week.

But don't forget to have an umbrella handy as that is not the first promise that had been broken.

"Are you absent minded?" asked the street corner politician in an effort to change the conversation from the weather into another channel. "No I cannot say that I am" replied his friend.

"Well anyway I heard a good story today of an absent minded professional man. It seems that his wife sent him down town to get some toilet soap, and some other articles. When he got back home he had the other articles, but had forgotten the soap."

"I'll go right back and get it" said he and he started back downtown with instructions to also bring

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, June 19.—Official circles—with the possible exception of President Wilson and Secretaries Lansing and Baker—this afternoon consider war with Mexico inevitable. General Carranza is expected to force the issue within the next few days, possibly within the next few hours. This government has sent its reply to the Carranza note of May 22 in which he insolently demanded the withdrawal of the American punitive expedition to Mexico City. It is a flat refusal to comply, and in addition warns the de facto government against any overt act.

The administration has asked congress specifically to authorize the use of the organized militia in Mexico. This action, congressional leaders declare, will be construed in Mexico as tantamount to a declaration of war. They declare that it simply emphasizes the extreme seriousness of the situation.

President Wilson and the men closest to him deny any change in their plans. They insist that they are as much opposed to complete intervention today as ever. But they admit that every preparation is being made for any contingency no matter how serious.

All advice from the border tell of constantly increasing bitterness between the Americans and Mexicans.

So far there has been no open outbreak but officials will not be surprised if it occurs at any time.

The mobilization of the National Guard is being rushed at all points. In an emergency certain units could be started for the front by tomorrow night. By next Sunday officials say, practically all of the force will be ready for duty.

SOCIETY NOTES.

There will be a dance at the Kingston Point Casino Tuesday evening, June 20, given by the Loyal Friends' Aid Society. Steve Miller's orchestra will furnish music. A small admission will be charged. All are cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Fred Reich, Sr., and daughter, Minnie, were in Poughkeepsie on Sunday attending the wedding of her nephew, Gerald Koenig, to Miss Eva Jones. After a wedding tour to Washington, D. C., the happy couple will make their home in Poughkeepsie, where a newly furnished home awaits them at No. 174 Church street.

On Thursday evening past Miss Grace Kampf was tendered a pleasant surprise by a number of her friends. An enjoyable time was had by all. During the evening Miss Ethel Stalter rendered several vocal selections. The presence of Leo Daum was greatly missed as he is an exceptionally fine soloist. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Among those present were the Misses Grace Kampf, Ethel Stalter, Anna Cohen, Susie Getzler. All declared Miss Kampf a royal entertainer.

Mrs. Clarence Brigham celebrated her wedding anniversary at her home on Wall street, on Friday afternoon, by giving an auction bridge party. Seven tables were in play. On behalf of the Colony Bridge Club, and other friends, Mrs. Hewitt Boice presented Mrs. Brigham with a handsome cut glass vase. Mr. Harry LeFevre on behalf of the Wednesday Card Club, presented the hostess with a dainty electric boudoir lamp. In addition to the games, Mrs. Sahler winning first prize; Mrs. Archie Winter, second prize and Mrs. Ida Brower consolation prize; delicious refreshments were enjoyed. Mrs. Stowe of Highland was the guest of honor. The occasion was an especially delightful event.

A very pleasant surprise party was tendered Miss Anna Bruck in honor of her birthday on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael M. Kelsch, No. 105 Hunter street. The evening was delightfully spent with games and music. Especially fine was the work of the Carter sisters, who sang and played a number of musical selections. At a late hour elaborate refreshments were served and the party broke up after wishing Miss Bruck many happy anniversaries. Among those present were Mrs. Frank Dorr and daughter, Lillian; Miss Clara Kelsch; Mrs. Elizabeth Kuehn; Edward Kuehn; Mrs. L. Henry; Mrs. S. Longendyke and daughter, Hilda; Mrs. Conrad Schuler; Mrs. R. Carter and the Misses Ethel and Lillian Carter, and Miss Stella Mathela.

Concert Friday Evening.

While the music lovers of Kingston have heard Miss Buntins play, will hail with delight the announcement that, having just graduated from the New England Conservatory of Music, she, together with a class mate from the conservatory, Miss Glenn, will give a concert at the chapel of the Roundout Presbyterian Church on the evening of Friday of this week. They will be assisted by Miss Virginia Los Kamp, the contralto soloist of the church. Several two piano-forte numbers will make the program of unusual interest.

Ter Bush-Fredd.

St. John's Episcopal Church, Ellenville, was the scene of a very beautiful wedding Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock when the marriage of Vivian J. Fredd, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fredd, of Ellenville, and Frank A. Ter Bush of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ter Bush, of Greenfield, took place. The church was elaborately decorated in its decorations of the mountain laurel in pink, white and green, a fitting setting for the rainbow wedding which was carried out to perfection. One hundred guests were in attendance and for these seats had been reserved and then the church was opened to all village friends, of which there was a large attendance. At 7 o'clock, Miss Nellie Hobson in cap and gown, organist, took her place at the organ and rendered music until the approach of the wedding party, when a hush fell upon the waiting assemblage and the first strains of Lohegrin's Wedding March was heard. The ushers, Wendell DeWitt, Floyd Wright, Paul Misner and Ward Wilklow, were in the lead, followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Mary Hartwig and Miss Ethel Ter Bush, sister of the groom. Miss Hartwig was lovely in a gown of green tulle with net and lace trimmings, while Miss Ter Bush wore a gown of yellow tulle with net and lace, each wore a large white picture hat of georgette crepe and lace straw, and carried baskets of the pink laurel tied with moline streamers to match gowns. Then came the maids of honor, the two sisters of the bride, dainty and sweet, the Misses Mabel and Addie Fredd, lovely in their quaint gowns of white net, the skirts ruffled with hemstitched net and elaborately trimmed with blue and pink ribbons and forget-me-not flowers in pink and blue, wearing quaint poke bonnets, small of lace straw with flowers of pink and blue forget-me-nots and carried baskets of pink laurel. Following came the bride, very beautiful in a real lace point de alencon, with real lace point de alencon, with brocade satin court train, wearing a tulle veil, which formed the cap effect, with a wreath of orange blossoms, while orange blossoms caught up the shoulders of the gown, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. She wore a handsome lavalliere with a quince setting, the gift of the groom. She was accompanied by her father, who like the ushers, was in full evening dress. The wedding party was met at the church rail by the Rev. H. P. Hobson, D. D., rector of the church, the groom and his brother Boyce Ter Bush, as groomsmen, who were in full evening dress. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and Dr. Hobson performed the double ring marriage service of the Episcopal Church, and they proceeded to the altar above the chancel where they were pronounced man and wife with the ceremony blessing. Following the church service, a reception was held at the bride's home, on Hickory street, which was beautiful in its decorations of the mountain laurel. After receiving congratulations the bride groom with their attendants occupied seats at the bride's table in the dining room, at which were seated twelve. The table was in pink and white. A large basket of pink roses was the centerpiece. The guests occupied smaller tables throughout the home. Caterer Brown and assistants served a very elaborate wedding dinner. Music was furnished during the evening by Gray's orchestra. The drum corps, of which the groom was at one time a member, serenaded the happy couple just before they left by auto for Kingston, going from there on a wedding trip known only to the young people, and later they go to their newly furnished home in New York, where the groom is engaged in business. The bride's going away gown was soft blue tulle with pink roses. She wore a white chinchilla coat. Among the out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Merritt and daughter of Kingston; Mrs. Merritt, an aunt of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Catherwood and daughter of Middletown. The groom's father and mother and sister, also his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Ter Bush, of Greenfield, who was very lovely in a gown of lavender silk with hat to match. Many beautiful gowns were worn by the guests. The mother of the bride wore a handsome gown of white crepe de chine with silk lace trimmings, wore lavender sweet peas as her corsage bouquet, white hat with lilac flowers. Among the village guests were the School Superintendent W. F. Harris, Mrs. Harris and the teachers of the Ellenville schools, as the bride for several years has been one of Ellenville's most valued school teachers. Both bride and groom are graduates of the Ellenville High School and have a host of friends who extend to the young people very hearty congratulations with best wishes for a long, happy, prosperous life, together crowned with health. The gifts to the young people were many and beautiful, attesting true friendship of relatives and friends. The bride's gift to her attendants were gold brooches set with a stone color of the gown worn. The groom's gift to the groomsmen was gold cuff links and to the ushers gold stick pins.

Trouble in Italian Church.

Members of the congregation of the Italian Reformed Church in Newburgh have petitioned the executive board of that denomination for the dismissal of their pastor, the Rev. Pietro S. Moncada. Differences between the pastor and a missionary, Miss Argento of Rochester, were reflected in the church and the dismissal of the latter followed.

Sam says:

"One day a pal o' mine handed me his package of LIBERTY Long Cut an' I loaded my old pipe and smoked up on it.

"Pretty soon I began to throw back my shoulders an' wish a grizzly bear'd come along so's I could choke him to death an' tear his hide off.

"Gee, man! You could have smelt my rubber heels scorchin' when I hot-footed it down the street that night to plank down my nickel for a package o' LIBERTY."

LIBERTY hits the spot in a grown-up man because it's made of that rare old Kentucky Long Leaf—and nothing else.

All long, clean, ripe, perfect leaves—no short, broken ones—no hard stems. It's tobacco—just tobacco.

LIBERTY is aged from three to five years to bring out the ripe, snappy flavor—the smoothness and the rich juiciness. That's why it makes such a tasty, solid, lasting chew—why it gives you a long, full-flavored, satisfying smoke.

Carranza Must Decide Upon Course and Mobilization of National Guard will be Stayed Awaiting Next Move by Constitutionalist Chief.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, June 19.—Carranza either must back down completely or the United States will itself pacify Mexico. This is the reason why the bulk of the national guard of the various states is today under orders for border service. President Wilson also has under consideration a call for volunteers which will be withheld until it is found out just what Carranza means to do. While officials insisted again today that there is no immediate intention of "armed intervention" in Mexico, in the same breath they declared that American interests will be protected and American rights will be defended at any cost.

With the political conventions out of the way, administration officials declared that there would be no further fooling with the Mexicans. Carranza knows the position of this government. He knows, officials say, just what the intentions of the United States are. But there is great opposition to him in the ranks of his own followers, and they believe he has deliberately precipitated the present crisis in order to either prove to the Mexican people that he cannot force the withdrawal of the Americans or to unite them all against a common enemy in the hope that by so doing, if peace eventually is restored, either through some form of mediation by other Latin-American nations or through a surrender to the Americans, he will benefit.

Officials here made no effort to conceal their belief that the Mexican situation again is charged with dynamite. They realize that the anti-American feeling has swept throughout the length of the southern republic. But they declare that there need be no serious apprehension regarding the outcome. General Pershing and his men are in position to take care of themselves against any attack by any Mexican force that could be concentrated against them at any given point. Punston has gathered his forces at strategic positions where they can be available for any attempted invasion.

The situation, the officials of the war department say, is well in hand and they await the outcome of the next few days with entire confidence. All of the vast machinery of the war department was in operation early today to bring the National Guard of the country into mobilization camps for Mexican service. For more than three months now Carranza's helplessness in dealing with the chaos and disorder in the country south of the Rio Grande has pointed to intervention as the inevitable result, despite the president's known and oft-repeated opposition to such a course.

The latest reported demand of Carranza was that unless the American troops were withdrawn within a week he would consider a state of war existed between the United States and Mexico. Official confirmation of this demand was expected, although not yet forthcoming. It would constitute the final precipitation of real aggressive action by the United States in restoring order in Mexico. The sending of armed forces to Mexico City and Tampico to protect Americans there from the violence of the long-hostile populace was one of the chief problems under discussion in military circles today. The many Americans concentrated in these two centers as well as elsewhere in Mexico, would be wholly at the mercy of the Mexicans should General Carranza carry out his threat to break relations altogether. These guards would be composed in part at least of the ever ready marines. Twenty-five hundred of these troops already are at Haiti and the Dominican Republic within easy striking distance of the east coast of Mexico should their services be demanded.

It was expected that by nightfall thousands of the National Guardsmen ordered out would be in their concentration camps awaiting further orders. In arms, ammunition and equipment, the department is ready to supply any force that may be raised under any possible emergency. There would not be any delay for individual equipment should President Wilson be forced to call for volunteers numbering several times the 100,000 guardsmen expected to be brought into service by the latest order.

While the war department is the scene of most activity the navy department has not been inactive. Sixteen additional war craft today either are on their way to Mexican waters or about to set sail. To the east coast are bound the transport Dixie from Philadelphia, the scout cruiser Salem from Guantanamo, the gunboat Dolphin and the transport Hancock from Santo Domingo. In addition to these, three destroyers from six now steaming from Dominican waters to Key West will be despatched first probably to Tampico. These little craft are particularly effective for Mexican duty. Their light draft permits them to enter into harbors not accessible to bigger vessels and the sight of their shining guns never fails to cool Mexican hot-heads. To Admiral Winslow, commander in chief of the Fifth fleet, has been left the selection of four destroyers and five other small vessels to augment his command already off the Mexican west coast.

Improving Hardwood Floors. Hardwood floors can be made much more hygienic by an underlying coat of linseed oil. Even this, however, lacks the special compound, linexyn, commonly found in linoleum and now known to be a great deterrent of disease.

WATER CUT A WAY THROUGH MOUNTAIN

Delaware Water Gap, says a bulletin of the United States Geological Survey, is a vertical walled trench, 1,200 feet deep, in the narrow ridge of Kittatinny Mountain, through which the Delaware river flows. Did the river find this gateway ready made through the mountain or did it cut its way through the hard mountain ledges and, if so, how could it accomplish its mighty task? By the study of geology of the region the following history has been worked out: After the rocks had been formed, later by layer, as sediments in the sea they were folded and tipped on end and worn down by nature's forces to a gentle surface, across which Delaware river flowed to the sea. The top of Kittatinny range was then part of this surface and the adjacent area that is now lowlands stood nearly at the same level. Elevation of the land caused the Delaware and its tributaries to wear away the softer rocks and leave the harder rock standing in relief as ridges. The hard rocks that compose Kittatinny range formed rapids in the Delaware where it crossed them, but the river gradually cut this barrier away. It is easy to believe that streams can remove soft shale and limestone in their course, but it may seem at first thought impossible that water alone can cut away hard rock. The water, however, is only a medium, for the cutting is done by the sand, gravel and boulders carried by the stream, just as emery fed to a saw cuts through the hardest rock or steel. Large round holes that were ground into hard rocks by the churning pebbles at the bottom of small falls have been left as "pot-holes" on the sides of gorges as the evidences of such stream cutting. So the Delaware, concentrating its power on a small section of the hard rock of Kittatinny range, was able, during a long period, to cut the gap through the rocky barrier.

ELLENVILLE

Ellenville, June 19.—An important notice which will be of much interest is the announcement that beginning Monday, June 26th, the employees of the Ulster Knife Works will receive a further increase of wages of five per cent, together with an extra allowance of two hours per week, or equal to about 8 per cent increase.

John Moore of Brooklyn and daughter, Mrs. Gibson, of New York, attended the funeral of William Whately on Friday and were accompanied home by Mrs. Whately, who will spend some time with her niece, Mrs. Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Ellsworth of New York, who were here for the Ter Bush-Fredd wedding, remained over Sunday with their grandmother, Mrs. Ellsworth, and daughter, Miss Louise Ellsworth.

Invitations have been issued for the reception to be given Mr. and Mrs. James L. Laidlaw, at the Wayside Inn, Tuesday evening. Announcement has been made to Ellenville friends of the graduating honors given Miss Marie McDonnell of Cleveland, Ohio, formerly of Ellenville. Miss McDonnell graduates from the Immaculate Conception Academy, Mt. Marie, Canton, Ohio, this week. On Monday night Miss McDonnell gives a reading from Romeo and Juliet, Act II, Scene II, at the class day exercises. The whole program is Shakespearean. Miss McDonnell has her home with her aunt, Mrs. R. W. Gallagher, at Cleveland, Ohio, and this week Mrs. Gallagher spends with her friends, Mrs. William Morgan and Miss Laura Manette, at their home in Canton, Ohio, to be present at the week's commencement.

Mrs. O. B. Seaman of Oberlin, Ohio, and niece, Lile S. Taylor, who have been spending a year in school there, have returned home for the summer vacation.

William Kerr of New York has been in Ellenville for a short stay, a guest at the Mitchell House.

NATIONAL GUARD READY TO RESPOND

New York Will Contribute 17,329 Men to the Army and These Are in Readiness For Marching Orders.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, June 19.—Seventeen thousand three hundred and twenty-nine members of the National Guard of New York state, the average strength as estimated in March of the present year, are awaiting definite orders to move to the Mexican border. Each separate brigade and company is already either at their respective armories or their commands or in close touch with their commanding officers. Until the word comes to move, all of the militiamen must either remain at their armories or receive permission to absent themselves.

At National Guard headquarters here today, Lieutenant-Colonel and Assistant Adjutant General E. V. Howard was the acting commandant due to the absence at Peekskill of his superior officers. Telegrams and telephone calls from all over the state were sent to him asking for the latest information. The wires and calls came from officers of the militia who desired to know when the call to move their respective commands would be forthcoming.

Several high officers of the guard, including Col. Wolf of Buffalo were in consultation with Col. Howard this morning. The fact that coast artillery commands will not respond to the call, these organizations having been expected, leaves Captain Lorillard Spencer, military secretary to Governor Whitman, at home. He is the commanding officer of a coast artillery company and retained his place as an active line officer when he accepted the post of military secretary.

The strength of the National Guard of New York state is comprised of the following organizations:

First Battalion, Signal Corps, 178, excluding officers; 22nd Corps of Engineers, 100; First and Second Battalions of Engineers, Field Staff, 488; First Cavalry, 287; Squadron A, 97; Machine Gun Troop, 68; First Field Artillery, 547; Second Field Artillery, 1,179; Eighth Coast Defense Command, 542; Ninth Coast Command (strength not given); Thirtieth Coast Command (strength not given). Total of coast commands, 1,920.

The infantry commands are as follows:

First Infantry, 915; Second Infantry, (strength not given); Third Infantry, 984; Tenth Infantry, 578; Twelfth Infantry, (strength not given); Fourteenth Infantry, 568; Twenty-third Infantry, 530; Forty-seventh Infantry, 510; Sixty-fifth Infantry, (strength not given); Sixty-ninth Infantry, 906; Seventy-first Infantry, 567; Seventy-fourth Infantry, (strength not given).

The number of officers and men in the medical department is placed at 757.

A summary shows the number of militiamen to be: Total staff department, 808; Signal Corps, 128; Corps of Engineers, 488; cavalry, 1,132; field artillery and A. Rests the Speed King.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 19.—All doubt as to Datto Resta's right to be heralded the American speed king was dispelled today. After winning the 300 mile race at Indianapolis and Chicago this year the daring Italian engaged in a private duel with his fellow countryman, Ralph de Palma, and won easily. Three races were held—ten, twenty-four and fifty miles. Resta's Peugeot swept home winner in all. In the first he averaged 84 miles an hour, in the second 108 and in the third 101. Thirty thousand persons saw the races.

ARTHUR'S WOOING

By ETHEL HOLMES

Jeannette Wild was an incorrigible flirt. Perhaps it was not her fault; perhaps it was. There was something about her that attracted men, whether it was intentional or not. A pleasant smile hovered about her lips; there was a sparkle in her eye. When she said anything droll she had a way of cocking her head on one side, like a bird, that was very attractive. Jeannette was an innocent girl in every respect, and no word of scandal was ever spoken against her.

But her flirtations were very annoying to her mother. In the first place, her daughter was too young to make an intelligent choice of a husband; in the second, she had not finished her education. When she was nineteen years old, having become entangled with three suitors, her mother resolved upon drastic measures. The spring was coming on, and the good lady, dreading the advantages that summer possessed for love affairs, resolved to take her daughter where a man could not get near enough to fall in love with her.

Mrs. Wild had no confidence in any place of abode that was not isolated. A land fortress would need a moat, which was impracticable. No place would do unless surrounded by water. So an island it must be.

In Casco bay, on the Maine coast, are a number of islands. In the center of one of these islands is a cottage. Mrs. Wild rented this cottage with a view to removing her family and servants there. But, alas, it is difficult for women to get on without men. Mrs. Wild dared not live on the island without one. Besides, she needed one to run her motorboat. There was another reason for a man's presence. Mrs. Wild desired to prevent any of her daughter's suitors from landing on her retreat, and she needed some one strong enough to keep them off.

Mrs. Wild advertised for a person to fill this requirement. Several young men answered her advertisement, but the lady did not engage any of them. She waited till an elderly one applied for the job and engaged him.

John Doolan had white hair and a white beard. But he seemed to be quite strong and said that he was perfectly able to hold the dock against all comers. He went to the island a couple of days before the family to make preparations. When they arrived all was in order for their reception.

As Mrs. Wild had anticipated, they had not been at their summer home long before one of Jeannette's suitors appeared at the dock. He was refused a landing by John Doolan. He sailed around to another part of the island, but John was there with a gun to receive him. Mrs. Wild was so pleased with this action of John's that she gave him a five dollar gold piece. Soon after this another boat appeared, and a handsome young fellow in yachting costume was about to step out on to the landing when John ordered him off. He poked a card at his opposer, but John said that if he were the president himself he could not come ashore. Argument having failed, the visitor tried bribery. John proved incorruptible. There was nothing for the yachtman to do but sail away.

Mrs. Wild, to whom John reported all these noble acts of defense, was delighted. On several occasions he brought the cards that were given him to his mistress. Some of the men who had left them she knew, and some were strangers to her. It made no difference who they were. She had determined to keep men away from her daughter for that summer, and having secured the services of a man who was capable and trustworthy, she gave herself no concern. She declared that it was the first summer she had felt easy about Jeannette since she was fourteen years old.

But one day a thunderbolt came out of a clear sky. The fond mother while taking a stroll over her island, walking through a thick wood heard voices near her. She listened and recognized Jeannette's voice. Then came a man's deeper tones. The latter sounded much like John Doolan.

Could it be that the flirt, deprived of association with men, had cast her thoughts about the old servitor? The suspicion brought a shock to the doting mother.

Advancing toward the sounds, she peeped through a break in the leaves, and there, sitting on a log with their backs to her, were John and Jeannette. John's arm around Jeannette's waist.

Mrs. Wild tore through the underbrush like a fury. Hearing the noise of breaking brush behind them, the culprits jumped to their feet, turned and confronted the angry mother.

While she was delivering a tirade of reproaches John pulled off his white beard and stood revealed as the most persistent of Jeannette's suitors.

"Woe is me, Mrs. Wild," he said with head bent low. "I confess myself a great sinner. Jeannette wrote me that you were to remove her here, and I, seeing your advertisement for a defender, applied for the place in the uniform of a veteran. I have performed my duties to the best of my ability."

"It's all right, mamma," pleaded Jeannette. "Your bringing me here has brought me to a decision. I love Arthur and will marry no one else. His wooing has charmed me."

Since Arthur was an eligible young man with a fortune Mrs. Wild made a virtue of necessity, forgave them and consented to an early marriage.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

The high school regents examinations will all begin at nine a. m. or one p. m. sharp, and drastic measures will be taken to see that the building is completely quiet at the time.

All regents marks in a subject will be placed on the bulletin board as soon as all the papers on that subject have been corrected. For the benefit of the graduating class, their papers will be corrected first and any returns posted on same colored paper may be understood to concern members of the senior class.

Due to the great amount of clerical work necessary during this week, it will be impossible for the teachers or the office to answer any telephone calls regarding marks. In fact an order has been given for them not to do so.

Senior Day Assembly.

The last day of school for the graduating class was fittingly celebrated by unusual exercises in their honor in the morning assembly.

The exercises were commenced by a ringing response to "Come Thou Almighty King," and this was followed by an old favorite "The Marmalade," that was sung by the senior class alone. The hall was next made to resound with the rendering of another long famed school song "The Bugler."

Following this was the presentation of the athletic letters, which were awarded to all the varsity boys and girls on the various teams this year. The president of the Athletic Association, John Joyce, officiated.

The members of the girl's basketball team of the past season, which had a no defeat season and a consequent championship of the central Hudson, were awarded a maroon "K" of the simple block type, and they were given out in the following order: Faith Safford, manager; Josephine Schmid, captain; Ruth Humphrey, Lillian Herdman, Helen Wood, Margaret Riseley, Anetta Van Bramer and Helen Weber.

The football team members received a large "K" in the following order: Charles Sibley, manager; Watson Wheeler, captain; John Joyce, Harold Johnson, Earl Gill, John Palisi, Raymond Terwilliger, James Riseley, Kenneth Sullivan and Sherman Hasbrouck. The members of the team not present who earned their "K's" were Hallinan, Peleman, Gregory, Bernstein and McAuliffe.

The basketball players received a small red "K" similar to the girls' letters. They were awarded to John Church, manager; John Palisi, captain; Harold Johnson, James Kierman, Chester Tolson, James Riseley and Louis Silverman.

The baseball team also received large white "K's" and these went to John Dwyer, manager; Raymond Terwilliger, captain; William McAuliffe, pitcher; Edmund Relyea, Watson Wheeler, Louis Silverman, Harold Johnson, James Kierman, Samuel Peyer and Nelson Miles.

There were two athletes who made all three teams, and they were Harold Johnson and John Joyce, although John's modesty would not permit him to present himself with more than one letter. A remark to this effect from Mr. Moulton, and a great cheer from the student body expressed no more good feeling than is due this quiet fellow, Joyce, a three letter man, present president of the A. A., and next year's captain of the basketball team.

When all the letters had been given out, the school sang "There's a Great and Happy Country," and then Mr. Michael made a few complimentary remarks regarding a picture to be taken of the students in assembly, and which he went on to state would be presented to Commissioner Finley along with a publication concerning the history of Kingston's schools. While the young people were waiting for the photographer to induce "the bird" to show itself in the lens of the camera, they sang two more good old school songs, "Sailing," and "When All the World is Young."

As a final number the seniors sang "Hall and Farewell."

Large Sale of "Maroons."

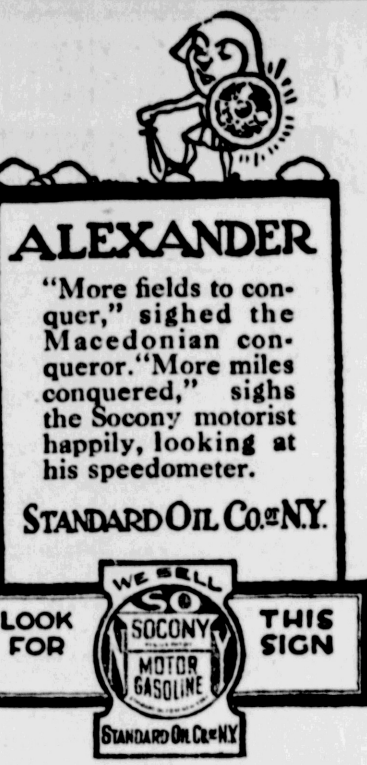

The senior year book was put on sale at noon Friday and inside of a half hour the merits of the volume were proven by the fact that the first three hundred copies had all been sold and at afternoon dismissal enough more were disposed of to make a total of more than five hundred and fifty sold.

The staff of the Maroon was: Fred B. Van Etten, editor in chief; assistant editor, George W. Greene; athletic editors, Raymond Terwilliger and Wilson LePevre; for G. A. A., Ruth A. Humphrey; literary editors, Edward Van Winkle, Beth Osborne, Mary Donovan and Kathleen Snyder; art editor, LeRoy Port; school editors, Jessie Barton and Goldie Bloom. The business manager, Samuel Peyer and the assistant business managers, Alfred Schmid and Joseph H. Hazen. The publication does the staff credit. It contains about 100 pages, with a soft paper cover and is about seven by ten inches in size.

Senior Minstrels.

An abundance of jokes and personals were offered the audience, and the seniors were so desirous of hitting everyone while they were at it, that they occasionally had to stretch their efforts more than the audience could appreciate.

The solos were excellently rendered and were as follows: "Memories" by Geoffrey Strugnell; "My Mother's Rosary" by Ruth Vignes; "Sweet Elene" by Ida Lazarus; "The Kid is Clever" by Helen Wood; "On a Dreamy Summer's Night" by John Palisi, who received an elegant bouquet of rhubarb, bananas and cabbage.

The chorus also sang "On the Rock Road to Dublin," and a quartet of Church, Strugnell, Haines and Gillette rendered "Sleep Kentucky Babe."

Everyone had cause to be in a cheerful mood by the time the minstrels were over and a large proportion of the audience joined in the dancing that was then started in the gymnasium.

YELLOW-BILLED CUCKOO
(Coccyzus americanus)

Length, about twelve inches. The yellow lower part of the bill distinguishes this bird from its near relative, the black-billed cuckoo.

Range: Breeds generally in the United States and southern Canada; winters in South America.

Habits and economic status: This bird lives on the edges of woodland, in groves, orchards, parks, and even in shaded village streets. It is sometimes known as rain crow, because its very characteristic notes are supposed to foretell rain. The cuckoo has sly, furtive ways as it moves among the bushes or flits from tree to tree, and is much more often heard than seen. Unlike its European relative, it does not lay its eggs in other birds' nests, but builds a nest of its own. This is, however, a rather crude and shabby affair—hardly more than a platform of twigs sufficient to hold the greenish eggs. The cuckoo is extremely useful because of its insectivorous habits, especially as it shows a marked preference for the hairy caterpillars, which few birds eat. One stomach that was examined contained 250 American tent caterpillars; another, 217 fall webworms. In places where tent caterpillars are abundant they seem to constitute a large portion of the food of this and the black-billed cuckoo.

No Commendation.

"You seem to think a great deal of that candidate."

"How do you arrive at that conclusion?" asked Senator Borghum.

"Why, you have always supported him."

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 19, 1916.

It is downright funny to see the people and newspapers who pretend an opposition to a presidential candidate coming from the United States Supreme Court bench worry to such extent over the politics of a successor to Justice Hughes's place. If ability and fitness were only to be considered, former President Taft's selection would be a foregone conclusion, but President Wilson has not always been free to base his judicial appointments on the two qualities mentioned. It is further urged that a majority of the justices are members of the Republican party, so the important part partisan politics plays in our highest court is evident. The President elevated his Attorney General, Mr. McReynolds, to the Supreme Court, where he is now discredited from sitting in many of the important government actions before that tribunal. Attorney General Gregory's voice was chief among the few raised in behalf of Brandeis, but it is probable and proper that the Department of Justice will not figure in the consideration of this latest appointment. Senator Walsh of Montana is among those mentioned but the possibility of the loss of a senatorship handicaps any claim in this direction. Finding a man in the Democratic party who anywhere near approaches Hughes in legal ability, to say nothing of standing through the country, is a pretty difficult proposition for any appointing power. It will be interesting to watch where the executive lightning strikes.

Considerable space has been given to the flagpole which one Joseph T. Lilly proposes to erect at Northport, L. I., for the flying of Old Glory and the newspapers have been full of articles about "the highest flagpole in the world" and its dimensions. As a matter of fact, the pole is 165 feet long, sets in a base of 15 feet of concrete and will fly a flag 35 by 50 feet when erected. All very gratifying, of course, to Mr. Lilly and his admirers. The rude shock comes out of Egypt—Massachusetts. From that place a correspondent writes to tell all New York newspaperdom of its ignorance regarding flags and flag staffs, for at Dreamworld, Thomas W. Lawson's estate there, the latter has a flagstaff 172 feet above the ground, in 18 feet of concrete and flying a flag 50 by 75 feet, which is something of a no-trumper over the Lilly's. The last named has only one point of superiority over the Dreamworld flagstaff, a weather vane, but that is never needed by Lawson, as full page advertisements always tell the way the wind is blowing in that quarter. After all it is only a matter of comparison and in patriotic importance these flagpoles are less than the service button on a National Guardsman's coat. It is largely vanity that prompts such attempts at the superlative both at Egypt and Northport, but then there's no altitude too lofty for the American flag.

The action of the board of governors of the Automobile Club of America in retaining the J. G. White Management Corporation to act as operating manager of the club marks a new departure which indicates the general trend toward specialization. The White Management Corporation is an organized efficiency bureau and it will operate the Automobile Club's club house, garages, machine shop, supply department, club publication and bureau of tours. The growth of social, business and benefit organizations everywhere has been followed by a demand that the men to whom management is entrusted, shall devote sufficient time to their duties to produce results. There is no complaint that the governors of the Automobile Club of America have been derelict in their duty but the governors of that club, like the directors of many business organizations, find that their own business demands so great an amount of attention that something must be left undone and naturally they adopt "Business first" as their slogan. The day when big corporations included in their directorate men whose names were valuable assets because of their financial responsibility and not because of any actual directing work they performed is passing. Interlocking directorates which were popular under the old system have been abolished in many states by laws enacted to remedy scandalous mismanagement by men who had no idea that they were acting in a fiduciary capacity. Individuals and corporations are requiring men to perform the duties expected of them and if they fail there is an insistent demand that they surrender their places to capable men who will perform them. Only in public office does the old idea remain strongly entrenched and by degrees the artificial defenses of the log-rolling jobholders are being destroyed.

Cornell's sun is not setting because she failed to sweep the Hudson in Saturday's boat races over the Highland-Poughkeepsie course. Only two races were rowed on account of the darkness, but both went to Syracuse. The time was when Cornell crews rowed to their boat houses with a broom symbolizing her clean sweep, but persistent efforts by the other regatta crews have been rewarded by victory. Interest lagged when Cornell won everything year after year, and the best stimulus to increased effort among the colleges which take part in the annual row on the Hudson is a division of first place for different colleges instead of a monopoly by one college or university. The continued gain in strength and public confidence which Syracuse has made was reflected before the racing by the betting, and the exports figured that the chances of the Salt City were better than they had been in any year since the Highland regatta became an established institution. The resentment which followed Yale's withdrawal from the regatta some years ago has practically disappeared, and the New London races are watched with as much interest and enthusiasm by other colleges as though nothing ever had occurred to mar the peaceful relations existing in all collegiate sports. The crowds which attend the races on the Highland course may not be as big as they were ten or twelve years ago but the attendance and the enthusiasm aroused everywhere are a sufficient answer to the pessimistic predictions made every year that the races will be abandoned.

BROTHER AGAINST BROTHER.
That Is Discovery Made by Attorney Klein in Collecting $30.

An application by Attorney Henry Klein to have a lien enforced for legal services which he rendered to Morris Blatchfield of New York City in the latter's suit against Kalman Burman and others was heard by Judge Hasbrouck Saturday. Mr. Klein was retained to collect on a $300 promissory note and agreed to collect the same for ten per cent. Later he wrote a letter that it would cost $15 to obtain a judgment. The parties afterward settled the case, Blatchfield receiving $220, and Mr. Klein was paid $15. He wants $30.

It was discovered in a letter signed with Blatchfield's name, Blatchfield, who lives in New York, is not a lawyer and when the letter was produced in court Saturday he became excited and said he never had signed it. Instead, he said, it had been signed by his brother, with whom he had been in business at the time, but whom he had since sued and whom he would sue again for writing the letter. He wanted to take the letter away with him, but was restrained by Judge Hasbrouck. Decision was reserved. Joseph M. Fowler appeared for Mr. Klein.

Mr. Spalding is also the owner of the Olympic Theater in St. Louis, but says that rumors to the effect that the theater will also be closed are unfounded.

McAULIFFE VERDICT REDUCED TO $25,000

Court Holds That $40,000 Verdict For Kingston Man Is Excessive and Reverses Judgment Unless He Consents to Accept $25,000.

The appellate division of the second department has recently rendered its decision in the suit of Timothy McAuliffe of this city against the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, reversing the judgment of the trial court, in which a verdict of $40,000 was rendered for the plaintiff unless McAuliffe consents to accept $25,000. The court holds that $40,000 was excessive. The opinion in full follows:

Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Second Judicial Department.
JULIA E. J. THOMAS, Stapleton, Mills and Purman, Respondents, against Timothy McAuliffe, Plaintiff.
Appeal by the defendant from a judgment of the supreme court, entered in the office of the clerk of the county of Orange on the 1st day of March, 1915, in favor of the plaintiff, and from an order, entered on the 2nd day of March, 1915, denying its motion for a new trial.

Charles E. Jones, for the appellant.
R. H. Barnett, for the respondent.
Putnam, J.:
The first judgment recovered by plaintiff, a freight conductor, in employ of defendant, was reversed by a divided court on the ground that plaintiff was not then employed in interstate commerce (164 App. Div. 848). The record upon the reversal trial has brought out further details of the plaintiff's employment on the day before his accident. It had been ascertained that plaintiff had been conductor of a freight train from West-Hewaken, N. J., to Ravena, N. Y. It was not clearly proved that what was done on the day following the accident was a part of his employment on that day. Plaintiff testified that on this intermediate day, February 13th, plaintiff was ordered with a locomotive and caboose to Newburgh, where he took charge of a freight locomotive and caboose, carrying merchandise destined to points in Massachusetts.

About 4:20 p. m. on February 16th, the day of this casualty, plaintiff, with locomotive tender and caboose, left Ravena bound south. He was then handed a clearance card reading "Clear to West-Hewaken, giving this trip a definite character as an interstate trip. Plaintiff's report for operating orders on this date, however, shows that he was on a local trip from West-Hewaken to West-Hewaken. The caboose was bound through to West-Hewaken. The caboose crew, however, were returning was the same as on the trip north on February 14th. It was brought out that the intermediate trip from Newburgh to Ravena, including the order to take a disabled locomotive from West-Hewaken across state lines to defendant's roundhouse at Granton or Newburgh, was an employment in interstate commerce has been sufficiently made out.

Appellant, however, contends that plaintiff was hurt solely through his own neglect. This locomotive and caboose were rounding moderate curve as they came south into Cornwall about 7:15 p. m. When the station, plaintiff came out on the front platform to listen for signals, as he had to cross the north bound track and register with the local dispatcher. Before the locomotive had stopped, and while running from two to five miles an hour, plaintiff stepped off in front of the caboose and made one step into the north bound track in front of the north bound Chicago Express (Train No. 3) which struck him, causing very severe injuries. The locomotive was scheduled to arrive at 7:42 and was about thirteen minutes late.

Reversal of the verdict was made on the ground that the evidence was conflicting and that the jury was not justified in finding that the accident was caused by the negligence of the defendant. The evidence was conflicting as to the position of the locomotive and caboose when the accident occurred. The evidence was also conflicting as to the position of the plaintiff when he stepped off the locomotive. The evidence was also conflicting as to the position of the locomotive and caboose when the accident occurred. The evidence was also conflicting as to the position of the plaintiff when he stepped off the locomotive.

On this second trial, the engineer admitted that when at a distance of about 300 feet he first saw the light of plaintiff's train, which from its signals he recognized as an extra, so that its conductor would have to cross the north bound track. The plaintiff claims that although he knew about the schedule of the time the train No. 3 was due at Cornwall, nevertheless he believed that it passed below Newburgh, but that it was not upon time, and not being in upon time he was entitled to have additional warning upon the part of the defendant. So if you should find in this case that the plaintiff was not reasonably notified in relying upon the belief that the train No. 3 was due at Cornwall, it is the duty of the defendant to give him such notice as would enable him to avoid the accident.

The court thus ruled that the engineer was held to signal to the conductors of other trains in order to advise them of the approach of a regularly scheduled express, if it was substantially on time, since such employee must, perform his duties, become familiar with scheduled train arrivals, and be able to give notice of their approach. In this case, however, because of less importance, in the view of the court, the engineer was held to signal to the conductors of other trains in order to advise them of the approach of a regularly scheduled express, if it was substantially on time, since such employee must, perform his duties, become familiar with scheduled train arrivals, and be able to give notice of their approach. In this case, however, because of less importance, in the view of the court, the engineer was held to signal to the conductors of other trains in order to advise them of the approach of a regularly scheduled express, if it was substantially on time, since such employee must, perform his duties, become familiar with scheduled train arrivals, and be able to give notice of their approach.

The "New Idea" Cabinet

"Your own idea of what a kitchen cabinet ought to be"

The Latest Kitchen Cabinet Achievement

This, the Sellers Kitcheneed "New Idea," is the latest, most perfect achievement of the organization making "your own idea of what a kitchen cabinet ought to be." It has been over twenty-five years developing.

It possesses more patented, practically useful convenience features than ever any kitchen cabinet made. The "New Idea" Flour Bin is the most sanitary, practical and simply constructed bin ever put on a Sellers Kitcheneed. A simple problem in physics producing a perfect balance enables a woman to fill the bin with fifty pounds of flour in the position you see it here, and return to its original position without effort. It is easily removed for thorough cleaning, and on account of its construction, cannot catch with flour.

The Sellers Kitcheneed Roll Curtain lifter in the base—by simply bringing the handle across the front of the base the roll curtain is lifted, permitting the easiest access to the base compartment. It is not necessary to stoop and lift the curtain from the bottom.

There are other convenience details, many of them, that are a part of the Sellers Kitcheneed "New Idea." These mentioned are significant of the value of the cabinet. To conserve a woman's strength and, incidentally and importantly, her youth, has been among the chief motives for the designing of this new Sellers Kitcheneed.

SYRACUSE WINS HIGHLAND RACES

Crowds, afloat and ashore, saw the Syracuse University crew win both the varsity and junior varsity eight-oared shell races in the inter-collegiate regatta on the Hudson Saturday evening with Cornell second, Columbia third and Pennsylvania last, the same finish order obtaining in both events. Rough water and bad conditions combined to delay matters, the Freshman race being put over until today and the varsity race substituted after the crowds had exhibited a restive spirit.

In the junior varsity race Syracuse overtook Cornell in the last half mile and pulled out to a lead of two lengths at the finish in the slow time of 11 minutes, 15 2-5 seconds. The race was a battle from the gun, Syracuse, Columbia and Cornell being on even terms the first half mile. Cornell pulled ahead as the bridge was reached and thence to the finish it was a brilliant duel between the Ithacans and Syracuse.

When Syracuse caught the Ithacans just below the Cornell boat house there was a resounding cheer from the crowd from the Salt City. With only a quarter of a mile to go the Syracuse eight rushed on to certain victory, rowing further away from Cornell at every stroke. The Ithacans were second, some three lengths ahead of Columbia, which never raised the beat a point and finished rowing 29. Pennsylvania was fourth, ten lengths in the ruck. The shells of all the crews were almost swash at the end.

The Varsity Followed.

Because of the rough water the stewards decided to delay the other races and it was not until 7 o'clock that the river smoothed down enough to start another contest and then, rather than disappoint the crowd, the varsity was rowed.

Pennsylvania caught the water at 38 strokes to the minute and jumped into the lead, but Syracuse sprinting off the mark at the same speed, caught and passed the flying Quakers in less than a dozen strokes, and Columbia with the beat at 34 was not far behind. Cornell, much to everyone's surprise, rowed only a 30 beat and in the first half-minute dropped back a full length.

Just before the Columbia quarters at the mile mark were reached, Syracuse shook off Pennsylvania, while Cornell was up on even terms with Columbia.

Impelled by the same powerful stroke, Cornell slowly, but surely, cut down the Red and Blue, while Columbia dropped farther and farther back, although it had picked up the stroke and was rowing at 30, the same as Pennsylvania. Syracuse the while was rowing at 29 and yielding over so slightly to Cornell. The orange was splashing badly every once in a while and Captain Glass at No. 2 was having trouble keeping in time with the rest, and Hopkins at No. 5 was bucking his oar.

There seemed to be little trouble in either the Cornell or Columbia boats, both were rowing smoothly, the former getting full advantage of the immense power stored up in the shell while the latter, rowing a slightly higher stroke, than either of the leaders, did not have the power to drive the shell with equal speed.

When the Syracuse crew, rowing a smooth, powerful stroke that swept all opposition aside, swung under the giant arches of the big bridge at the three-mile mark, lights were twinkling on all sides.

But even in the fast falling light it was not hard to see that his crew, the greatest that Syracuse has ever had, and one of the greatest that ever rowed on the Hudson, was towing with the stout hearted sons of Cornell. On ahead they shot going over the finish line finally a length ahead of Cornell.

Autos Line Banks.

Automobiles were parked along the river banks in numbers equal to anything of former years although the crowds ashore were said to be smaller. On the river the usual number of private yachts and other craft was in evidence with parties of sightseers.

Returning autoists had their troubles too, the Sleightsburgh ferry showing its utter inadequacy to handle any number of machines. The wise motorists, anticipating the congestion at this point, took the state road by way of Eddyville and there noticed numbers of cars which had started from Highland long before but which had refused to wait at the ferry.

Missing From West Park.

The police received word on Sunday that Pino Valli, an Italian boy, 10 years old, was missing from his home at West Park, and was last seen near the West Shore station at that place. It was thought he had come to Kingston.

Mrs. Melvin Stewart of No. 349 Washington avenue, was conveyed to the Benedictine Sanatorium on Sunday in the city ambulance.

CAVALRY FIRST TO BE UTILIZED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 19.—It is considered certain that the crack cavalry units of New York, Massachusetts, Illinois and Ohio will be the first troops called to the border by General Funston. Under orders from the war department, the disposition of all troops will be withheld for the present. These troops are to gather at the points selected and from their numbers, General Funston will select those he needs for immediate service.

One thing which greatly pleased officials here was the fact that the majority of the units have expressed a desire to take the oath as provided in the Hay-Chamberlain law, which goes into effect July 1 instead of the one now in effect, which is taken from the Dick Law. This development is held here to indicate that little trouble will be experienced in securing the 100,000 National Guardsmen the army general staff considers essential for the success of the present contemplated movement.

The oath to be taken by militiamen under the Hay-Chamberlain law, follows:

"I do hereby acknowledge to have voluntarily enlisted this day of June, 1916, as a soldier of the National Guard of the United States, and of the state of — for the period of three years in service and three years in the reserve, under the conditions described by law, unless sooner discharged by the proper authorities. And I do solemnly swear that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America and to the state of — and that I will serve them honestly and faithfully against all enemies whomsoever, and that I will obey the orders of the president of the United States and of the Governor of the state of — and the officers appointed over me according to law and the rules and articles of war."

(Signed) —

Under this oath, the troops can be utilized in any way the president desires. The adjutant-general's department let it be known today that instead of the 4,000 militiamen it had been hoped would be mustered into service from Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, the total will be less than 2,900. The regimental rolls are padded, officials say, and of the total examined to date, some 1,089 names of men who don't exist have been found.

Secretary of War Baker said at 10:30 that he had not advised from the border that "he could make public." He denied, however, that he had any report that American troops had been attacked.

It was learned that General Funston has reported to the war department that the activity of the Mexican forces in the northern states is increasing and that the situation is extremely dangerous.

The war department had received up to ten thirty today reports from the governors of the following states saying that mobilization was well under way:

Oregon, Georgia, Maine, Indiana, Montana, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, North Dakota, Iowa, Virginia, Washington, Mississippi, Vermont, Tennessee, Missouri, Michigan and New York.

Inasmuch as there is no requirement in the law for state authorities to report at all the war department was highly pleased that these states had reported and expected that by midnight tonight every state in the union would have placed itself on record as having obeyed the president's orders.

HUGHES AGAIN VISITS NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 19.—Charles Evans Hughes arrived here from Washington early this morning for a busy day of political conferences before leaving for Providence to attend the graduation exercises at Brown University, his alma mater.

The chief business before him was the selection of a campaign manager. This will be done at a meeting this afternoon between Hughes and the Republican sub-committee on organization headed by W. Murray Crane, at the Astor Hotel. Mr. Hughes has made a selection. It is understood, from a list of candidates including Frank Hitchcock, who managed his candidacy at Chicago, and William R. Wilcox, president of the New York city board of education. He will ask the sub-committee to ratify his choice.

Mr. Hughes was accompanied to New York only by his secretaries. Mrs. Hughes, who had planned to accompany him, decided to remain behind.

Mr. Hughes expects to return to New York on Thursday.

New York Striking Garment Workers
Attempt to Stir Up Strike Among Employees of the J. Davis Company
on Broadway Today—Police on Hand to Prevent Disorder.

Several men from New York city, who are mixed up in the big clothing strike in that city, are in Kingston, and this morning made an unsuccessful attempt to get the garment workers at the J. Davis Company plant at No. 662 Broadway, near Downs street, to go out on strike.

Police headquarters were notified and Policemen James J. Murphy and Snyder were detailed to prevent and disorder and kept the strikers on the move up and down Broadway. Later in the morning Mr. Davis appeared in recorder's court and sought to have the men arrested. He claimed that they had threatened his employees. He was advised to have his employees who were threatened appear in court and swear out the warrants.

Mr. Davis when questioned said that his employees were well satisfied with their jobs, and he saw no reason why strikers from New York city should attempt to come here and stir up any local trouble.

The strike inciters claim that the reason they are in town is because they believe the strike in New York city is a just one, and that they are attempting to help the strikers outside of the city refuse to do any work for the New York factories until the strike is settled.

The police on duty in front of the Davis plant found that it was not necessary to make any arrests as there was no disorder.

Work continued as usual today at the Davis factory and no difficulty is expected with the employees.

The Three Scutaries.

By this time we should all know enough about the bear not to confound the various Scutaries—the one in Albania, the one opposite Constantinople and the one in southern Greece. It is curious that each name comes from a different original form. The Greek Scutari is otherwise Scutari; the Albanian one is the Illyrian Scutari, and the Asiatic one is the Turkish Scutari.

This last means a courier carrying royal orders from station to station and commemorates the fact that this place, the ancient Chryseopolis, or City of Gold, was the starting point of the Asiatic couriers.—Youth's Companion.

Man.

What a piece of work is man! How noble in reason! How infinite in faculty! In form and moving how express and admirable! In action how like a angel! In apprehension how like a god! The beauty of the world! The paragon of animals!—Hamlet.

TRAPPED BY HIS BLIND RAGE.

For Stupid Obstinacy a Himalayan Bear Takes the Prize.

"Most wild animals are stupid as well as greedy, but for sheer brainless obstinacy in the face of opposition," writes Prince Sarath Ghosh in his book, "The Wonders of the Jungle," "there is no animal like the Himalayan bear. If he finds a thing in his way he will always push it aside, if he can, even though it would be easier to go round the obstacle."

"The wily natives of India have observed that trait in his character and from it have contrived a trap to catch him. They select a tree with a suitable horizontal bough. At a point on the bough about ten or twelve feet from the fork they fasten a bait likely to attract the bear—honey, for example, or goat's flesh. Then from another bough above that one they suspend a heavy block of stone. The rope is so attached to the upper bough that the stone hangs between the bait and the fork of the tree."

"The bear scents the bait from a distance, comes to the tree, sees the food on the bough and climbs up the trunk of the tree. Reaching the bough, he walks along it to get at the bait. But suddenly he notices the obstacle in the way and pushes it aside with his paw. The stone swings out of the way for a second, then it swings back and hits the bear on the paw. With a growl of irritation the bear pushes it aside more violently. The stone swings away again; then it returns with greater force and hits the bear on the chest."

"With a snarl of rage the bear gives the stone a tremendous thrust and sends it up into the air in a wide curve. Then down comes the stone in a similar curve and hits the bear in a thumping whack on the ribs."

"Most animals would desert after that third blow; not so the bear. He is now in a perfectly mad rage, and a bear is a good boxer. He hits out with his paws right and left and sends the stone hurtling forward in a still wider curve. Then after a few seconds the stone comes back and hits the bear a terrific 'uppercut' on the jaw."

"The bear is roused to white hot fury. He thinks an enemy is hiding behind the stone—as an enemy might do in the jungle—and he is determined to reach that enemy."

"But, alas, the bear never went to school and learned the law of gravity! Every blow he hits the stone is returned tenfold. And as the stone has no brains to be knocked out it is the bear that gets knocked out at last. He will never, never give in until he is knocked out—of the tree."

"Then the wily natives hiding below rush in with a net and throw it quickly over him."

"And that is how many menageries and zoos get their Himalayan bear."

Why Not a Garden Pool?

As to the garden pool—why not have one? It may be ever so simply

By La Raconteuse.

This midsummer evening or reception gown is an attractive affair developed in bright green, the foundation being of taffeta and the over skirt and tunic of silk net in a matching tone. The latter is exquisitely embroidered in beads and spangles. A hoop skirt is cleverly attached to the taffeta foundation, thereby affording a support for the distended skirt. The bodice is fitted and trimmed with Venice lace and spangle embroidery.

done, and often the more simple it is the more charming. Or it may be very elaborate and artificial, like those in the tiny toy gardens of those masters of artifice, the Japanese. No other garden feature offers greater possibilities for diversity of form or for originality than the pool. I know a city garden with high walls about it, rather a cramped garden because of the nearness of other dwellings. But under a small tree in that garden is a bit of a basin with water that is always fresh, set there in the sod to invite the birds for a daily bath. And where birds are there is the spirit of the woodland and mountains, no matter how high skyscrapers tower round about.—Bertha H. Smith in Country-side Magazine.

Thoroughly Disinfected.

In the days when the Manchu dynasty was tottering two students cut off some of their fingers as a protest to the government's delay in granting a parliament. Such forms of protest are to the Chinese what writing a letter to the paper is to the Englishman. When these students were taken to the United Medical college the doctors remonstrated with them for misusing their bodies and running the danger of infection as well.

"Oh, you needn't fear on that point," said these students. "We boiled the knife first."—World Outlook.

Monster Coins.

It is understood that the largest gold coin in circulation is the gold "loof" of Anam, the French colony in eastern Asia. It is a flat round piece worth 500 English money. The next size is the unwieldy coin is the Japanese "oban," which weighs more than two and a half ounces and is about equal to 100 English sovereigns.—London Opinion.

The Seven Seas.

"The seven seas" is a poetic name for the oceans of the earth. The "waters embraced" in the term include, therefore, all the great waters of the earth. Specifically the seven seas are divided as the north and south Atlantic, north and south Pacific, Arctic, Antarctic and Indian oceans.

ALICE GIRL THIEF CAUGHT

Police Arrest Alice Colvin, 17 Years Old, Charged With Being With Anna Short, When She Stole a Silk Dress.

Sergeant Hanley on Sunday arrested Miss Alice Colvin, 17 years old, on a charge of petit larceny, and this morning when she was arraigned in recorder's court before Acting Recorder William D. Brinnier, Jr., her trial was adjourned until Tuesday morning, and she was remanded to jail.

It is claimed by the police that the Colvin girl was a chum of Miss Anna Short, who was arrested the other day, and who pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing a silk dress from a building on East Strand. The Short girl is being held in jail, and it is understood that she will be sentenced as soon as the trial of the Colvin girl is finished.

The Colvin girl has been in trouble before when her father complained to the police that she was a disorderly child and was all the time
"gadding the streets." She was placed on parole at that time.

At the time the Short girl was arrested it was learned by the police that the Colvin girl was mixed up in the matter, and a warrant was issued for her arrest. She was not located by the police, however, until Sunday, when she was placed under arrest.

This morning she pleaded not guilty to the charge.

To Open a Pocketknife.

Opening pocketknives is often very hard on finger nails, and a stiff hinged penknife or jackknife is practically useless to a boy if he can't open it readily. Tear off a piece of newspaper or writing paper about three inches square. Fold it across once and then slip the crease under the blade of the knife. Grasp the paper firmly between the thumb and forefinger, as close to the blade as possible. Then pull steadily as if you were opening the knife without the paper. If you do not jerk it the paper will not tear.
In this way you can open many a rusty blade that has been useless for months.—American Boy.

FRANK SCHULTE

HANS WAGNER

The general impression seems to be that ball players have outlived their usefulness when they pass the age of thirty. This, of course, is disproved by the baseball Hans Wagner has been playing for the Pirates this year and for the past 12 years.

Frank Schulte of the Cubs also denies that a player's ability begins to deteriorate when he passes the age of thirty, and is proving it by the game he has been playing this year. There are others of the same opinion. Gavvy Cravath of the Phillies says a man should play satisfactorily until he is forty, if he takes care of himself.

Last season and the year before
Schulte did not play the brand of ball Cub fans liked to see. He appeared more indifferent than ever, and the impression circulated that he was sliding, writes Oscar C. Reichow in Chicago Daily News. It was doubtful whether he would be one of the regulars on Manager Tinker's team.

The fans, when they formed this opinion, did not know that Schulte was dissatisfied with his managers and the environment and that he did not care a great deal whether school kept or not. Still, he played as well as the average outfielder and closed the season of 1915 with 12 homeruns to his credit.

Manager Tinker was somewhat disturbed over Schulte when President Weeghman took over the Cubs and made inquiries in various quarters to learn whether the veteran outfielder still retained any of his skill or ability to hit. Tinker had his doubts and was inclined to favor the younger players. Besides he was not certain whether Frank would have the proper spirit to make a winning combination. At the opening of the season Leslie Mann was favored, but Schulte soon showed Tinker his mistake, and now is playing better than he has done for years.

Cub fans were not slow in observing that he had not gone back any and that he really was playing better ball for Tinker than he did for Chance, Evers, O'Day or Bresnahan. Remarks have been frequent this spring concerning his hustling, the form he showed at the plate and the manner in which he covered the outfield scientifically with Cy Williams. The fans have cheered and encouraged him to drive out the long hits that made him popular on the West side for more than ten years. He has responded nobly.

Schulte is surpassing all his former early averages and if he continues his present gait he will finish the season with the highest average he has ever made in the National league. Last year his batting figures for the first 26 games were only .228, the year before .169, and in 1913, .219. This and his present mark of .357 are conclusive proof that although more than 30 years old he is still good enough to be a regular and deserves to be on the Cub team.

Cub fans are predicting that Schulte will have an excellent year in homerun-making this season. They believe the right-field wall at the Cub park will be of assistance to him. Also they contend that he is pulling the ball as strongly as he did in 1911, when he led the National league with 21 home run swats to his credit. They are hoping that he surpasses that and the world's record of 25, held by Buck Freeman of Washington.

DIAMOND NOTES

George Sisler was born in Akron,
Ohio, and he is not a flat tire, either.

"Ivy" Wingo has struck his hitting stride, and ought to be a big help to the Reds.

"Joe" Judge, the Washington first baseman, seems at last to have hit his stride.

Dell, Pfeffer and Smith have to date shown the best pitching form for Brooklyn.

Barney, the Pittsburgh outfielder, was once a United States sailor. Now he's a Pirate.

High living will get an athlete. Bullet Joe Bush consumed a hot dog and was on the sick list ten days.

Another Cy Young has passed out, Evansville releasing the veteran pitcher, who could not get started this year.

Babe Adams is no longer a hero in Pittsburgh, because of the poor showing he has made, and there are clamors that he be disposed of by the club.

Manager Jimmy Callahan is quoted as complimenting Hans Wagner highly as a player. That's interesting. Wonder what Hans thinks of Jimmy as a manager?

Harry (Moose) McCormick, former pinch hitter for the Giants, manager of Chattanooga, steel salesman, etc., is now handling an independent team
at Montclair, N. J.

Fritz Malsel's brother has been canned by the Detroit club, which indicates Fritz's brother didn't get an even break when the baseball talent was distributed in the Malsel family.

The Mystery Deepens.

You have heard of the woman who was shot between the kitchen and the woodshed. But the Erie dispatch recently went that story one better, like this: "The woman's body was found with: 'Two bullet wounds in the bathtub.'—Associated Advertising.

Ray Schalk of the White Sox stands out as the leading catcher in the big show. Schalk has made rapid strides to the front rank since Comiskey took him out of the American Association.

Ray Schalk.

He is able to catch all kinds of pitching, is a deadly thrower, and can hit the ball. Schalk of the Athletics comes next, in the opinion of many students of baseball.

Name Mispronounced.
Benny Kauff says his name is not pronounced that way at all. It is "Cowf," of the barnyard or dairy farm variety. Some people thought it could be pronounced to rhyme with laugh, and the news from Benny will be a disappointment to poets who were framing up a few things on him.

Courting Capture.

"Sometimes the plodding detective triumphs over his more brilliant competitors." "Oh, yes," said the reformed confidence man, who misunderstood the remark. "As soon as a crook gets headed straight for the pen."

A motion was argued before Judge Hasbrouck at the regular special term of the supreme court at the court house on Saturday to punish Yetta Goldberg and others for contempt of court in an action brought against them in Sullivan county by the Tirrill Gas Machine Lighting Company. The action was brought to set aside a mortgage and during the pendency of the action one of the defendants assigned it. Later the action was determined in favor of the plaintiff and the defendants were directed to assign the mortgage to the receiver who was appointed in the action, or to pay over the proceeds to him. Their failure to comply with this direction led to the motion to punish for contempt. A preliminary objection was made by John T. Cahill, who appeared specially on behalf of Solomon S. Left of New York city, attorney for the defendants, and a motion made by Mr. Cahill to dismiss the present proceedings on the ground that the motion papers had been made returnable before Judge Hasbrouck at chambers instead of being returnable at a regular special term of the supreme court. After hearing arguments on Mr. Cahill's motion and on behalf of the machinery company on the original motion, Judge Hasbrouck directed that the defendants' attorney be allowed until Wednesday of this week to file answering affidavits and reserved decision Joseph Myer of New York city appeared for the plaintiff and the motion.

Universal Road Machinery Co. Sues.
A hearing was had in the suit brought by the Universal Road Machinery Company of this city against the Brady Oltarsch Construction Company, on a motion on behalf of the machinery company directing the construction company to show cause why sureties on the latter company's bond in a replevin action should not be prevented from justifying. In August, 1915, the Universal Company sold a crusher plant to the construction company, which erected it on the top of Hook Mountain, where it has been engaged in crushing stone. A series of promissory notes was given in payment of the crusher but the notes have not been paid and some have been allowed to go to protest. The Universal Company therefore brought an action to recover on the notes, and that action is now pending in the supreme court in Ulster county. As a defense to that action, the construction company claims that the machinery does not come up to the guarantee of the Universal Company, that it is unsatisfactory and that by reason of the operations conducted with the crusher the construction company has been damaged $5,000. After learning that their crusher had been so unsatisfactory, the Universal Company began replevin proceedings in Rockland county and the crusher was seized by the sheriff, but the construction company claims the sheriff has no right to seize it and is prepared to furnish a bond in order to recover and retain possession. Decision was reserved by Judge Hasbrouck. Alfred D. Van Buren appeared for the Universal Road Machinery Company and the motion; Joseph & Alvin T. Sapruski of New York city appeared for the construction company and opposed.

Inventor Received No Cash.
A hearing was had in the case of Henry F. Granger against the Indian Splint, Inc., the Traders' National Bank of Rochester and others, on a motion to change the place of trial of the action from Orange to Monroe county. There are six defendants, three of whom are individuals, the remaining defendants being corporations. The action is brought for the appointment of a receiver of one corporation and an accounting by the three individual defendants as officers of the three defendant corporations. The plaintiff at one time owned the Indian Splint, Inc., but it was reorganized some time ago. On the reorganization he received a minority of the stock of the new corporation but no cash. He is not in control now. The amount involved in the suit is $150,000. The defendants claim that all the transactions occurred in Monroe county and they have 25 witnesses, all residents of that county. Mr. Granger, who has resided in Orange county for the past year and a half, claims the transactions occurred in New York county and he is unable to pay the expenses of his witnesses, all of whom will come willingly to Orange county but will not go willingly to Monroe county. He has 17 witnesses, including one resident of Shandaken. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision. Lewis McKay, McMillan & Bown of Rochester, appeared for the defendants and the motion; Mark H. Ellison of New York city appeared for the plaintiff and opposed.

Suit For Damage to Furniture.
A motion also was made to change the place of trial of the action brought by Nic H. DeGraff against Louis R. Hunter and others from Orange county to Oswego county. The plaintiff is superintendent of the Borden milk plant at Middletown and formerly occupied a similar position at Oswego. When he moved to Middletown he entrusted his furniture to the defendants to remove it, and he claims they damaged it to the extent of $275. The defendants, on whose behalf the motion was made, claim all the witnesses reside at Oswego, but DeGraff claims he has fourteen witnesses who reside in Middletown, including himself and the night foreman, and if both are required to travel to Oswego to attend the trial the Middletown plant will be without any superintendent during their absence. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision. Torrey A. Ball of Oswego appeared for the defendants and the motion; A. C. N. Thompson of Middletown appeared for the plaintiff and opposed.

The Rev. F. W. Moot Preached to Large Gathering at Ponchokkie Union Church Sunday Night—Sensible Preparedness—Not an Acceptance of Militarism.

The Junior Order of United American Mechanics and the Daughters of America attended in a body the services of Ponchokkie Union Church Sunday evening. The church was decorated with American flags and flowers and the large audience taxed its seating capacity. The pastor, Rev. F. W. Moot, delivered a patriotic sermon on "America's Perils," and said in part:

"America is the greatest nation on the face of the earth. We sometimes boast that it shall live forever, but it would be well for us to note the perils of other nations and avoid if possible their destiny. America with all her wealth and resources has her perils. 'We are inclined to an excessive self-confidence. Other nations have been many centuries reaching their present power, but we have advanced to first rank in a hundred years. We point to our victories and accessions. Many in recent years have boasted, 'We can defeat any nation on the earth.'"

"But the war in Europe has brought a new vision to many thoughtful Americans. War is not as it was in 1776 or in 1848 or 1890. Then it was simply guns and men. Today it is one of the most intricate, scientific arts of the age—an art of which we Americans know little. We do not want war, but we should know more of the science of self-defense, and should not be overconfident of our superiority or our national perpetuity."

"Moderate sensible preparedness does not mean a waste of money or an acceptance of militarism. It is a matter of common sense."

"This country is in danger of a deficient Americanism. People from all nations have come to us and we have become the melting pot of the world. These have come faster than we could truly Americanize them and, therefore, in our large cities we have our little 'Italy,' or 'Russia.' Scattered throughout the country are many with a revolutionary spirit. The burning of the American flag in New York city was a demonstration of the non-American spirit in our midst. Our puritan stock is becoming exhausted because native Americans will not rear children, while the foreign born have large families. If we die childless we hand the country to their children."

"America is in peril of losing the lofty ideals of her founders who placed the country and the flag before their personal feelings or success. Many today love ease or pleasure or getting rich more than the flag. While we are eating, drinking and enjoying ourselves the hand may write upon the wall, 'Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting.' Our national safety calls for our most consecrated patriotism. Love, cherish and follow the flag."

Patriotic hymns were sung and solos rendered by Mrs. J. B. Osterhoudt and Mr. Dawe.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Do you believe in signs?" asked the street corner politician.
"Why?" asked his friend.
"Nothing, only there was a magnificent rainbow in the sky following the second rain storm on Sunday."

"Speaking of the shower on Sunday?" replied his friend "I see that you believe in preparedness."
"How is that?" queried the politician.

"Well to be honest" confessed the politician "I did not expect that heavy shower to sprinze up. The truth is I had borrowed the rain coat and umbrella while visiting a friend who lived near the church, and was on my way to his house with them before going to church."

He continued "The shower, however, proved a good thing for the taxicabs as it broke over the city just as services were concluded in the churches, and as a result it caught practically every member of the congregation unprepared as it was such a bright cheerful morning said he and he started back down they had left home without being told with instructions to also bring needed."

THREE VARIETIES OF LOCAL DRUNKS

One Threatens to Beat Up His Wife, Another Fakes an Illness, While the Third Gets Beaten Up By Another.

The various effects that booze has upon our local products was shown in the three varieties that were rounded up Saturday night and Sunday by the police force and brought before the bar of justice.

William Kane of Port Ewen on Saturday evening decided to enjoy a moonlight sail and made a trip to Rondout on the Skillogat and when he landed proceeded to get drunk. About nine o'clock at the corner of Broadway and Mill street he decided he was ill and sat down on the sidewalk and soon drew a crowd of about one hundred who felt deeply and sincerely sympathetic for the poor "unfortunate" man. They were outspoken, some of them, when the unsympathetic police—Officers White and Kuehn—instead of sending for a physician to "save the man's life" sent for the ambulances and bundled the "poor man" in and took him to the city hall. Sunday morning he had recovered and was discharged with a warning. Mr. Kane gave his age as 60 years.

The same evening Policeman Fout untaken learned that there had been a fight in Higinville and hurried to the scene and found one Virgil Sampson, a negro, 40 years of age, lying in the driveway of Ezra Snepker's place on Washington avenue. Sampson complained of pains in his head and had several bumps where he had been struck. He was taken to the court house where a physician made an examination and found that it was the bumps on Virgil's head that caused Virgil's pain. This morning Virgil was arraigned before City Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., who presided in the court's court room to the unavoidable absence of Recorder Lang, who had been called out of town. Virgil when asked to explain how it all happened said that one William Brown, a white man, had hit him and knocked him over the sidewalk and left him in the driveway.

Virgil when asked if he was guilty of the charge of being drunk and unable to take care of himself confessed his head and finally said that he was not guilty, but confessed that he was drunk.

Judge Brinnier gave him two days in the county jail to think things over. The third variety of drunk brought to the attention of Judge Brinnier this morning was Hiram Stokes of No. 69 West Union street. Sunday afternoon a woman's voice over the telephone informed police headquarters that Mr. Stokes was drunk and had threatened to shoot his wife. Policeman Welsh was sent to the scene and paced Hiram under arrest. Later Hiram was taken to the lockup in the hurry up wagon. This morning it was brought out that Hiram has a steady job on the boatyard earning his $3 a day, and that he had got drunk when he met few friends. He could not remember just what had happened next, but confessed to having two rifles in the house, but both were empty said he. He was warned that if he was ever brought up again it would go hard with him, and on his promise to behave and stay sober he was discharged.

Will Play Fast Kingston Team at Athletic Field on Tuesday Afternoon, When a Good Game Can Be Expected.

Tuesday afternoon at the Athletic Field a fast game of baseball is expected when the Carlisle Indians will clash with the fast Kingston team. The visitors are full fledged Indians and carry with them Hiawatha, presented as the only woman baseball pitcher in the world, and a descendant of Indian royalty. They have been playing some fast teams up the state and have won several victories, and Kingston will put one of its strongest lineups in the field against the warriors. The probable lineup of Kingston will be: Kissam and Williams, pitchers; Schrick and Cragan, catchers; Morgan, 1st base; Hoyer, 2nd base; Ashdown, 3rd; Lowther, 3rd base; McLean, 1st; Anderson, c. f.; and Fitzgerald, r. f. The game will be called at 4 o'clock, and weather permitting a large crowd of "fans" should be on hand.

Kioskie Was Discharged. After a lively trial in recorder's court this morning before Acting Recorder William D. Brinnier, Jr., John Kioskie of Hooker street, who was charged with assault upon Morris Basch of St. Mary's street, was discharged by the court. Edward McKiernan appeared for Mr. Kioskie. The trouble started over some cows which Mr. Basch owned. Mr. Basch claimed that Mr. Kioskie assaulted him and hit him over the head with a large stone. Mr. Kioskie claimed that Mr. Basch struck him first with a whip.

SIXTY-NINTH TO BE FIRST IN CAMP

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, June 19.—Before leaving for Northampton today Governor Whitman announced that he would personally inspect the New York state troops at Beekman before they left for the border. The date of the visit was not given out.

In the opinion of the governor it will take about five days for the mobilization of the militia at Beekman. The Sixty-ninth regiment of New York will be the first on the scene.

Conferences with Generals O'Ryan and Stotesbury were held by the governor until the time for his departure for Northampton.

After the militia is mobilized the task of transporting them to Mexico becomes the duty of the federal government and the state has no further responsibility.

VANCE MCCORMICK

SAY SELECTION OF MCCORMICK AS CAMPAIGN MANAGER IS BID FOR MOOSE VOTE.

St. Louis, June 19.—The selection of Vance McCormick as chairman of the Democratic National Committee was accepted here as a definite bid for Progressive support.

McCormick is regarded by the leading members of the party as a Progressive Democrat. In 1914 he was the Democrat nominee for governor of Pennsylvania.

McCormick is a man of great wealth and business ability. The family to which he belongs owns coal lands, steel works, grain warehouses and hundreds of farms in the vicinity of Harrisburg. His business is that of a banker and capitalist, and he is prominent socially. He served a term as mayor of Harrisburg in 1902, though it is a Republican city. He has always been a liberal campaign contributor.

Mr. McCormick is now forty-four years old. He is a bachelor short of stature but sturdy of build. His physique is that of a hardened athlete with a fresh, ruddy complexion that gives an unusually youthful appearance. During the height of his college career in 1893, Mr. McCormick was elected captain of the Yale football team.

PASSENGER FARES CAN'T BE RAISED

New York Central's Effort to Tilt Tariffs Loses Before Up-State Public Service Commission—Failed to Credit Interstate Fares.

The up-state Public Service Commission has refused to permit the New York Central to put into effect tariffs proposed to put the passenger fares within the state of New York on a uniform basis of 2 1/2 cents a mile. Determining that the effect of such a new schedule would be an increase in rates in most instances, the commission holds that the railroad has clearly not proven its need for this increase within the provisions of the law and court decisions. The prevailing opinion is written by Commissioners James O. Carr to this effect.

All the other commissioners concur except Commissioner Emmet, who, dissenting in part holds that on the ground that the proposed new schedules would afford greater uniformity of rates they should be allowed to go into effect. Chairman Van Santvoord submits a memorandum answering Commissioner Emmet's contentions and holding that even the proposed new schedules would not effect the uniformity which Commissioner Emmet desires.

In the order denying the proposed rate schedules the commission holds that the need for the increases affecting the Hudson river division is clearly unproven. With regard to changes on other divisions, the commission calls the attention of the railroad to obvious discriminations in the present rates on these divisions and suggests that they be modified. The schedules now proposed, however, the commission finds do not equitably effect this modification. The commission says that while it is possible some of the minor divisions of the road are not paying so far as passenger traffic is concerned, there is no just reason why this burden should be imposed through generally increased rates on the patrons of the main line where passenger business seems on the record to be clearly profitable.

Commissioner Carr, discussing in his opinion the effort of the railroad to prove that it needs additional revenue from passenger business says that in view of the fact that the railroad earned in 1915 above all charges, 11.11 percent on its capital stock, such increased revenue is clearly not needed on the railroad's operation as a whole. It is also clearly not proven to be needed on intrastate passenger business. In reaching this conclusion he finds that in determining the cost of intrastate passenger business the railroad should have charged to interstate passenger business from 29 to 31 percent of the total of passenger operating costs within the state instead of 6 percent; this position being taken because the railroad's 6 percent allocation depended on the proportion of interstate to intrastate passengers carried; the higher percentage which the commission determines to be correct being based on the proportion of interstate to intrastate passenger miles within the state of New York.

The railroad contended that no portion of fares received from interstate passengers should be credited to intrastate revenue for the portion of the interstate journey within the state of New York. Commissioner Carr finds that a due proportion of these fares must be credited to intrastate revenues and that when they are so credited the intrastate revenues are increased by 50 percent. This is in direct accord with the contentions of assistant corporation counsel Rosensohn of New York city, and of Joseph S. Wood of Mr. Vernon, attorneys for the protestants against the new rates. Thus interpreted Commissioner Carr finds that the huge mass of figures submitted by the Central do not prove that additional passenger revenue within this state is needed.

Remodeling Factory. The Bostonian shirtwaist factory at No. 47 Hasbrouck avenue is being remodeled. The contract to install a steam heating plant, sanitary plumbing and metal work has been awarded to Harry Netburn.

Gifted Idiots. Idiots have been known whose memory for names and words was so retentive that they could repeat verbatim and indicate where the preacher blew his nose and coughed in his delivery. Dr. Moffat, the distinguished African missionary and father-in-law of Dr. Livingstone, once preached a long sermon to a crowd of negroes. Shortly after he had finished he saw a number of negroes gather about a simple minded young savage. He went to them and discovered that the savage was preaching his sermon over again. Not only was he reproducing the precise words, but imitating the manner and gestures of the white preacher.—London Tit-Bits.

PUMPKINS vs. SQUASHES

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Ebenezer Singleton was a young man of twenty-three. He was a good and industrious young man and had acquired quite a little property thus early in his career. He had just purchased a cozy house, and the next thing needed was a wife.

Sarah Jane Scott, twenty years old, was a very nice girl—very nice. She was good at needlework, housework and other kinds of work which would have made her a treasure of a wife. She and Ebenezer met one day, and they looked good to each other. From thence sprang a courtship, and there was no one who interfered or objected. Ebenezer could support a wife, and Sarah Jane could be of great help to a husband.

There was only one trait in the character in either one that could be criticized, and that was developed to each other just at the wrong time. Ebenezer had come courting, and his mind was about made up to ask Sarah Jane for her hand when the conversation happened to touch on astronomy.

"Isn't it singular how the sun moves around the earth from east to west?" queried Ebenezer just as he was ready to go home.

"But the sun does not move around the earth," mildly protested Sarah Jane. "The earth moves around the sun, and it moves from east to west because nature arranged it to, just as it did for a tree to stand on its roots."

"Did you ever watch the sun move?" asked Ebenezer, with a very sober face.

"Never, Eben, but I have watched the earth move. The sun stands as still as a great rock, while our earth moves along. Why, Eben, don't you remember the proof given in geography of the earth's moving round the sun?"

"Well, well, Sarah, you are a queer girl. The sun certainly moves, and if you have never seen it move there is something very wrong with your eyes. It moves from east to west, but I don't see why it can't just as well move from north to south."

Sarah Jane looked at Ebenezer for a long minute to see if he was joking. She found him very earnest in this belief, and it gave her an unpleasant shock. She had never found him an ignorant man in any particular, and this was ignorance of the grossest kind.

"Eben," she quietly said, "you are not wanting me to understand that the sun moves along like a man walking? You cannot believe this against the known facts. It has been hundreds of years since it was known that the earth moved around the sun." "People may think so, but that doesn't make it so," answered Ebenezer as the light of defiance shone in his eyes. "I say the sun moves. I have seen it move. I saw it moving along not five hours ago. My eyes are good eyes. What my eyes see I am not going back on. Are you going to believe that the sun stands still just because a lot of nonsensical men claim it does so?"

"Oh, well, we won't discuss the matter any further," said Sarah Jane, realizing that it might lead to unfortunate results.

"But we will!" exclaimed Ebenezer as he set his jaw. "You believe one way and I another. Let us decide who is right."

"But how are we going to decide?" she protested in tones which betrayed vexation.

"Why, you are going to believe as I believe."

"But I can't. You won't find one in a million people who believe with you. You can keep on believing so if you will, but I can never agree with you. However, it is a matter that we need not get angry about. We have always got plenty of sunshine whether the sun stands still or moves along, and we probably always shall. We are having pleasant weather, aren't we?"

And Ebenezer, the very good young man, but the very obstinate young man, walked out into the darkness. He never received the note referred to, and the reader will not wonder why. He expected it for a month, and when it never appeared he was more than ever determined in his belief that the sun moved right along and left everything behind it. As for Sarah Jane Scott, she was astonished, angered and humiliated, and you can't expect that the girl with such feelings is going to give up her point of view.

It wasn't necessary that either one should leave the town. Eben lived at one end of it and Sarah Jane the other, and they seldom met. When they did there was a cold nod exchanged. Several years passed away, and one day Sarah was married to a man named Peters. Before consenting to be his wife she questioned him about the sun. He readily answered that the earth moved around the sun, and the week later they were married.

When the news of her marriage reached the ears of Ebenezer he got a hustle on him, and three months later he was also married. Previous to his marriage he likewise asked the question that Sarah had asked—does the sun move around the earth or the earth move around the sun?

"I don't care a snap which way it is," was the answer Ebenezer received. "As your wife I shall agree with you."

GUARDING AUTO TRANSPORT IN MEXICO. (MILITARY SERVICE.)

TROOPS IN DANGER AS WILSON REFUSES WITHDRAWAL.

(Guarding an Auto Transport With the Punitive Expedition in Mexico.)

It is believed that a clash between American troops and Carranza's soldiers in Mexico is drawing nearer. The refusal of President Wilson to accede to Carranza's request for the withdrawal of American troops has created much hostile sentiment below the border and the punitive expedition under General Pershing is liable to be attacked at any moment. For some time large bodies of Carranzista soldiers have menaced the American bases and lines of communication.

In answer to Jack Dillon's statement that he would end his bout with Frank Moran with a knockout punch when the two meet in the ring in Brooklyn on June 29, Moran quietly said:

"Dillon's plans meet with my approval."

Moran is training at Saratoga, where he got into shape for his battle with Willard last winter. Dillon is training at Washington Park, Brooklyn, where the bout will be held.

OLD TIME SUNDAY LAWS.

Rigid Rules For Harvard Students Two Centuries Ago.

In "The Story of Harvard" Mr. Arthur Stanwood Pier gives an account of the strict regulations formerly set down for the guidance of the Harvard undergraduates by the president and the fellows of the corporation. The old laws, intended to enforce upon the undergraduates a more religious and studious life, would be considered repressive and tyrannical today.

"All the scholars shall at sunset in the evening preceding the Lord's day retire to their chambers and not unnecessarily leave them, and all disorder on said evening shall be punished as violations of the Sabbath are. . . . And whosoever shall profane said day—the Sabbath—by unnecessary business or visiting, walking in the commons or in the streets or fields, in the town of Cambridge, or by any sort of diversion before sunset, or that in the evening of the Lord's day shall behave himself disorderly or in any way unbecoming the season, shall be fined not exceeding 10 shillings."

"That students may furnish themselves with useful learning, they shall keep in their respective chambers and diligently follow their studies, except half an hour at breakfast, at dinner for from 12 to 2 and after evening prayers till after 9 of the clock. To that end the tutors shall frequently visit their chambers after 9 o'clock in the evening and at other studying times, to quicken them to their business."

It does not seem that under such a system of vigilance and visitation the students could fall into very dissolute ways. But a few years later George Whitefield, the famous evangelist who so stirred up New England, visited Harvard college and expressed his displeasure at the dissipated habits of the young men. He declared conditions at Oxford were no worse, a charge so damaging that it greatly disturbed and incensed the college authorities.

On Drinking Water. A beauty specialist once said that whenever she saw a woman with a face resembling a dried apple she knew for a certainty that woman did not drink enough water. The same cause which results in the drying of the apple, operates in the case of the dried skin—lack of water.

Mind That Scorns Defeat. I know of no such unquestionable badge and ensign of a sovereign mind as that tenacity of purpose which, through all changes of companions or parties or fortunes, changes never, wears no jot of heart or hope, but wears out opposition and arrives at the port.—Emerson.

MISS JOSEPHINE DAVIS.

BOOMERANG WITNESS IN ORPET CASE.

Miss Josephine Davis, a chum of Miss Marian Lambert, the young girl for whose murder Will S. Orpet is on trial at Waukegan, Ill., proved to be a boomerang witness for the state. The first story was antagonistic to Orpet, but on the witness stand she reversed her testimony and said that Miss Lambert had often expressed a desire to kill herself. It is understood that a perjury charge will be placed against Miss Davis for the change in her story.

Mind That Scorns Defeat. I know of no such unquestionable badge and ensign of a sovereign mind as that tenacity of purpose which, through all changes of companions or parties or fortunes, changes never, wears no jot of heart or hope, but wears out opposition and arrives at the port.—Emerson.

"One day a pal o' mine handed me his package of LIBERTY Long Cut an' I loaded my old pipe and smoked up on it.

"Pretty soon I began to throw back my shoulders an' wish a grizzly bear'd come along so's I could choke him to death an' tear his hide off.

LIBERTY hits the spot in a grown-up man because it's made of that rare old Kentucky Long Leaf—and nothing else.

All long, clean, ripe, perfect leaves—no short, broken ones—no hard stems. It's tobacco—just tobacco.

LIBERTY is aged from three to five years to bring out the ripe, snappy flavor—the smoothness and the rich juiciness. That's why it makes such a tasty, solid, lasting chew—why it gives you a long, full-flavored, satisfying smoke.

MUST BACK DOWN OR BE PACIFIED BY INTERVENTION

Carranza Must Decide Upon Course and Mobilization of National Guard will be Stayed Awaiting Next Move by Constitutionalist Chief.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 19.—Carranza either must back down completely or the United States will itself pacify Mexico. This is the reason why the bulk of the national guard of the various states is today under orders for border service. President Wilson also has under consideration a call for volunteers which will be withheld until it is found out just what Carranza means to do. While officials insisted again today that there is no immediate intention of "armed intervention" in Mexico, in the same breath they declared that American interests will be protected and American rights will be defended at any cost.

With the political conventions out of the way, administration officials declared that there would be no further fooling with the Mexicans. Carranza knows the position of this government. He knows, officials say, just what the intentions of the United States are. But there is great opposition to him in the ranks of his own followers, and they believe he has deliberately precipitated the present crisis in order to either prove to the Mexican people that he cannot force the withdrawal of the Americans or to unite them all against a common enemy in the hope that by so doing, if peace eventually is restored, either through some form of mediation by other Latin-American nations or through a surrender to the Americans, he will benefit.

Officials here made no effort to conceal their belief that the Mexican situation again is charged with dynamite. They realize that the anti-American feeling has swept throughout the length of the southern republic. But they declare that there need be no serious apprehension regarding the outcome. General Pershing and his men are in position to take care of themselves against any attack by any Mexican force that could be concentrated against them at any given point. Funston has gathered his forces at strategic positions where they can be available for any attempted invasion.

The situation, the officials of the war department say, is well in hand and they await the outcome of the next few days with entire confidence. All of the vast machinery of the war department was in operation early today to bring the National Guard of the country into mobilization camps for Mexican service. For more than three months now Carranza's helplessness in dealing with the chaos and disorder in the country south of the Rio Grande has pointed to intervention as the inevitable result.

The latest reported demand of Carranza was that unless the American troops were withdrawn within a week he would consider a state of war existed between the United States and Mexico. Official confirmation of this demand was expected, although not yet forthcoming. It would constitute the final precipitation of real aggressive action by the United States in restoring order in Mexico. The sending of armed forces to Mexico City and Tampico to protect Americans there from the violence of the long-hostile populace was one of the chief problems under discussion in military circles today. The many Americans concentrated in these two centers as well as elsewhere in Mexico, would be wholly at the mercy of the Mexicans should General Carranza carry out his threat to break relations altogether. These guards would be composed in part at least of the ever ready marines. Twenty-five hundred of these troops already are at Haiti and the Dominican Republic within easy striking distance of the east coast of Mexico should their services be demanded.

It was expected that by nightfall thousands of the National Guardsmen ordered out would be in their concentration camps awaiting further orders. In arms, ammunition and equipment, the department is ready to supply any force that may be raised under any possible emergency. There would not be any delay for individual equipment should President Wilson be forced to call for volunteers numbering several times the 100,000 guardsmen expected to be brought into service by the latest order.

While the war department is the scene of most activity the navy department has not been inactive. Sixteen additional war craft today either are on their way to Mexican waters or about to set sail. To the east coast are bound the transport Dixie from Philadelphia, the scout cruiser Salem from Guantanamo, the gunboat Dolphin and the transport Hancock from Santo Domingo. In addition to these, three destroyers from six now steaming from Dominican waters to Key West will be dispatched first probably to Tampico. These little craft are particularly effective for Mexican duty. Their light draft permits them to enter into harbors not accessible to bigger vessels and the sight of their shining guns never fails to cool Mexican hot-heads. To Admiral Winslow, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, has been left the selection of four destroyers and five other small vessels to augment his command already off the Mexican west coast.

WATER CUT A WAY THROUGH MOUNTAIN

Delaware Water Gap, says a bulletin of the United States Geological Survey, is a vertical walled trench, 1,200 feet deep, in the narrow ridge of Kittatinny Mountain, through which the Delaware river flows. Did the river find this gateway ready made through the mountain or did it cut its way through the hard mountain ledges and, if so, how could it accomplish its mighty task? By the study of geology of the region the following history has been worked out: After the rocks had been formed, layer by layer, as sediments in the sea they were folded and tipped on end and worn down by nature's forces to a gentle surface, across which Delaware river flowed to the sea. The top of Kittatinny range was then part of this surface and the adjacent area that is now lowlands stood nearly at the same level. Elevation of the land caused the Delaware and its tributaries to wear away the softer rocks and leave the harder rock standing in relief as ridges. The hard rocks that compose Kittatinny range formed rapids in the Delaware where it crossed them, but the river gradually cut this barrier away. It is easy to believe that streams can remove soft shale and limestone in their course, but it may seem at first thought impossible that water alone can cut away hard rock. The water, however, is only a medium, for the cutting is done by the sand, gravel and boulders carried by the stream, just as emery fed to a saw cuts through the hardest rock or steel. Large round holes that were ground into hard rocks by the burning pebbles at the bottom of small falls have been left as "potholes" on the sides of gorges as the evidences of such stream cutting. So the Delaware, concentrating its power on a small section of the hard rock of Kittatinny range, was able, during a long period, to cut the gap through the rocky barrier.

John Moore of Brooklyn and daughter, Mrs. Gibson, of New York, attended the funeral of William Whatley on Friday and were accompanied home by Mrs. Whatley, who will spend some time with her niece, Mrs. Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Ellsworth of New York, who were here for the Ter Bush-Fredd wedding, remained over Sunday with their grandmother, Mrs. Ellsworth, and daughter, Miss Louise Ellsworth.

Invitations have been issued for the reception to be given Mr. and Mrs. James L. Laidlaw, at the Wayside Inn, Tuesday evening. Announcement has been made to Ellenville friends of the graduating honors given Miss Marie McDonnell of Cleveland, Ohio, formerly of Ellenville. Miss McDonnell graduates from the Immaculate Conception Academy, Mt. Marie, Canton, Ohio, this week. On Monday night Miss McDonnell gives a reading from Romeo and Juliet, Act II, Scene II, at the class day exercises. The whole program is Shakespearean. Miss McDonnell has her home with her aunt, Mrs. R. W. Gallagher, at Cleveland, Ohio, and this week Mrs. Gallagher spends with her friends, Mrs. William Morgan and Miss Laura Manette, at their home in Canton, Ohio, to be present at the week's commencement.

Mrs. O. B. Seaman of Oberlin, Ohio, and niece, Lila S. Taylor, who have been spending a year in school there, have returned home for the summer vacation.

William Kerr of New York has been in Ellenville for a short stay, a guest at the Mitchell House.

NATIONAL GUARD READY TO RESPOND

New York Will Contribute 17,329 Men to the Army and These Are in Readiness For Marching Orders.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, June 19.—Seventeen thousand three hundred and twenty-nine members of the National Guard of New York state, the average strength as estimated in March of the present year, are awaiting definite orders to move to the Mexican border. Each separate brigade and company is already either at their respective armories or in close touch with their commanding officers. Until the word comes to move, all of the militiamen must either remain at their armories or receive permission to absent themselves.

At National Guard headquarters here today, Lieutenant-Colonel and Assistant Adjutant General E. V. Howard was the acting commandant due to the absence at Peekskill of his superior officers. Telegrams and telephone calls from all over the state were sent to him asking for the latest information. The wires and calls came from officers of the militia who desired to "know when the call to move their respective commands would be forthcoming."

Several high officers of the guard, including Col. Wolf of Buffalo were in consultation with Col. Howard this morning.

The fact that coast artillery commands will not respond to the call, these organizations having been excepted, leaves Captain Lorillard Spencer, military secretary to Governor Whitman, at home. He is the commanding officer of a coast artillery company and retained his place as an active line officer when he accepted the post of military secretary.

The strength of the National Guard of New York state is comprised of the following organizations:

First Battalion, Signal Corps, 178, excluding officers; 22nd Corps of Engineers, 400; First and Second Battalions of Engineers, Field Staff, 488; First Cavalry, 237; Squadron A, 57; Machine Gun Troop, 68; First Field Artillery, 547; Second Field Artillery, 1,179; Eighth Coast Defense Command, 542; Ninth Coast Command (strength not given); Thirtieth Coast Command (strength not given). Total of coast commands, 1,920.

The infantry commands are as follows:

First Infantry, 915; Second Infantry, (strength not given); Third Infantry, 984; Tenth Infantry, 578; Twelfth Infantry, (strength not given); Fourteenth Infantry, 568; Twenty-third Infantry, 530; Forty-seventh Infantry, 510; Sixty-fifth Infantry, (strength not given); Sixty-ninth Infantry, 906; Seventy-first Infantry, 567; Seventy-fourth Infantry, (strength not given).

The total of the infantry is estimated at 8,861, the figures based upon the average attendance, the basis of the estimate in relation to every command.

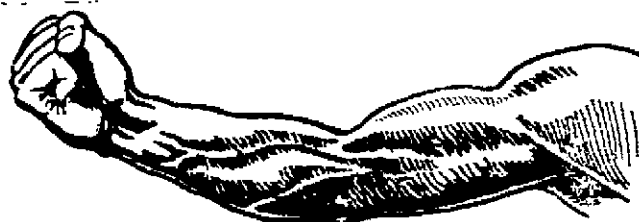

The number of officers and men in the medical department is placed at 757.

A summary shows the number of militiamen to be: Total staff department, 808; Signal Corps, 128; Corps of Engineers, 488; cavalry, 1,132; field artillery and A. M. battery 1,274; coast defense commands, 1,920; infantry, 8,861. These commands total but 14,611, yet it is estimated that the average strength is 17,329.

Rests the Speed King.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 19.—All doubt as to Dario Resta's right to be heralded the American speed king was dispelled today. After winning the 300 mile race at Indianapolis and Chicago this year the daring Italian engaged in a private duel with his fellow countryman, Ralph de Palma, and won easily. Three races were held—ten, twenty-four and fifty miles. Resta's Peugeot swept home winner in all. In the first he averaged 94 miles an hour, in the second 105 and in the third 101. Thirty thousand persons saw the races.

ARTHUR'S WOOING

By ETHEL HOLMES

Jeannette Wild was an incorrigible flirt. Perhaps it was not her fault; perhaps it was. There was something about her that attracted men, whether it was intentional or not. A pleasant smile hovered about her lips; there was a sparkle in her eye. When she said anything droll she had a way of cocking her head on one side, like a bird, that was very attractive. Jeannette was an innocent girl in every respect, and no word of scandal was ever spoken against her.

But her flirtations were very annoying to her mother. In the first place, her daughter was too young to make an intelligent choice of a husband; in the second, she had not finished her education. When she was sixteen years old, having become entangled with three suitors, her mother resolved upon drastic measures. The spring was coming on, and the good lady, dreading the advantages that summer possessed for love affairs, resolved to take her daughter where a man could not get near enough to fall in love with her.

Mrs. Wild had no confidence in any place of abode that was not isolated. A land fortress would need a moat, which was impracticable. No place would do unless surrounded by water. So an island it must be.

In Casco Bay, on the Maine coast, are a number of islands. In the center of one of these islands is a cottage. Mrs. Wild rented this cottage with a view to removing her family and servants there. But, alas, it is difficult for women to get on without men. Mrs. Wild dared not live on the island without one. Besides, she needed one to run her motorboat. There was another reason for a man's presence. Mrs. Wild desired to prevent any of her daughter's suitors from landing on her retreat, and she needed some one strong enough to keep them off.

Mrs. Wild advertised for a person to fill this requirement. Several young men answered her advertisement, but the lady did not engage any of them. She waited till an elderly one applied for the job and engaged him.

John Doolan had white hair and a white beard. But he seemed to be quite strong and said that he was perfectly able to hold the dock against all comers. He went to the island a couple of days before the family to make preparations. When they arrived all was in order for their reception.

As Mrs. Wild had anticipated, they had not been at their summer home long before one of Jeannette's suitors appeared at the dock. He was refused a landing by John Doolan. He sailed around to another part of the island, but John was there with a gun to receive him. Mrs. Wild was so pleased with this action of John's that she gave him a five dollar gold piece. Soon after this another boat appeared, and a handsome young fellow in yachting costume was about to step out on to the landing when John ordered him off. He poked a card at his opposer, but John said that if he were the president himself he could not come ashore. Argument having failed, the visitor tried bribery. John proved incorruptible. There was nothing for the yachtman to do but sail away.

Mrs. Wild, to whom John reported all these noble acts of defense, was delighted. On several occasions he brought the cards that were given him to his mistress. Some of the men who had left them she knew, and some were strangers to her. It made no difference who they were. She had determined to keep men away from her daughter for that summer, and, having secured the services of a man who was capable and trustworthy, she gave herself no concern. She declared that it was the first summer she had felt easy about Jeannette since she was fourteen years old.

But one day a thunderbolt came out of a clear sky. The fond mother while taking a stroll over her island, walking through a thick wood heard voices near her. She listened and recognized Jeannette's voice. Then came a man's deeper tones. The latter sounded much like John Doolan.

Could it be that the flirt, deprived of association with men, had cast her toils about the old servitor? The suspicion brought a shock to the doting mother.

Advancing toward the sounds, she peeped through a break in the leaves, and there, sitting on a log with their backs to her, were John and Jeannette. John's arm around Jeannette's waist.

Mrs. Wild tore through the underbrush like a fury. Hearing the noise of breaking brush behind them, the culprits jumped to their feet, turned and confronted the angry mother.

While she was delivering a tirade of reproaches John pulled off his white beard and stood revealed as the most persistent of Jeannette's suitors.

"Woe is me, Mrs. Wild," he said with head bent low. "I confess myself a great sinner. Jeannette wrote me that you were to remove her here, and I, seeing your advertisement for a defender, applied for the place in the uniform of a veteran. I have performed my duties to the best of my ability."

"It's all right, mamma," pleaded Jeannette. "Your bringing me here has brought me to a decision. I love Arthur and will marry no one else. His wooing has charmed me."

Since Arthur was an eligible young man with a fortune Mrs. Wild made a virtue of necessity, forgave them and consented to an early marriage.

Lucille Too Busy.

Kenneth, being reprimanded for quarreling with his sister, a couple of years his senior, replied, "Well, Lucille always bosses me around just like she raised me."

NEW PALTZ PLANS A GRAND PAGEANT

The class day exercises of the New Paltz Normal will be held on the afternoon of June 27 at 2 p. m. The usual class history, etc., will be omitted and a "Nature Pageant or Legend of the Valley" will be given on the lawn. Miss Herrig, a member of the faculty, has written this sketch in which the main character represents the Shawangunk Mountain. The participants will pass out through the main entrance to the lawn to music by the orchestra, led by Miss Bessie Dickenson of Highland. "Shawangunk" will be followed by a group of girls representing the spirit of the Catskills and Mohonk. The lake and river will be represented by two girls. The next division will be marshalled by groups of girls representing the sky, clouds, sunshine, storm and the four winds and they in turn will be followed by girls in groups, representing trees and birds and flowers and butterflies. The next group will be characterized by the Indian maidens, who eventually are overcome by the Dutch and French group. Then comes the sweet, pretty school girl group that all are familiar with. After the march, speeches and addresses will be given in which the story or history of the following objects of interest will be told: History of the school, the bell, the deer on the lawn which is now minus two horns, the street school which was conducted soon after the burning of the old school, the fire, the great parade in celebration of the signing by the governor of the $165,000 bill in which all New Paltz was interested and the breaking of the ground for the present school. The annual junior play will be given in the gym in the evening, the title being "Three Girls From School." Miss Elinore Allison of Newburgh is president of the class. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached in the gym on the morning of the 25th. Commencement exercises will be held in the gym on Wednesday morning, June 28. The class numbers about 150. Miss Myrtle Parslow of Kingston has been chosen valedictorian. The "senior prom" will be held in the "gym" on the evening of the 25th. Scofield's orchestra of Newburgh will furnish the music.

Van Demark is having an up-to-date heating plant installed in her house by Rose & Douglass, plumbers of Ellenville. John J. Osterhout has returned after spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. James A. Stokes, of Union Hill, N. J. Mrs. J. J. Christiansa is improving after having an attack of the grip. Mrs. George C. MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

Resta's recent victory in the Chicago derby race, which closely followed his easy win in the Indianapolis classic, have pushed his total points up to the 1,800 mark—1,200 than his nearest rival. And Resta's friends declare that "the end ain't yet."

In other years the championship was little more than an empty honor. But this season it is different. In addition to winning a huge silver trophy, the victor will get at least $13,500—and possibly $20,000 or so—in cash. The B. F. Goodrich people have donated $10,000; the Borsch magnets, $3,500. Other auto accessory people may chip in $5,000 to $10,000 more.

Schulte Upsets Dope.

What do you make of the case of Frank Schulte, of the Cubs? In 1911 he hit for .300; in 1912 he totalled .264; in 1913 it was .278; in 1914 it was .241, and last year it was .245. And now here is Schulte in 1916, his 14th in the majors and his 34th on this earth, breezing along with the race at a whirlwind clip. Up to the present time Schulte has hit far beyond any mark he ever annexed during his long career in the majors. And he shows no signs of "cracking." Rather he is hitting them harder and oftener every week. At the advanced age of 34, old "Wildfire" ought to be headed in the general direction of the baseball junk yard. But, instead, his average, far beyond the .300 figure, points him directly toward the goal of every batsman—the clubbing leadership of his league.

Famous Jockey Quits U. S. A.

Eddie Dugan has sailed away from these United States—and the horse world mourns the loss of one of the greatest jockeys that ever swept under a barrier. Dugan is on his way to Russia, where he will ride for Countess Eugene Lazareff. Dugan was a sensation in the turf here before racing was legislated out of New York state and elsewhere. Then he went to Russia, where he added to his fame. He remained in the land of Czar Nick until the outbreak of war put racing there temporarily on the blink. Dugan came back and was signed to ride for August Belmont.

However, the Irish lad had added some poundage while abroad and displaced 110 stripped. That was a little too heavy to suit Belmont. Dugan hung around for a year or so, and got his salary for it, but little work. Idleness peeved him. So he opened negotiations with the Russian folks when racing was resumed in that country, harpooned a job with the Countess—and Eddie Dugan has gone.

Can You Blame Him?

Roger O'Malley, the Ohio featherweight, who may be matched soon for a battle with George Chaney, the "Kill-'em-Dead Kid," has sort of lost faith in managers. O'Malley, whose real name is Lemon Kegg, tells us this story: "I had a manager who wasn't treating me right. I cut loose from him and got a fight for myself down in Cincinnati. Just as I was about to go on, I was informed by the boxing authorities there that I couldn't fight. I was told that my former manager had sent word I had some sort of heart trouble. "Since then I have been examined by two heart specialists at different times, and under every possible condition. Both pronounced my heart in absolutely perfect condition and have given me certificates to that effect. "Some day I'm going to meet that former manager of mine again, and if he admits that he did send such a fake report about me to ruin my chances for a fight, I'll bust the gentleman on the nose so hard that he will think the Woolworth building, Pike's Peak or Jess Willard fell on him all at the same time."

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.) It certainly was some swiftest at Cleveland. The Yankees with a total of 19 hits scored as many runs and took another fall out of the leaders.

This is the crucial week in the east in the National League. There are apt to be some changes before the teams get through their playing.

A wild throw gave the Red Sox a victory over the White Sox.

Detroit was the only American League team in the west to uphold the glory of the Land of the Setting Sun. They again took the Athletics into camp.

The Nationals won again from the Reds.

SOCIAL SERVICE WORK IN MAY

The Bureau of Social Service makes the following report for the month of May:

Sixty families have been assisted, investigated, or supervised during the past month. Forty-three of these being old cases and 17 being new ones. The bureau has co-operated with the following agencies: Commissioners of charity, police department, recorder's court, judge of the county court, sheriff of Ulster county, district attorney, the school nurse, truant officers, Salvation Army, Daughters of Isabella, Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish War Veterans, county agent, department of health, Kingston City Hospital, Sunshine Society, Day Nursery, Loyal Friends' Aid Society, the fire department, department of education, the S. P. C. A., the Middletown State Hospital, several churches and individuals. The bureau has secured ninety-two days work for men and women, eighty-five for women, and seven for men. In addition to this the bureau secured two permanent positions for women and two for men. At this season of the year cases of people being stranded in the city, are being frequently reported to the bureau, saying they are on their way to the mountains or some other plausible story. These cases are being investigated by the bureau in co-operation with the city officials and no one is being helped to his destination unless his story is believed to be true. Children's clothes are always needed by the families, in whom the bureau is interested, and anyone having such articles will kindly communicate with Mrs. Laura MacMillan, secretary of the Bureau of Social Service, 27 E. O'Reilly street. Tel. 1586.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES
The high school regents examinations will all begin at nine a. m. or one p. m. sharp, and drastic measures will be taken to see that the building is completely quiet at the time.
All regents marks in a subject will be placed on the bulletin board as soon as all the papers on that subject have been corrected. For the benefit of the graduating class, their papers will be corrected first and any returns posted on same colored paper may be understood to concern members of the senior class.
Due to the great amount of clerical work necessary during this week, it will be impossible for the teachers or the office to answer any telephone calls regarding marks. In fact an order has been given for them not to do so.

Senior Day Assembly.
The last day of school for the graduating class was fittingly celebrated by unusual exercises in their honor in the morning assembly.
The exercises were commenced by a ringing response to "Come Thou Almighty King," and this was followed by an old favorite "The Mermaid," that was sung by the senior class alone. The hall was next made to resound with the rendering of another long famed school song "The Bugler."
Following this was the presentation of the athletic letters, which were awarded to all the varsity boys and girls on the various teams this year. The president of the Athletic Association, John Joyce, officiated.
The members of the girl's basketball team of the past season, which had a no defeat season and a consequent championship of the central Hudson, were awarded a maroon "K" of the simple block type, and they were given out in the following order: Faith Safford, manager; Josephine Schmid, captain; Ruth Humphrey, Lillian Herdman, Helen Wood, Margaret Riseler, Anetta Van Bramer and Helen Weber.
The football team members received a large "K" in the following order: Charles Sibley, manager; Watson Wheeler, captain; John Joyce, Harold Johnson, Earl Gill, John Palsi, Raymond Terwilliger, James Riseley, Kenneth Sullivan and Sherman Hasbrouck. The members of the team not present who earned their "K's" were Hallinan, Peleman, Gregory, Bernstein and McAnille.
The basketball players received a small red "K" similar to the girls' letters. They were awarded to John Church, manager; John Palsi, captain; Harold Johnson, James Kierman, Chester Holson, James Riseley and Louis Silverman.
The baseball team also received large white "K's" and these went to John Dwyer, manager; Raymond Terwilliger, captain; William McAnille, pitcher; Edmund Relyea, Watson Wheeler, Louis Silverman, Harold Johnson, James Kierman, Samuel Pever and Nelson Miles.
There were two athletes who made all three teams, and they were Harold Johnson and John Joyce, although John's modesty would not permit him to present himself with more than one letter. A remark to this effect from Mr. Moulton, and a great cheer from the student body expressed no more good feeling than is due this quiet fellow, Joyce, a three letter man, present president of the A. A., and next year's captain of the basketball team.
When all the letters had been given out, the school sang "There's a Great and Happy Country," and then Mr. Michael made a few complimentary remarks regarding a picture to be taken of the students in assembly, and which he went on to state would be presented to Commissioner Finley along with a publication concerning the history of Kingston's schools. While the young people were waiting for the photographer to induce "the bird" to show itself in the lens of the camera, they sang two more good old school songs "Sailing," and "When All the World is Young."
As a final number the seniors sang "Hall and Farewell."

Large Sale of "Maroons."
The senior year book was put on sale at noon Friday and inside of a half hour the merits of the volume were proven by the fact that the first three hundred copies had all been sold and at afternoon dismissal enough more were disposed of to make a total of more than five hundred and fifty sold.
The staff of the Maroon was: Fred B. Van Etten, editor in chief; assistant editor, George W. Greene; athletic editors, Raymond Terwilliger and Wilson LeFevre; for G. A. A., Ruth A. Humphrey; literary editors, Edward Van Winkle, Beth Osborne, Mary Donovan and Kathleen Snyder; art editor, LeRoy Port; school editors, Jessie Barton and Goldie Bloom. The business manager, Samuel Peyer and the assistant business managers, Alfred Schmid and Joseph H. Hazen. The publication does the staff credit. It contains about 100 pages, with a soft paper cover and is about seven by ten inches in size.

Senior Minstrels.
An abundance of jokes and personals were offered the audience, and the seniors were so desirous of hitting everyone while they were at it, that they occasionally had to stretch their efforts more than the audience could appreciate.

The solos were excellently rendered and were as follows: "Memories" by Geoffrey Strugnell; "My Mother's Rosary" by Ruth Vignes; "Sweet Elene" by Ida Lazarus; "The Kid is Clever" by Helen Wood; "On a Dreamy Summer's Night" by John Palsi, who received an elegant bouquet of rhubarb, bananas and cabbage.
The chorus also sang "On the Rock Road to Dublin," and a quartet of Church, Strugnell, Haines and Gillette rendered "Sleep Kentucky Babe."

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS
INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

YELLOW-BILLED CUCKOO
(Coccyzus americanus)

Range: Breeds generally in the United States and southern Canada; winters in South America.
Habits and economic status: This bird lives on the edges of woodland, in groves, orchards, parks, and even in shaded village streets. It is sometimes known as rain crow, because its very characteristic notes are supposed to foretell rain. The cuckoo has sly, furtive ways as it moves among the bushes or flits from tree to tree, and is much more often heard than seen. Unlike its European relative, it does not lay its eggs in other birds' nests, but builds a nest of its own. This is, however, a rather crude and shabby affair—hardly more than a platform of twigs sufficient to hold the greenish eggs. The cuckoo is extremely useful because of its insectivorous habits, especially as it shows a marked preference for the hairy caterpillars, which few birds eat. One stomach that was examined contained 250 American tent caterpillars; another, 217 fall webworms. In places where tent caterpillars are abundant they seem to constitute a large portion of the food of this and the black-billed cuckoo.

No Commendation.
"You seem to think a great deal of that candidate."
"How do you arrive at that conclusion?" asked Senator Borghum.
"Why, you have always supported him."
"Yes; but a public man's attitude toward a candidate may be that of the family toward the head of the house. You don't necessarily think any more of a man because you've got to support him."

Turks Care Little for Stage.
At Kadi Keul, the ancient Chalcedon, is situated the one and only Turkish theater in or near Constantinople, a rickety, wooden construction capable of accommodating, however, a large number of onlookers. Performances are witnessed only by men, are given three times a week, and take place in broad daylight.

Searchlight.
It is the course of mortal things that the good should be shadowed by the bad, and virtue shine the rightest when contrasted with vice. Whoever proposes to discourage vice and to vindicate religion, morality and social order against their enemies must unveil crime in all its deformity and place it before the eyes of men in its colossal magnitude; he must diligently explore its dark mazes and make himself familiar with sentiments at the wickedness of which his oil revolts.—Schiller.

SYRACUSE WINS HIGHLAND RACES

Crowds, afloat and ashore, saw the Syracuse University crew win both the varsity and junior varsity eight-oared shell races in the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson Saturday evening with Cornell second, Columbia third and Pennsylvania last, the same finish order obtaining in both events. Rough water and bad conditions combined to delay matters, the Freshman race being put over until today and the varsity race substituted after the crowds had exhibited a restive spirit.

In the junior varsity race Syracuse overtaken Cornell in the last half mile and pulled out to a lead of two lengths at the finish in the slow time of 11 minutes, 15 2-5 seconds.
The race was a battle from the gun, Syracuse, Columbia and Cornell being on even terms the first half mile.
Cornell pulled ahead as the bridge was reached and thence to the finish it was a brilliant duel between the Ithacans and Syracuse.

When Syracuse caught the Ithacans just below the Cornell boat house there was a resounding cheer from the crowd from the Salt City.
With only a quarter of a mile to go the Syracuse eight rushed on to certain victory, rowing further away from Cornell at every stroke. The Ithacans were second, some three lengths ahead of Columbia, which never raised the beat a point and finished rowing 23. Pennsylvania was fourth, ten lengths in the ruck.
The shells of all the crews were almost swash at the end.

The Varsity Followed.

Because of the rough water the stewards decided to delay the other races and it was not until 7 o'clock that he river smoothed down enough to start another contest and then, rather than disappoint the crowd,
the varsity was rowed.

Pennsylvania caught the water at 38 strokes to the minute and jumped into the lead, but Syracuse sprinting off the mark at the same speed, caught and passed the flying Quakers in less than a dozen strokes, and Columbia with the beat at 24 was not far behind. Cornell, much to everyone's surprise, towed only a 30 beat and in the first half mile dropped back a full length.

Just before the Columbia quarters at the mile mark were reached, Syracuse shook off Pennsylvania while Cornell was up on even terms with Columbia.

Impelled by the same powerful 26 stroke, Cornell slowly, but surely, cut down the Red and Blue, while Columbia dropped farther and farther back, although it had picked up the stroke and was rowing at 30, the same as Pennsylvania. Syracuse the while was rowing at 29, and yielding over so slightly to Cornell. The orange was splashing badly every once in a while and Captain Glass at No. 2 was having trouble keeping in time with the rest, and Thomas at No. 3 was bucking his oar.

There seemed to be little trouble in either the Cornell or Columbia boats, both were rowing smoothly, the former getting full advantage of the immense power stored up in the shell while the latter, rowing a slightly higher stroke than either of the leaders, did not have the power to drive the shell with equal speed.

When the Syracuse crew, rowing a smooth, powerful stroke that swept all opposition aside, swung under the giant arches of the big bridge at the three-mile mark, lights were twinkling on all sides.

But even in the fast falling light
it was not hard to see that his crew the greatest that Syracuse has ever had, and one of the greatest that ever rowed on the Hudson, was towing with the stout hearted sons of Cornell. On ahead they shot some over the finish line finally a length ahead of Cornell.

Autos Line Banks.

Automobiles were parked along the river banks in numbers equal to anything of former years although the crowds ashore were said to be smaller. On the river the usual number of private yachts and other craft was in evidence with parties of sightseers.

Returning autoists had their troubles too, the Sleightburza ferry showing its utter inadequacy to handle any number of machines.
The wise motorists, anticipating the congestion at this point took the state road by way of Edenville and there noticed numbers of cars which had started from Highland long before but which had refused to wait at the ferry.

Missing From West Park.

The police received word on Sunday that Pino Velli, an Italian boy, 10 years old, was missing from his home at West Park, and was last seen near the West Shore station at that place. It was thought he had come to Kingston.

day in the city ambulance.

CAVALRY FIRST TO BE UTILIZED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 19.—It is considered certain that the crack cavalry units of New York, Massachusetts, Illinois and Ohio will be the first troops called to the border by General Funston. Under orders from the war department, the disposition of all troops will be withheld for the present. These troops are to gather at the points selected and from their numbers, General Funston will select those he needs for immediate service.

One thing which greatly pleased officials here was the fact that the majority of the units have expressed a desire to take the oath as provided in the Hay-Chamberlain law, which goes into effect July 1 instead of the one now in effect, which is taken from the Dick Law. This development is held here to indicate that little trouble will be experienced in securing the 100,000 National Guardsmen the army general staff considers essential for the success of the present contemplated movement.

The oath to be taken by militiamen under the Hay-Chamberlain law, follows:

"I do hereby acknowledge to have voluntarily enlisted this day of —, 19—, as a soldier of the National Guard of the United States and of the state of —, for the period of three years in service and three years in the reserve, under the conditions described by law, unless sooner discharged by the proper authorities. And I do solemnly swear that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America and to the state of —, and that I will serve them honestly and faithfully against all enemies whomsoever, and that I will obey the orders of the president of the United States and of the Governor of the state of
—, and the officers appointed over me according to law and the rules and articles of war."

(Signed) —.

Under this oath, the troops can be utilized in any way the president desires.

The adjutant-general's department did it be known today that instead of the 4,000 militiamen it had been hoped would be mustered into the service from Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, the total will be less than 2,000. The regimental rolls are padded, officials say, and of the total examined to date, some 1,080 names of men who don't exist have been found.

Secretary of War Baker said at 10:30 that he had not advised from the border that he could make public. He denied, however, that he had any report that American troops had been attacked.

It was learned that General Funston has reported to the war department that the activity of the Mexican forces in the northern states is increasing and that the situation is extremely dangerous.

The war department had received up to ten thirty today reports from the frontiers of the adjoining states saying that mobilization was well under way.

Oregon, Georgia, Maine, Indiana, Montana, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois,
North Dakota, Iowa, Virginia,
Washington, Mississippi, Vermont, Tennessee, Missouri, Michigan and New York.

Inasmuch as there is no requirement in the law for state authorities to report at all the war department was highly pleased that these states had reported and expected that by midnight tonight every state in the union would have placed itself on record as having obeyed the president's orders.

HUGHES AGAIN VISITS NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 19.—Charles Evans Hughes arrived here from Washington early this morning for a busy day of political conferences before leaving for Providence to attend the graduation exercises at Brown University, his alma mater.

The chief business before him was the selection of a campaign manager.
This will be done at a meeting this afternoon between Hughes and the Republican sub-committee on organization headed by W. Murray Crane, at the Astor Hotel. Mr. Hughes has made a selection, it is understood, from a list of candidates including Frank P. McEachern, who manages
C. W. Wiley, president of the New York city board of education. He will ask the sub-committee to ratify his choice.

Mr. Hughes was accompanied to
New York only by his secretaries, Mrs. Hughes, who had planned to accompany him, decided to remain behind.

Mr. Hughes expects to return to New York on Thursday.

New York Striking Garment Workers
Attempt to Stir Up Strike Among
Employees of the J. Davis Company
on Broadway Today—Police on Hand to Prevent Disorder.

Several men from New York city, who are mixed up in the big clothing strike in that city, are in Kingston, and this morning made an unsuccessful attempt to get the garment workers at the J. Davis Company plant at No. 662 Broadway, near Downs street, to go out on strike.

Police headquarters were notified and Policemen James J. Murphy and Spitzer were detailed to prevent and disorder and kept the strike inciters on the move up and down Broadway.

Later in the morning Mr. Davis appeared in recorder's court and sought to have the men arrested. He claimed that they had threatened his employees. He was advised to have his employees who were threatened appear in court and swear out the warrants.

Mr. Davis when questioned said that his employees were well satisfied with their jobs and he saw no reason why strikers from New York city should attempt to come here and stir up any local trouble.

The strike inciters claim that the reason they are in town is because they believe the strike in New York city is a just one, and that they are attempting to have factories outside the big city refuse to do any work for the New York factories until the strike is settled.

The police on duty in front of the Davis plant found that it was not necessary to make any arrests as there was no disorder.

Work continued as usual today at the Davis factory and no difficulty is expected with the employees.

The Three Scutalis.

By this time we should all know much about the bear east not to confound the various Scutalis—the one in Alabama, the one opposite Constantinople and the one in southern Greece. It is a curious fact that each name comes from a different original form. The Greek Scutalis is otherwise Scutalis; the Albanian one is the Illyrian Scutalis, and the Asiatic one is the Turkish Scutalis.
This last means a carrier carrying mail orders from station to station and communicates the fact that this place, the ancient Chrysopolis, or City of Gold, was the starting point of the Asiatic express.—York's Companion.

Man.

What a piece of work is man! How pressive and admirable! In action how like a of animals!—Hamlet.

TRAPPED BY HIS BLIND RAGE.

For Stupid Obstinacy a Himalayan Bear Takes the Prize.

"Most wild animals are stupid as well as greedy, but for sheer brainless obstinacy in the face of opposition," writes Prince Sarath Ghosh in his book,
"The Wonders of the Jungle." "There is no animal like the Himalayan bear. If he finds a thing in his way he will always push it aside, if he can, even though it would be easier to go round the obstacle."

"The wily natives of India have observed that trait in his character and from it have contrived a trap to catch him. They select a tree with a suitable horizontal bough. At a point on the bough about ten or twelve feet from the fork they fasten a bait likely to attract the bear—honey, for example, or goat's flesh. Then from another bough above that one they suspend a heavy block of stone. The rope is so attached to the upper bough that the stone hangs between the bait and the fork of the tree.

"The bear scent the bait from a distance, comes to the tree, sees the food on the bough and climbs up the trunk of the tree. Reaching the bough, he walks along it to get at the bait. But suddenly he notices the obstacle in the way and pushes it aside with his paw.
The stone swings out of the way for a second, then it swings back and hits the bear on the paw. With a growl of irritation the bear pushes it aside more violently. The stone swings away again; then it returns with greater force and hits the bear on the chest."

"With a snarl of rage the bear gives the stone a tremendous thrust and sends it up into the air in a wide curve. Then down comes the stone in a similar curve, and hits the bear a thumping whack on the ribs."

"Most animals would desist after that third blow; not so the bear. He is now in a perfectly mad rage, and a bear is a good boxer. He hits out with his paws right and left and sends the stone burling forward in a still wider curve.
Then after a few seconds the stone comes back and hits the bear a terrific
"uppercut" on the jaw."

"The bear is roused to white hot fury. He thinks an enemy is hiding behind the stone—as an enemy might do in the jungle—and he is determined to reach that enemy."

"But, alas, the bear never went to school and learned the law of gravity!
Every blow he hits the stone is returned tenfold. And as the stone has no brains to be knocked out it is the bear that gets knocked out at last. He will never, never give in until he is knocked out—of the tree."

"Then the wily natives hiding below rush in with a net and throw it quickly over him."

"And that is how many menageries and zoos get their Himalayan bear."

ALLEGED GIRL THIEF CAUGHT

Police Arrest Alice Colvin, 17 Years Old, Charged With Being With Anna Short, When She Stole a Silk Dress.

Sergeant Hanley on Sunday arrested Miss Alice Colvin, 17 years old, on a charge of petit larceny, and this morning when she was arraigned in recorder's court before Acting Recorder William D. Brinnier, Jr., her trial was adjourned until Tuesday morning, and she was remanded to jail.

It is claimed by the police that the Colvin girl was a chum of Miss Anna Short, who was arrested the other day, and who pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing a silk dress from a building on East Strand. The Short girl is being held in jail, and it is understood that she will be sentenced as soon as the trial of the Colvin girl is finished.

The Colvin girl has been in trouble before when her father complained to the police that she was a disorderly child and was all the time "gadding the streets." She was placed on parole at that time.

At the time the Short girl was arrested it was learned by the police that the Colvin girl was mixed up in the matter, and a warrant was issued for her arrest. She was not located by the police, however, until Sunday, when she was placed under arrest.

This morning she pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Poughkeepsie, June 19.—Cornell won the freshman race here today, leading all the day and finishing two lengths and a half ahead of Syracuse. To Open a Pocketknife.
Opening pocketknives is often very hard on finger nails, and a stiff hinged penknife or jackknife is practically useless to a boy if he can't open it readily. Tear off a piece of newspaper or writing paper about three inches square. Fold it across once and then slip the crease under the blade of the knife. Grasp the paper firmly between the thumb and forefinger, as shown to the right as possible. Then pull steadily as if you were opening the knife without the paper. If you do not jerk it the paper will not tear. In this way you can open many a rusty blade that has been useless for months.—American Boy.

DIAMOND NOTES

George Sisler was born in Akron, Ohio, and he is not a flat tire, either.

"Ivy" Wingo has struck his hitting stride, and ought to be a big help to the Reds.

"Joe" Judge, the Washington first baseman, seems at last to have hit his stride.

Dell, Pfeffer and Smith have to date shown the best pitching form for Brooklyn.

Barney, the Pittsburgh outfielder, was once a United States sailor. Now he's a Pirate.

High living will get an athlete. Bullet Joe Bush consumed a hot dog and was on the sick list ten days.

Another Cy Young has passed out. Evansville releasing the veteran pitcher, who could not get started this year.

Babe Adams is no longer a hero in Pittsburgh, because of the poor showing he has made, and there are clamors that he be disposed of by the club.

Manager Jimmy Callahan is quoted as complimenting Hans Wagner highly as a player. That's interesting. Wonder what Hans thinks of Jimmy as a manager?

Harry (Moore) McCormick, former pinch hitter for the Giants, manager of Chattanooga, steel salesman, etc., is now handling an independent team at Montclair, N. J.

Fritz Malsell's brother has been canned by the Detroit club, which indicates Fritz's brother didn't get an even break when the baseball talent was distributed in the Malsell family.

THE MYSTERY DEEPENS

You have heard of the woman who was shot between the kitchen and the woodshed. But the Erie dispatch recently went that story one better, like this: "The woman's body was found with two bullet wounds in the bathtub."—Associated Advertising.

Frank Schulte seems to be that ball player who has outlived their usefulness when they pass the age of thirty. This, of course, is disproved by the baseball Hans Wagner has been playing for the Pirates this year and for the past 12 years.

Frank Schulte of the Cubs also denies that a player's ability begins to deteriorate when he passes the age of thirty, and is proving it by the game he has been playing this year. There are others of the same opinion. Garry Cravath of the Phillies says a man should play satisfactorily until he is forty, if he takes care of himself.

Last season and the year before Schulte did not play the brand of ball Cub fans liked to see. He appeared more indifferent than ever, and the impression circulated that he was sliding, writes Oscar C. Reichow in Chicago Daily News. It was doubtful whether he would be one of the regulars on Manager Tinker's team.

The fans, when they formed this opinion, did not know that Schulte was dissatisfied with his managers and the environment and that he did not care a great deal whether school kept or not. Still, he played as well as the average outfielder and closed the season of 1915 with 12 homers to his credit.

Manager Tinker was somewhat disturbed over Schulte when President Woeppmann took over the Cubs and made inquiries in various quarters to learn whether the veteran outfielder still retained any of his skill or ability to hit. Tinker had his doubts and was inclined to favor the younger players. Besides he was not certain whether Frank would have the proper whet to make a winning combination. At the opening of the season Leslie Mann was favored, but Schulte soon showed Tinker his mistake, and now is playing better than he has done for years.

Cub fans were not slow in observing that he had not gone back any and that he really was playing better ball for Tinker than he did for Chance, Evers, O'Day or Bresnahan. Remarks have been frequent this spring concerning his hustling, the form he showed at the plate and the manner in which he covered the outfield scientifically with Cy Williams. The fans have cheered and encouraged him to drive out the long hits that made him popular on the West side for more than ten years. He has responded nobly.

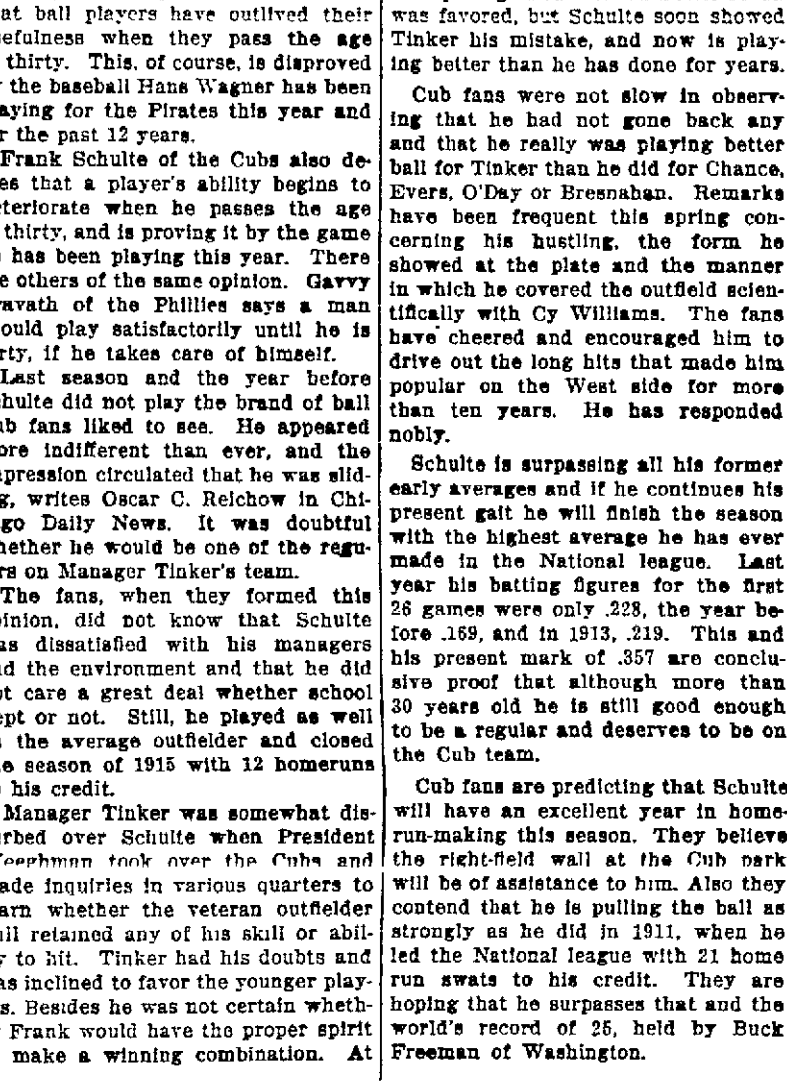

Schulte is surpassing all his former early averages and if he continues his present gait he will finish the season with the highest average he has ever made in the National league. Last year his batting figures for the first 26 games were only .228, the year before .169, and in 1913, .219. This and his present mark of .357 are conclusive proof that although more than 30 years old he is still good enough to be a regular and deserves to be on the Cub team.

Cub fans are predicting that Schulte will have an excellent year in home-run-making this season. They believe the right-field wall at the Cub park will be of assistance to him. Also they contend that he is pulling the ball as strongly as he did in 1911, when he led the National league with 21 home run swats to his credit. They are hoping that he surpasses that and the world's record of 26, held by Buck Freeman of Washington.

SCHALK IS LEADING CATCHER

Has Made Rapid Strides to Front Rank Since Comiskey Secured Him From Milwaukee.

Ray Schalk of the White Sox stands out as the leading catcher in the big show. Schalk has made rapid strides to the front rank since Comiskey took him out of the American Association.

Ray Schalk.

He is able to catch all kinds of pitching, is a deadly thrower, and can hit the ball. Schalk of the Athletics comes next, in the opinion of many students of baseball.

Name Mispronounced.
Benny Kauff says his name is not pronounced that way at all. It is "Cowf," of the barnyard or dairy farm variety. Some people thought it could be pronounced to rhyme with laugh, and the news from Benny will be a disappointment to poets who were framing up a few things on him.

THREE VARIETIES OF LOCAL DRUNKS

One Threatens to Beat Up His Wife. Another Fakes an Illness, While the Third Gets Beaten Up By Another.

The various effects that booze has upon our local products was shown in the three varieties that were rounded up Saturday night and Sunday by the police force and brought before the bar of justice.

William Kane of Port Ewen on Saturday evening decided to enjoy a moonlight sail and made a trip to Rondout on the Skippiot and when he landed proceeded to get drunk. About nine o'clock at the corner of Broadway and Mill street he decided he was ill and sat down on the sidewalk and soon drew a crowd of about one hundred who felt deeply and sincerely sympathetic for the poor "unfortunate" man. They were outspoken, some of them, when the unsympathetic police—Officers White and Kuehn—instead of sending for a physician to "save the man's life" sent for the ambulance and bundled the "poor man" in and took him to the city hall. Sunday morning he had recovered and was discharged with a warning. Mr. Kane gave his age as 60 years.

The same evening Policeman Fout learned that there had been a fight in Hicksville and hurried to the scene and found one Virgil Sampson, a negro, 40 years of age, lying in the driveway of Ezra Sampson's place on Washington avenue. Sampson complained of pain in his head and had several bumps where he had been struck. He was taken to the court house where a physician made an examination and found that it was the bumps on Virgil's head that caused Virgil pain. This morning Virgil was arraigned before City Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., who presided in recorder's court owing to the unavoidable absence of Recorder Lang. When asked to explain how it all happened said that one William Brown, a white man, had hit him and dragged him over the sidewalk and left him in the driveway.

Virgil when asked if he was guilty on the charge of being drunk and unable to take care of himself scratched his head and finally said that he was not really, but confessed that he was drunk.

Judge Brinnier gave him two days in the county jail to think things over. The third variety of drunk brought to the attention of Judge Brinnier this morning was Hiram Stokes of No. 62 West Union street. Sunday afternoon a woman's voice over the telephone informed police headquarters that Mr. Stokes was drunk and had threatened to shoot his wife. Policeman Welsh was sent to the scene and paced Hiram under arrest. Later Hiram was taken to the lockup in the city hall.

This morning it was brought out that Hiram has a steady job on the beach earning his $2 a day, and that he had got drunk when he met some friends. He could not remember just what had happened next, but confessed to having two rifles in the house, but both were empty said he. He was warned that if he was ever brought up again it would go hard with him, and on his promise to behave and stay sober he was discharged.

CARLISLE INDIANS HERE TUESDAY

Will Play Fast Kingston Team at Athletic Field on Tuesday Afternoon. When a Good Game Can be Expected.

Tuesday afternoon at the Athletic Field a fast game of baseball is expected when the Carlisle Indians will clash with the fast Kingston team. The visitors are full bodied Indians and carry with them a number of players as the only Indian baseball pitcher in the world, and a descendant of Indian royalty. They have been playing some fast teams up the state and have won several victories, and Kingston will put one of its strongest lineups in the field against the warriors. The probable lineup of Kingston will be: Kissam and Williams, pitchers; Schirick and Cragan, catchers; Morgan, 1st base; Hoyer, 2nd base; Ashdown, 3rd base; Lowther, 3rd base; McLean, 1st base; Anderson, c. f.; and Fitzgerald, r. f. The game will be called at 4 o'clock, and weather permitting a large crowd of "fans" should be on hand.

Kioskie Was Discharged.

After a lively trial in recorder's court this morning before Acting Recorder William D. Brinnier, Jr., John Kioskie of Hooker street, who was charged with assault upon Morris Basch of St. Mary's street, was discharged by the court. Edward McKiernan appeared for Mr. Kioskie. The trouble started over some cows which Mr. Basch owned. Mr. Basch claimed that Mr. Kioskie assaulted him and hit him over the head with a large stone. Mr. Kioskie claimed that Mr. Basch struck him first with a whip.

McAerny Offered Nomination.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, June 19.—George McAerny, formerly president of the board of aldermen, New York, was today informally offered the Democratic nomination for governor by Chairman Harris of the Democratic state committee. Mr. McAerny and Chairman Harris were in consultation here for some time. It is understood M. McAerny declined.

SIXTY-NINTH TO BE FIRST IN CAMP

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, June 19.—Before leaving for Northampton today Governor Whitman announced that he would personally inspect the New York state troops at Beekman before they left for the border. The date of the visit was not given out.

In the opinion of the governor it will take about five days for the mobilization of the militia at Beekman. The Sixty-ninth regiment of New York will be the first on the scene.

Conferences with Generals O'Ryan and Stotesbury were held by the governor until the time for his departure for Northampton.

After the militia is mobilized the task of transporting them to Mexico becomes the duty of the federal government and the state has no further responsibility.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, June 19.—On Sunday afternoon a party from Catskill in a Ford automobile skidded into the front of Dragotta's barber shop on lower Main street. They settled for the damage.

Brookside pigeon lofts sold several hundred choice Carneau pigeons on Saturday. They were purchased by E. E. Rice of Boston, Mass., representing the Plymouth Rock Snail Co. Brookside lofts will discontinue the snail business and will be used for the breeding of high grade Carneau pigeons, as intended by its late owner, Fred C. O'Leary. Brookside birds have sold in nearly every state in the union.

VANCE MCCORMICK

St. Louis, June 19.—The selection of Vance McCormick as chairman of the Democratic National Committee was accepted here as a definite bid for Progressive support. McCormick is regarded by the leading members of the party as a Progressive Democrat. In 1914 he was the Democratic nominee for governor of Pennsylvania.

McCormick is a man of great wealth and business ability. The family to which he belongs owns coal lands, steel works, grain warehouses and hundreds of farms in the vicinity of Harrisburg. His business is that of a banker and capitalist, and he is prominent socially. He served a term as mayor of Harrisburg in 1902, though it is a Republican city. He has always been a liberal campaign contributor.

Mr. McCormick is now forty-four years old. He is a bachelor short of stature but sturdy of build. His physique is that of a hard-boned athlete with a fresh, ruddy complexion that gives an unusually youthful appearance. During the height of his college career in 1892, Mr. McCormick was elected captain of the Yale football team.

PASSENGER FARES CAN'T BE RAISED

The up-state Public Service Commission has refused to permit the New York Central to put into effect tariffs proposed to put the passenger fares within the state of New York on a uniform basis of 2½ cents a mile. Determining that the effect of such a new schedule would be an increase in rates in most instances, the commission holds that the railroad has clearly not proven its need for this increase within the provisions of the law and court decisions. The prevailing opinion is written by Commissioners James O. Carr to this effect.

All the other commissioners concur except Commissioner Emmet, who, dissenting in part holds that on the ground that the proposed new schedules would afford greater uniformity of rates they should be allowed to go into effect. Chairman Van Santvoord submits a memorandum answering Commissioner Emmet's contentions and holding that even the proposed new schedules would not effect the uniformity which Commissioner Emmet desires.

In the order denying the proposed rate schedules the commission holds that the need for the increases affecting the Hudson river division is clearly unproven. With regard to changes on other divisions, the commission calls the attention of the railroad to obvious discriminations in the present rates on these divisions and suggests that they be modified. The schedules now proposed, however, the commission finds do not suitably effect this modification. The commission says that while it is possible some of the minor divisions of the road are not paying so far as passenger traffic is concerned, there is no just reason why this burden should be imposed through generally increased rates on the patrons of the main line where passenger business seems on the wane to be clearly profitable.

Commissioner Carr, discussing in his opinion the effort of the railroad to prove that it needs additional revenue from passenger business says that in view of the fact that the railroad earned in 1915 above all charges, 11.11 percent on its capital stock, such increased revenue is clearly not needed on the railroad's operation as a whole. It is also clearly not proven to be needed on intrastate passenger business. In reaching this conclusion he finds that in determining the cost of intrastate passenger business the railroad should have charged to interstate passenger business from 29 to 31 percent of the total of passenger operating costs within the state instead of 6 percent; this position being taken because the railroad's 6 percent allocation depended on the proportion of interstate to intrastate passengers carried; the higher percentage which the commission determines to be correct being based on the proportion of interstate to intrastate passenger miles within the state of New York.

The railroad contended that no portion of fares received from interstate passengers should be credited in intrastate revenue for the portion of the interstate journey within the state of New York. Commissioner Carr finds that a due proportion of these fares must be credited to intrastate revenues and that when they are so credited the intrastate revenues are increased by 50 percent. This is in direct accord with the contentions of assistant corporation counsel Rosenbom of New York city, and of Joseph S. Wood of Mr. Vernon, attorneys for the protestants against the new rates. Thus interpreted Commissioner Carr finds that the huge mass of figures submitted by the Central do not prove that additional passenger revenue within this state is needed.

Gifted Idiots.

Idiot have been known whose memory for names and words was so retentive that they could repeat verbatim and indicate where the preacher blew his nose and coughed in his delivery. Dr. Moffat, the distinguished African missionary and father-in-law of Dr. Livingstone, once preached a long sermon to a crowd of negroes. Shortly after he had finished he saw a number of negroes gather about a simple minded young savage. He went to them and discovered that the savage was preaching his sermon over again. Not only was he reproducing the precise words, but imitating the manner and gestures of the white preacher.—London Tit-Bits.

PUMPKINS vs. SQUASHES

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Ebenezer Singleton was a young man of twenty-three. He was a good and industrious young man and had acquired quite a little property thus early in his career. He had just purchased a cozy house, and the next thing needed was a wife.

Sarah Jane Scott, twenty years old, was a very nice girl—very nice. She was good at needlework, housework and other kinds of work which would have made her a treasure of a wife. She and Ebenezer met one day, and they looked good to each other. From thence sprang a courtship, and there was no one who interfered or objected. Ebenezer could support a wife, and Sarah Jane could be of great help to a husband.

There was only one trait in the character of either one that could be criticised, and that was developed to each other just at the wrong time. Ebenezer had come counting, and his mind was about made up to ask Sarah Jane for her hand when the conversation happened to touch on astronomy.

"Isn't it singular how the sun moves around the earth from east to west?" queried Ebenezer just as he was ready to go home.

"But the sun does not move around the earth," mildly protested Sarah Jane. "The earth moves around the sun, and it moves from east to west because nature arranged it to, just as it did for a tree to stand on its roots."

"Did you ever watch the sun move?" asked Ebenezer, with a very sober face.

"Never, Eben, but I have watched the earth move. The sun stands as still as a great rock, while our earth moves along. Why, Eben, don't you remember the proof given in geography of the earth's moving round the sun?"

"Well, well, Sarah, you are a queer girl. The sun certainly moves, and if you have never seen it move there is something very wrong with your eyes. It moves from east to west, but I don't see why it can't just as well move from north to south."

Sarah Jane looked at Ebenezer for a long minute to see if he was joking. She found him very earnest in this belief, and it gave her an unpleasant shock. She had never found him an ignorant man in any particular, and this was ignorance of the grossest kind.

"Eben," she quietly said, "you are not wanting me to understand that the sun moves along like a man walking? You cannot believe this against the known facts. It has been hundreds of years since it was known that the earth moved around the sun."

"People may think so, but that doesn't make it so," answered Ebenezer as the light of defiance shone in his eyes. "I say the sun moves. I have seen it move. I saw it moving along not five hours ago. My eyes are good eyes. What my eyes see I am not going back on. Are you going to believe that the sun stands still just because a lot of nearedighted men claim it does so?"

"Oh, well, we won't discuss the matter any further," said Sarah Jane, realizing that it might lead to unfortunate results.

"But we will!" exclaimed Ebenezer as he set his jaw. "You believe one way and I another. Let us decide who is right."

"But how are we going to decide?" she protested in tones which betrayed vexation.

"Why, you are going to believe as I believe."

"But I can't. You won't find one in a million people who believe with you. You can keep on believing so if you will, but I can never agree with you. However, it is a matter that we need not get angry about. We have always got plenty of sunshine whether the sun stands still or moves along, and we probably always shall. We are having pleasant weather, aren't we?"

And Ebenezer, the very good young man, but the very obstinate young man, walked out into the darkness. He never received the note referred to, and the reader will not wonder why. He expected it for a month, and when it never appeared he was more than ever determined in his belief that the sun moved right along and left everything behind it. As for Sarah Jane Scott, she was astonished, angered and humiliated, and you can't expect that the girl with such feelings is going to give up her point of view.

It wasn't necessary that either one should leave the town. Eben lived at one end of it and Sarah Jane the other, and they seldom met. When they did there was a cold nod exchanged. Several years passed away, and one day Sarah was married to a man named Peters. Before consenting to be his wife she questioned him about the sun. He readily answered that the earth moved around the sun, and the week later they were married.

When the news of her marriage reached the ears of Ebenezer he got a little on him, and three months later he was also married. Previous to his marriage he likewise asked the question that Sarah had asked—Does the sun move around the earth or the earth move around the sun?

"I don't care a snap which way it is," was the answer Ebenezer received.

"As your wife I shall agree with you."

TROOPS IN DANGER AS WILSON REFUSES WITHDRAWAL.

It is believed that a clash between American troops and Carranza's soldiers in Mexico is drawing nearer. The refusal of President Wilson to accede to Carranza's request for the withdrawal of American troops has created much hostile sentiment below the border and the punitive expedition under General Pershing is liable to be attacked at any moment. For some time large bodies of Carranza soldiers have menaced the American bases and lines of communication.

OLD TIME SUNDAY LAWS.

Rigid Rules For Harvard Students Two Centuries Ago.

In "The Story of Harvard" Mr. Arthur Stanwood Pier gives an account of the strict regulations formerly set down for the guidance of the Harvard undergraduates by the president and the fellows of the corporation. The old laws, intended to enforce upon the undergraduates a more religious and studious life, would be considered repressive and tyrannical today.

"All the scholars shall at sunset in the evening preceding the Lord's day retire to their chambers and not unnecessarily leave them, and all disorder on said evening shall be punished as violations of the Sabbath are. . . . And whosoever shall profane said day—the Sabbath—by unnecessary business or visiting, walking in the commons or in the streets or fields, in the town of Cambridge, or by any sort of diversion before sunset, or that in the evening of the Lord's day shall behave himself disorderly or in any way unbecoming the season, shall be fined not exceeding 10 shillings."

"That students may furnish themselves with useful learning, they shall keep in their respective chambers and diligently follow their studies, except half an hour at breakfast, at dinner for from 12 to 2 and after evening prayers till after 9 o'clock. To that end the tutors shall frequently visit their chambers after 9 o'clock in the evening and at other studying times, to quicken them to their business."

It does not seem that under such a system of vigilance and visitation the students could fall into very dissolute ways. But a few years later George Whitefield, the famous evangelist who so stirred up New England, visited Harvard college and expressed his displeasure at the dissipated habits of the young men. He declared conditions at Oxford were no worse, a charge so damaging that it greatly disturbed and incensed the college authorities.

BOOMERANG WITNESS IN ORPET CASE.

Miss Josephine Davis, a chum of Miss Marian Lambert, the young girl for whose murder Will S. Orpet is on trial at Waukegan, Ill., proved to be a boomerang witness for the state. The first story was antagonistic to Orpet, but on the witness stand she reversed her testimony and said that Miss Lambert had often expressed a desire to kill her. It is understood that a perjury charge will be placed against Miss Davis for the change in her story.

COMPANY M WAITS FOR "14"

Awaiting orders, the same as has been the case for more than three months, is the situation with respect to Company M, New York National Guard. Absolutely no unusual activity or excitement prevails at the armory for the guardsmen have been prepared for this emergency and all records for speed in movement may be broken once the order to mobilize does come.

Captain Meagher of Company M had nothing for publication today save to say that the officers had as yet received no orders. He said the company was ready and up to peace strength of 100 men.

It is not yet known whether the Tenth regiment will be among the nine regiments ordered to mobilize. The next 24 hours may furnish more information on this point. The signal for Company M to assemble will be the fire alarm sounding No. 14.

NEW PALTZ PLANS A GRAND PAGEANT

The class day exercises of the New Paltz Normal will be held on the afternoon of June 27 at 2 p. m. The usual class history, etc., will be omitted and a "Nature Pageant or Legend of the Valley" will be given on the lawn. Miss Herrig, a member of the faculty, has written this sketch in which the main character represents the Shawangunk Mountain. The participants will pass out through the main entrance to the lawn to music by the orchestra, led by Miss Bessie Dickenson of Highland. "Shawangunk" will be followed by a group of girls representing the spirit of the Catskills and Mohonk. The lake and river will be represented by two girls. The next division will be marshalled by groups of girls representing the sky, clouds, sunshine, storm and the four winds and they in turn will be followed by girls in groups, representing trees and birds and flowers and butterflies. The next group will characterize the Indian maidens, who eventually are overcome by the Dutch and French group. Then comes the sweet, pretty school girl group that all are familiar with. After the march, speeches and addresses will be given in which the story or history of the following objects of interest will be told: History of the school, the bell, the deer on the lawn which is now minus two horns, the street school which was conducted soon after the burning of the old school, the fire, the great parade in celebration of the signing by the governor of the $145,000 bill in which all New Paltz was interested and the breaking of the ground for the present school. The annual junior play will be given in the gym in the evening, the title being "Three Girls From School." Miss Ellmore Allison of Newburgh is president of the class. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached in the gym on the morning of the 25th. Commencement exercises will be held in the gym on Wednesday morning, June 28. The class numbers about 150. Miss Myrtle Parslow of Kingston has been chosen valedictorian. The "senior prom" will be held in the "gym" on the evening of the 25th. Scofield's orchestra of Newburgh will furnish the music.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

New York, June 19.—Dario Resta is so far in the lead in the race for the auto racing championship of 1916 that it seems no one can even hope to head off the Italian-English daredevil.
Resta's recent victory in the Chicago derby race, which closely followed his easy win in the Indianapolis classic, have pushed his total points up to the 1,500 mark—1,200 than his nearest rival. And Resta's friends declare that "the end isn't yet."

In other years the championship was little more than an empty honor. But this season it is different. In addition to winning a huge silver trophy, the victor will get at least $15,000—and possibly $20,000 or so—in cash. The B. F. Goodrich people have donated $10,000; the Horsch magnets, $3,500. Other accessories people may chip in $5,000 to $10,000 more.

The standing of the first ten drivers who are in the race for the silver and the currency, follows:
Driver.
1. Dario Resta 1,800
2. E. V. Rickenbacker 600
3. W. D'Alene 510
4. Ralph De Palma 470
5. J. Christaens 370
6. Jules Devigne 320
7. Ira Vall 300
8. Ralph Mulford 240
9. C. H. Devlin 90
10. Barney Oldfield 80
Eddie O'Donnell 80

Schulte Upsets Dope.
What do you make of the case of Frank Schulte, of the Cubs?
In 1911 he hit for .309; in 1912 he totalled .244; in 1913 it was .278; in 1914 it was .241, and last year it was .245.

And now here is Schulte in 1916, his 14th in the majors and his 24th on this earth, breezing along with the race at a whirlwind clip.
Up to the present time Schulte has hit far beyond any mark he ever annexed during his long career in the majors. And he shows no signs of "cracking." Rather he is hitting them harder and oftener every week. At the advanced age of 34, old "Wildfire" ought to be hoarded in the general direction of the baseball junk yard. But, instead, his average, far beyond the .300 figure, points him directly toward the goal of every batsman—the clubbing leadership of his league.

Famous Jockey Quits U. S. A.

Eddie Dugan has sailed away from these United States—and the horse world mourns the loss of one of the greatest jockeys that ever swept under a barrier. Dugan is on his way to Russia, where he will ride for Countess Eugene Lazareff.
Dugan was a sensation in the turf here before racing was legalized out of New York state and elsewhere. Even so went to Russia, where he added to his fame. He remained in the land of Czar Nick until the outbreak of war put racing there temporarily on the blink. Dugan came back and was signed to ride for August Belmont.

However, the Irish lad had added some poundage while abroad and displaced 110 striped. That was a little too heavy to suit Belmont. Dugan hung around for a year or so, and got his salary for it, but little work. Illnesses plagued him. So he opened negotiations with the Russian folks when racing was resumed in that country. Harpooned a job with the Countess—and Eddie Dugan has gone.

Can You Blame Him?

Roger O'Malley, the Ohio featherweight, who may be matched soon for a battle with George Chaney, the "Kill-em-Dead Kid," has sort of lost faith in managers.

O'Malley, whose real name is Leon Kegg, tells us this story:
"I had a manager who wasn't treating me right. I cut loose from him and got a fight for myself down in Cincinnati. Just as I was about to go on, I was informed by the boxing authorities there that I couldn't fight. I was told that my former manager had sent word I had some sort of heart trouble.
"Since then I have been examined by two hour specialists at different times, and under every possible condition. Both pronounced my heart in absolutely perfect condition and have given me certificates to that effect."

"Some day I'm going to meet that former manager of mine again, and if he admits that he did send such a fake report about me to ruin my chances for a fight, I'll pass for a man on the nose so hard that he will think the Woolworth building, Pike's Peak or Jess Willard fell on him all at the same time."

Hot Liners.

It certainly was some swiftest at Cleveland. The Yankees with a total of 19 hits scored as many runs and took another fall out of the leaders.

This is the crucial week in the east in the National League. There are apt to be some changes before the teams get through their playing.

A wild throw gave the Red Sox a victory over the White Sox.

Detroit was the only American League team in the west to uphold the glory of the land of the Setting Sun. They again took the Athletics into camp.

The Nationals won again from the Reds.

The Browns got back into their stride by taking a game from the Cardinals.

There's no stopping Frank Kramer. The champion bicycle rider won another titular event by annexing the half mile affair from Alf Grenda in a close finish.

ULSTER PARK.

Ulster Park, June 19.—Mr. and Mrs. L. Touthmann and Mr. and Mrs. M. Vento and daughter from Jersey City, a total of six, were at Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ellsworth where they are spending some time.

The Children's Day exercises in the church last Sunday morning and evening were enjoyed by all present. The church was prettily decorated with daisy chains and other flowers.

There are a number of summer boarders at the hotel.

A Gossard of Albany spent Sunday with George Kennoch.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Knipp of College Point, L. I., are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Julius Knipp.

Vinard Parker of Poughkeepsie spent Sunday with Miss Ruth Cole.

Y. and Mrs. J. Granra and daughter of Brooklyn spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. William Cole.

Father's Obituary.

"Well," sighed father today, "I should die tomorrow I would want the newspapers to print this obituary: He was born 68 years ago, enjoyed life quite well during the first 10 years and then had to go to work and he's worked like ever since. The funeral will occur tomorrow." — Atchison Globe.

The bureau has co-operated with the following agencies: Commissioners of charity, police department, recorder's court, judge of the county court, sheriff of Ulster county, district attorney, the school nurse, truant officers, Salvation Army, Daughters of Isabella, Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish War Veterans, county agent, department of health, Kingston City Hospital, Sunshine Society, Day Nursery, Loyal Friends' Aid Society, the fire department, department of education, the S. P. C. A., the Middletown State Hospital, several churches and individuals. The bureau has secured ninety-two days work for men and women, eighty-five for women, and seven for men. In addition to this the bureau secured two permanent positions for women and two for men. At this season of the year cases of people being stranded in the city, are being frequently reported to the bureau, saying they are on their way to the mountains or some other plausible story. These cases are being investigated by the bureau in co-operation with the city officials and no one is being helped to his destination unless his story is believed to be true. Children's clothes are always needed by the families in whom the bureau is interested, and anyone having such articles will kindly communicate with Mrs. Laura MacMillan, secretary of the Bureau of Social Service, 27 E. O'Reilly street. Tel. 1386.

Perseverance Has Won.

In the past the nation has made many blunders and has been guilty of many shortcomings, and yet in the end we have always come out victorious, because we have refused to be daunted by blunders and defeats—have recognized them, but have persevered in spite of them.—Theodore Roosevelt.
